Johnson, Wallace Invade Corn Belt To Quell Strikers

Secretary Will Address Iowa Legislature and Growers' Rally.

Roosevelt Seeks Farm War Truce

Aims to Be Outlined in Midwest as Relief Is Speeded.

By Franklyn Waltman, jr.

Although President Roosevelt rejected the plan of five Middle Western governors for compulsory price-fixing of farm products, the administration does not regard lightly evidences of discontent with the recovery program throughout the corn belt, it became apparent yesterday. Definite steps will be taken to mollify that section of the country.

The first effort will be what was termed "an appeal to reason" and, in carrying it out, President Roosevelt has dispatched his two chief recovery administrators to the agitated region to present first-hand the administration's case.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson left yesterday on a trip that will take him into the center of the disaffected region to plead the cause of NRA.

Wallace Leaves Friday.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace will leave by airplane Friday for Des Moines, where, on Saturday, he will address the Iowa Legislature and that night speak to a farmers' meeting in the Des Moines Coliseum. In both speeches he will outline what the administration proposes to do for the farmer, what has been done and why the price-fixing plan was rejected.

The second step in the campaign to appease the rebellious corn belt will be a speeding up of the farm relief program already announced. The drive will get under way this week to persuade producers of corn and hogs to agree to reduce their production in exchange for benefit payments which in the aggregate will total this winter about $180,000,000.

This campaign will be launched today at Kansas City, will be carried to St. Paul Wednesday and to Chicago Friday. Meanwhile agents of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration throughout the disaffected Middle Western corn-hog States will start educational campaigns to get the farmers to sign

Farmers Seek Liquor Profit

Governors Demand Liquor Makers Use Grain Grown in U. S.

Governors of five Western States, who have been in Washington attempting to work out an agricultural price program, yesterday declared they will demand that distillers use American grown grain in the manufacture of liquor.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson, of Minnesota, speaking for the five, said:

"Now that repeal of the eighteenth amendment seems inevitable, farmers of the country have a right to insist that distillers use home-grown grain in the manufacture of spirituous beverages.

"We understand the distillers are willing to require the use of American grain through their codes. They also are willing to pay parity prices for grain. As representatives of the grain farmers we shall demand those provisions in the distillers' code.

"Regardless of whether the people in the farm States have been for or against prohibition, they feel that home-grown grain should be used in distilling. There is no better grain available, and those advocating repeal have always argued that the farmer would benefit. We intend to see that those promised benefits become real."

Murdered Dancer Buried in Holy City

Jerusalem, Nov. 5 (AP).—Joan Winters, beautiful American dancer, found dead here Friday at the foot of the Mount of Olives, near to the Garden of Gethsemane, was buried with simple rites in the American Mission's Cemetery today.

An American clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Shap, officiated. The services were attended by the United States consul and the vice consul.

The police are working on the theory she and a Hindu student, whose body was found near hers, were slain by Arab rioters while they were taking a stroll in the moonlight.

"Texas" Guinan, Whoopee Queen, Dies in Canada

MARY LOUISE CECELIA (TEXAS) GUINAN.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 5 (AP). Texas Guinan, glamorous night club queen, known best for her contributions to Broadway's vocabulary, died in a hospital here today.

The robust entertainer sent the phrases, "hello, sucker," and "give the little girl a great big hand," virtually around the world.

1 Dead, 3 Hurt When Farmers Push Rebellion

Des Moines, Nov. 5 (AP).—One man was killed, three were injured and thousands of dollars worth of produce destroyed, as embattled farmers tonight attempted to stem the flow of foodstuffs into marketing centers of the farm strike area.

A speeding automobile crashed into a blockaded farm truck near Dakota City, Nebr., catapulted the machine into a group of picketeers who were dumping its contents. Frank Fletcher was killed and John Pallas, William Winget and Jerry Fillip were seriously injured.

Troops Ready.

Violence was reported from a half dozen other fronts as the hour for starting marketing caravans arrived. Officials believed it would be necessary to call out troops in some sections.

Two men were arrested in Waupun, Wis., accused of ruining cheese at a factory by pouring kerosene into vats.

Invasion Threatened.

Officials at Milwaukee said they received reports of a threatened invasion of militant dairy strikers.

Scores who oppose the strike were reported massing tonight in other sections. Capt. C. R. Seitz, commandant of Company I, 168th Infantry, Iowa National Guard, stationed at Glenwood, received orders to have troops ready.

Violence in the farm strike—halting of a market-bound freight train near Lawton, Iowa, and the release of eight carloads of live stock by pickets—tonight brought the assertion from Gov. Clyde L. Herring that unless peace officers could maintain order the State "would step in."

A crowd of pickets piled railroad

Borah Holds Price Boosts Block Buying

Urges Antitrust Laws Be Used to Crush "Exploitation."

Parma, Idaho, Nov. 5 (AP).—Declaring the Administration's "buy now" campaign "is not progressing at all," Senator William E. Borah, Idaho, in a speech here tonight demanded restoration and enforcement of the antitrust laws to stop "a brazen program of exploitation" through high prices.

"The campaign is in fact, receding," he said. "The sales volume as shown by experts is significantly unfavorable. The controlling reason is the prices which confront the buyer.

"Many of these prices are high beyond all reason and conscience. If they were Blue Eagle prices, it would make this bird a bird of prey instead of a bird of protection.

Monopolies Charged.

"They are in many instances, in my judgment, the prices fixed by combines and monopolies, sheltered by the broad wings of the eagle.

"Hiding behind the increase of labor and the processing tax, making these an excuse, prices have been pushed up beyond all reason. Therefore, when people are urged to buy, they are really urged to buy, in many instances at monopolistic prices.

"We are gathering the fruits, in a large measure, of the mistaken act in suspending the antitrust laws last winter. It should not have been done. The people are paying for that mistake now. It was assumed that the public would be protected through these codes, but that assumption was based upon wrong premises and was made without a sufficient desire to restrain monopolies."

"For 20 years both the leading political parties have fiercely assailed monopolies during the campaign, to become not only silent but subservient after the campaign was over. The old parties have surrendered to monopolies in these recent years as completely as the Democratic and Whig parties surrendered to slavery before the war."

He said prices of commodities "essential to the comfort and health of the farmer and laborer" have risen from 62 to 120 per cent.

Recounts Suffering.

"This means denial, the denial which brings suffering for millions of men and women who are entering the fourth winter of the depression," he said.

"The world has been astounded that the United States should have from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 men and women out of employment. Perhaps an explanation of that may be found in the fact that even in the years of 1926, 1927 and 1928, the golden years which we are striving to recover, there were 75,000,000 people in the United States who had an annual income of less than $800."

It was a sad mistake to suspend all antitrust laws and leave nothing in their stead but a meaningless generality and a noble purpose."

Pleads for Inflation.

Taking up the question of currency expansion, he said:

"Those who argue against inflation, which I prefer to call reflation, refuse, as it seems to me, to face the facts, to meet the issue as it is presented. They go back to Germany and tell us about what happened in Germany. They talk about the French revolution and

Japan War Planes Seen Over Russia

Moscow, Nov. 5 (AP).—A Soviet Telegraph Agency dispatch from Vladivostok reports without comment that a squadron of Japanese military airplanes flew over Soviet territory November 3.

The dispatch said the planes penetrated to a depth of from 15 to 20 miles near the west bank of the Gulf of Amur and were sighted over four Soviet villages.

"Among the Japanese war planes trespassing the Soviet frontier were eight scouting planes and one bomber," said the dispatch.

J. D. Clarke, 60, Representative, Dies in Crash

JOHN D. CLARKE.

Delhi, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—Representative John D. Clarke (Republican), New York, 60, was killed near here tonight in an automobile collision. He represented the Thirty-fourth Congressional District of New York and was serving his fifth term.

Long Enemy Asks Senate Group to Quit

Woman Flays Committee Investigating Election in Louisiana.

Demand for the resignation of the Senate committee investigating the Louisiana primary election was voiced last night by Mrs. Milda Phelps Hamond, chairman of the Women's Committee of that State. She declared the Senat committee's attitude has been "inexcusable and wrongful."

Members of the Senate committee, all of whom received stinging telegrams from Mrs. Hammond, are Senators Connally, Logan, Carey and Townsend.

"You, as chairman," she wired Senator Connally, "have failed to direct the investigation effectively and in good faith. To the pleading of citizens of Louisiana you turned a deaf ear and did not even deign to answer.

Delays Charged.

"You have not only avoided the obligation imposed upon you, but you have even thwarted this investigation by inexcusable delay. We now say that you have violated the duty imposed upon you by the Senate resolution authorizing and directing the investigation and we ask that you retire from the committee."

She telegraphed Senator Logan:

"By your statements through the press and through correspondence you have shown yourself unfit to sit any longer upon this committee. Your statements have been detrimental to yourself and to the cause of Louisiana, and we consider that you have violated the oath imposed upon you as a senator to conduct this investigation thoroughly and searchingly.

Mrs. Hammond sent this message to Senator Carey:

"As the sole surviving member of the committee that conducted the hearings in New Orleans, you had a faithful duty to fulfill which you have refused to perform. We have no hesitancy in saying that we consider that you have proven yourself unfit to sit on this committee."

Probe Held Ignored.

This message went to Senator Townsend:

"You have been publicly accused in a national magazine of being connected with a construction company that holds many thousand dollars of scrip from the Louisiana Highway Commission. You have never, as far as we know, refuted this public statement. You have done nothing of any kind to further this investigation. We therefore ask that you retire from the committee."

Reporter, Freed, Reaches London

Will Tell Foreign Office of Seizure by Nazis.

London, Nov. 5 (AP).—Noel Painter, British journalist, who was arrested and held in Munich several days before his release last week, arrived in London today. He will go to the Foreign Office tomorrow to place the facts of his arrest and imprisonment before British officials.

He said he still was waiting to know what offense he had committed in Germany and asserted:

"Although I was interrogated twice by secret police, I was never charged with an offense. We know my arrest was in connection with my report on a review of 20,000 storm troops, but foreign newspapers were never at any time warned that a report of the event was forbidden."

Student Aviatrix Dying.

Six Cremated As Airplane Hits House

Johnson, Noted Airman, Is Killed in Jersey Crash, Explosion.

Four Trapped in Home by Flaming Oil; Fifth Missing.

Shrewsbury, N. J., Nov. 5 (AP).—A New Jersey National Guard airplane, piloted by Lieut. George R. Johnson, South American explorer and noted aerial photographer, crashed into a bungalow here late today and exploded, trapping in the flames Johnson, his passenger, and all colored occupants of the bungalow.

Both fliers were killed, and the others, either four or five in number, perished in the flames that razed the structure.

Police list the following dead:

Sergt. Alfred Poole, of Hillside.
June King, 5.
Patricia King, 2.
Edward Wilson, 38, of Little Silver.
Cora Ragland, 35.

Mother Missing.

The children's mother, Mrs. Margaret King, 28, could not be found after the fire. Police at first said she was lost in the flames. Later they started investigating a report that she was out of town at the time the crash occurred. Wilson was a visitor at the house.

Police left the charred bodies undisturbed in the smouldering ruins of the bungalow until tomorrow.

Several hours later a plane, owned by a New York newspaper, carrying a pilot, a reporter and a photographer, headed for the scene of the fatal crash, was slightly damaged in landing near here. The three occupants were badly shaken up.

Banked on Takeoff.

The National Guard plane, out of Newark Airport on a photographic flight, landed at Red Bank late in the afternoon. Verne Treat, a former air mail pilot, at the Red Bank Airport, told State and local police he thought the ship got out of control as it banked after the takeoff.

Others at the airport said the plane landed after attaining low altitude and then took off again and circled the field. Over the houses on the north side it sideslipped and began diving. Its tail struck the roof of one house and then the ship plunged nose-first into the rear of the King bungalow, a five-room wooden structure owned by Mrs. Margaret Peterson, grandmother of the King children.

Hears Child Scream.

Mrs. M. N. Cofer, a neighbor, said she saw the plane crash and heard one of the children scream. No other sounds came from the house, she said.

Another neighbor said the ship "slapped the house," there was an explosion as it ripped through the flimsy roof and back wall, and a geyser of flaming oil rose and settled, completely enveloping the place. The flames burst forth immediately and in a few minutes the bungalow was a roaring pyre.

From what the police could learn they judged the occupants were sitting in the kitchen at the rear. The plane swept everything before it, plunging into the cellar.

Adjoining House Scorched.

An adjoining house, occupied by Mrs. Louise Lamberton and her three children, James, 5, Louise, 3, and Raymond, 2, were badly scorched by the flames.

Airport attendants and fire companies rushed to the scene from

F. R. McNamee Dies In Las Vegas Hotel

Heart Attack Kills Union Pacific Counsel.

Las Vegas, Nev., Nov. 5 (AP).—F. R. McNamee, chief counsel for the Union Pacific Railroad in Los Angeles, died of a heart attack today in a hotel dining room.

He was in Las Vegas as senior counsel for Six Companies, Inc., contractors for Boulder Dam, in a damage suit that is under way.

McNamee was 68 years old and the brother of Rear Admiral Luke McNamee, ranking officer of the Naval War College at Newport, R. I. His widow and eight children survive.

Berwyn Woman, Hit by Auto, Dies

After being struck by an automobile on the Baltimore pike, near her home, Miss Margaret Hall, 49, of Berwyn, Md., died last night at Providence Hospital.

Miss Hall died of a severe fracture of the right leg, shock and internal injuries. She was taken to the hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad.

The car was driven by Fred W. Brockman, of Baltimore, according to Hyattsville police. Brockman was released after the accident on his personal bond with a charge of reckless driving. Following Miss Hall's death police were looking for Brockman again.

Reich Press Calls Roosevelt 'Bad Boy' of World Economics

Berlin, Nov. 4 (AP).—President Roosevelt was called the "Peck's Bod Boy" of world economy by German newspapers today, and at the same time they asked the German nation to be thankful that Chancellor Hitler refuses to experiment with the currency.

The newspapers anticipate the outcome of the American gold-purchasing "experiment" in various ways.

The Diplomatisch Politisch Korrespondenz supports Roosevelt, saying:

"The Union is at the moment the showplace of an experiment in state-directed commerce, which experiment must be regarded as one of the greatest efforts ever made by liberal capitalisms to stem their obstacles."

The Deutsche Zeitung, after characterizing Roosevelt as "the Enfant Terrible of World Economy," said seldom had so responsible a statesman made so many experiments, terming them all the more remarkable in view of Wall street's attitude.

2 Navy Officers Hurt As Auto Leaves Road

Two Navy officers were in Naval Hospital last night, suffering from injuries received early yesterday in an automobile accident on the Frederick pike near Ridgeville, Md.

They are Lieut. Comdr. Early W. Morris and Lieut. Chester A. Sawtford, both of the U. S. S. Mississippi. Neither was seriously injured. The machine in which they were passengers was forced from the road by another car.

Farley Backs McKee's Entire Slate and Turns New York Election Tide

G. O. P. Candidate Seeks New Issue

By Frank Getty.

New York, Nov. 6.—The declaration tonight of Postmaster General James A. Farley that he favored the election of Joseph V. McKee and his entire ticket turned the tide of New York City's mayoralty campaign definitely in favor of the Recovery party candidate.

Previously, it had been conceded here that Fiorella H. LaGuardia would win with a plurality from 50,000 to 100,000 votes. But, so potent is what is known as the "Washington influence," Farley's statement tonight caused the odds to switch to McKee.

The Recovery party candidate was thought to have lost ground this week-end.

Few believe Mayor John P. O'Brien can be reelected. Bookmakers tonight were offering 4 and 5 to 1 against the incumbent.

Vote Switch Possible.

LaGuardia's backers, in a last-minute statement, claimed a probable plurality of 34,000. They admitted the possibility of sufficient votes swinging to McKee as a result of Farley's statement, however, to change the result, and were looking rather hopelessly for something new to spring on behalf of their candidate.

The furious electioneering dropped off today, despite the announced intention of each candidate to carry on over the week-end.

Farley was met by a flock of reporters and politicians upon his arrival from Washington, but postponed his formal statement in favor of the Recovery party ticket until reaching the headquarters at the Biltmore Hotel. Once there, he made it clear that he was for McKee, because he thought the judge would give New York City a government of "efficiency and honesty."

The Postmaster General's first declaration was for Ferdinand Pecora, Recovery party candidate for district attorney. Afterward he admitted that "while taking no part in the city campaign," he was going to vote for McKee and the others of his party.

When the question of White House backing was brought up, obviously to Farley's embarrassment,

Dollar Value Cut of 50% Is Predicted

While the Committee for the Nation in a statement issued in New York last night suggested that President Roosevelt might be forced soon to order a 50 per cent reduction in the gold content of the dollar, inflationists in Washington were working toward legislation to make the 50 per cent reduction compulsory.

The Committee for the Nation, however, did not see such reduction being forced by legislation, but by an "organized attack" on the President's monetary policy by Wall Street and by interests in Great Britain.

"The President can at any moment cut short the manipulation of foreign powers and the deflationists of Wall Street," said the committee statement, "by an overnight proclamation that he will cut the gold content of the dollar by one-half under the powers delegated to him by Congress. He announced that he preferred the gradual method, but if the deflationists' opposition checks this process he may soon be driven to the other."

Solely With President.

The committee said that those who are attacking the President's policy "overlook the fact that the complete answer is in the President's hands."

"In the last few days," the statement continued, "it (the attack) has been in evidence in the avowed antagonism of Wall Street, and Saturday it became more manifest in the quotations in foreign exchange.

"Under obvious British control, the pound sterling, having touched $4.87 for the first time in two years, was forced back to $4.86¼, while the R. F. C. bid for gold in the world markets required a price of approximately $5 to the pound.

Gap Now 54 Cents.

"The gap between the Washington dollar price for an ounce of gold and the point at which it was held in world markets widened to 54 cents. The issue is clear: Will the U. S. control the purchasing power of its own dollar or will deflationist interests here and foreign interests that are trying to force the U. S. to a dollar of higher purchasing power remain in control?

"There can be but one outcome of this struggle—complete victory for the President's policy, which will also be a victory for the people of the country."

The legislative attack by inflationists is expected to take the form of making compulsory instead of

Ford to Start Lay-Offs Today

Car Magnate Still Silent on NRA Offer to Welcome Code Complaint.

Detroit, Nov. 5 (U.P.)—Although NRA Administrator Johnson has offered to "consider an exception," Henry Ford tomorrow will start laying off employes for one week, in rotating shifts, to comply with terms of the automobile code.

Johnson made the offer when he learned of Ford's plans to bring working hours under the 35-hour maximum.

Ford officials refused to discuss the NRA offer.

Johnson said he believes Ford is reducing his force because of seasonal production slump.

U. S. Denounces Greek Refusal In Insull Fight

Violation of Extradition Pact Charged in Note Cabled to Athens.

Failure of Greece to grant the request of the United States for extradition of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, was "utterly untenable" and a "clear violation" of the extradition treaty between the two countries, the State Department declared in its note to the Greek Government denouncing the treaty.

Text of the note was made public yesterday.

The State Department declared in the communication that the United States Government has learned "with astonishment" that the Greek Government had for a second time declined to honor its request for Insull.

Although the United States formally denounced the treaty, the opinion was expressed at the State Department that, according to the terms of the agreement, it still remains in effect for a period of five years from November 1, 1932, the date it first became effective.

Pact Can Be Voided.

Following the expiration date, the treaty could be made inoperative by either country on one year's notice.

The treaty is virtually the same as that in effect between the United States and 68 other governments. This is believed to be the first time the United States has denounced such a treaty.

The note was sent to Lincoln MacVeagh, United States Minister to Greece, to be delivered to the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Greece.

The text follows:

"I am instructed to inform Your Excellency that the United States Government has learned with astonishment that the Greek authorities have again declined to honor the request of the United States for the extradition of Samuel Insull, a fugitive from American justice.

Acts Held Illegal.

"My Government finds it difficult to reconcile this unusual decision with the admission of the competent authorities that the fugitive committed the acts with which he was charged and that these acts are illegal and fraudulent both in the United States and Greece.

"Without going into details of the decision, it is evident that the authorities attempted actually to try the case instead of confining themselves to ascertaining whether the evidence submitted by the United States Government was sufficient

Duce Orders Officials Wed; 'He's Joking,' Says Envoy Here

Rome, Nov. 5 (AP).—Premier Benito Mussolini today ordered all bachelors holding executive positions in the Fascist party or candidates for the next Italian legislature either to marry or resign.

The Italian Ambassador to the United States, Augusto Rosso, is a bachelor and will be affected by the decree.

The marriage order was motivated by the fact Il Duce insisted all Fascist chiefs show the example, he, Mussolini, personally has shown, by raising a large family.

He persistently has attacked bachelors for failing to fulfill their duty to the state. Through Mussolini's insistence, many Fascist chiefs, including Air Marshall Italo Balbo, who led the Italian mass flight to Chicago last summer, married soon after Fascism came into power.

Signor Augusto Rosso, the wealthy Italian Ambassador, last night refused to take seriously the report from Rome that Premier Mussolini had ordered all executive bachelors in the Facist party to marry or resign.

"I believe that's just a story put out for the amusement of the public," he laughed.

Signor Rosso, although he has been Italian envoy for a little more than a year, is one of the most sought after unmarried men in Washington's diplomatic set.

"I certainly have received no such instructions from Rome," he added, "and I'm not expecting any. Until I do, I decline to commit myself."

Sometimes known as "The Uncle from America," Signor Rosso is talented as well as wealthy.

Mitchell Tax Offer Reported

Morgan Company Declared Making Negotiations With Government.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—The New York American says Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City Bank, is negotiating with the Government for settlement of his income tax dispute under sponsorship of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mitchell recently was acquitted on three charges of trying to defraud the Government out of approximately $1,000,000.

The newspaper says the Morgan Company first offered to guarantee $75,000 and later raising the bid to $125,000 to clear Mitchell of civil liability.

"I refer you to the Government," Mitchell said tonight when asked if he had made an offer.

He said the figures $75,000 and $125,000 were not correct.

The American says the Government's attitude is that $125,000 is too low a price and that Mitchell's acquittal of criminal charges does not nullify the obligation.

United States Attorney Medalie said he would be "surprised" if Mitchell had enough money to settle his taxes.

"I found out after an investigation," he said, "that he possessed very little money or property."

Tuesday Vote Holds Repeal, Parties' Fates

Republicans Look to N. Y. to Pave Way for Gains in 1934.

The probability that the eighteenth admendment will be wiped from the statute books by the balloting of six States tomorrow shared political interest with scattered State-wide and mayoralty elections.

The drift of political sentiment will be watched closely by party chieftains who conceded that the returns of the various contests may have a direct bearing on the 1934 Congressional elections.

Virginia will go to the polls to decide whether Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, will succeed himself, or give way to Henry A. Wise, a Republican, who has conducted a brisk campaign for election. In addition Virginia elects a governor and State-wide officers as well as 100 members of the Assembly. The gubernatorial candidates are George C. Peery, Democrat, and Fred W. McWane, Republican.

December 5 Earliest Date.

The States voting on repeal are Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah, Kentucky, North and South Carolina. Only three are needed to make repeal a certainty, since 33 States have voted in unbroken succession against National Prohibition. In the event that three States join the repeal parade, ratification will not come until December 5, when conventions do the ratifying.

Throughout the country Republicans are emphasizing the value of victory as a wedge for greater gains in 1934, when 435 House members and 32 senators come up for election. On the other hand, the Democrats are trying to hold their ground, although party lines have been torn asunder in New York, Cleveland and Boston.

The mayoralty campaign in New York City, where Joseph V. McKee, "recovery" candidate, is opposing the Tammany Mayor John P. O'Brien and Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of the Fusion party, has evoked wide interest throughout the country.

New York in Balance.

The outcome will either strengthen or weaken the President's control of the State, it is conceded by Democratic leaders. Should McKee win and the Democrats capture the State Assembly, the President would have no difficulty in obtaining New York's block of electoral votes in 1936. Tammany opposed President Roosevelt at the last convention.

In Cleveland, Mayor Ray T. Miller, Democrat, is opposed by Harry Davis, Republican nominee.

In Boston, four Democrats and two Republicans are seeking the office of Mayor James M. Curley, who can not succeed himself under the law.

Other elections of interest are:

New Jersey State Legislature, now Republican controlled.

Kentucky's legislative race.

Pennsylvania proposal to modify Sunday blue laws, issuance of bonds for bonuses to former service men, unemployment relief and purchase of toll bridges.

Ohio's State repeal and old-age pension balloting.

Farley's "Bolt" Rebuked.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 5 (AP).—New York's mayoralty contest was brought into the North Carolina repeal referendum campaign today.

On the heels of Postmaster General Farley's visit to this State last week, Dennis G. Brummitt, State attorney general, an opponent of repeal, issued a statement attacking the contention of some repealists that Democrats should vote for repeal as a matter of party loyalty.

Kentucky in Wind-Up.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5 (AP).—Kentucky, which moved up its repeal convention date in an effort to be among the first 36 States to ratify the twenty-first amendment to the Constitution, will vote on the repeal issue Tuesday.

Honest Vote Asked.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 5 (AP).—Prohibition leaders today called upon South Carolinians in the referendum Tuesday "to exercise your right to be right even if all other States are wrong."

Speakers at an interdenominational rally here took sharp issue with appeals for a repeal vote on the grounds of Democratic party loyalty and urged citizens to vote "their honest convictions."

Ohio Record Vote Seen.

Columbus, O., Nov. 5 (AP).—A record off-year vote was predicted today for Tuesday's election, when Ohio ballots on repeal of the eighteenth amendment and State prohibition.

Repealists Are Confident.

Philadelphia, Nov. 5 (AP).—While ministers in scores of churches made final appeals to their congregations today to work against repeal of the eighteenth amendment, wet leaders expressed confidence Pennsylvania will vote by a large majority to end national prohibition.

Repealists predicted a majority in Philadelphia of not less than 350,000 in Tuesday's election.

Fifteen delegates are to be elected to a State convention, which on December 5 will consider elimination of the amendment. Wet leaders forecast majorities as high as 1,000,000 for repeal.

Residents of each city, borough, town and township, save those in Huntingdon County, will vote on Sunday baseball and football. A court injunction prevented the question from going to the voters in Huntingdon County.

Pennsylvania voters also will decide upon 12 proposed amendments to the constitution. These include a proposed $50,000,000 bond issue for a bonus to war veterans; a $25,000,000 issue for unemployment relief and State expenses, and a $10,000,000 issue for purchase of toll bridges.

Farley Pleads For Dry Law's End Tomorrow

Issues Appeal to 6 States Whose Votes May Decide Issue.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Postmaster General James A. Farley tonight in a radio speech appealed to the voters of the six States voting on repeal Tuesday to "end the wet-dry debate in 48 hours," prefacing his remarks with the prediction that national prohibition in the United States would end when the returns were tabulated. Repeal has been voted by 33 States and only three more are needed to end prohibition.

Addressing his speech to the voters of Pennsylvania, North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Kentucky and Utah, Farley said the "victory for repeal is a victory for sanity, sound sense and good morals."

"The great obstacle to prohibition reform was found in the fact that the proponents of the eighteenth amendment had for so long a period indiscriminately pictured every advocate of repeal as a drunkard that many good citizens, though convinced that a change should be effected, hesitated to speak," said Farley. "It was the clear voice of Franklin Roosevelt at the Chicago convention, a little more than a year ago, that broke down the last barriers."

"Of the 15,102,733 votes which have been cast," he continued, "11,329,558 were for repeal and only 3,773,175 against.

"While I repeat that credit for this result must be given to the leadership of the President, I want it distinctly understood that no one realizes more than I that the repeal movement was something above and beyond partisanship.

"We all know many brave Republican leaders who carried on the fight and dared the reprisals of the dry leaders to defend their principles.

Save Dry Law, Women Urged

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody yesterday issued a call to women of Ohio, Utah, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky and Pennsylvania to save the drys in Tuesday's balloting on the eighteenth amendment.

"They could do it!" the white-haired chairman of the women's national committee for law enforcement said.

"I know they can win if they'll go to the polls and vote against repeal! And if women should lead such a last rally, wouldn't it be something for their children to remember!"

After 16 days of campaigning in Ohio, Mrs. Peabody came here to take what she termed her "last stand."

"My friends say to me, 'what's the point? It's gone!" she said. "Well, when my child was lying at the point of death, did I stop?"

Mrs. Peabody argued that four States remaining in the dry column would defeat immediate repeal and give the drys a chance to rally.

Collegians to Study Problems of Repeal

A National Intercollegiate program of factual and scientific study and discussion of alcoholic drink was announced yesterday by the Intercollegiate Association for Education on the alcohol problem, according to the Associated Press. The organization said the objective will be "to help meet the situation that will arise after repeal of the eighteenth amendment," adding:

"Attention will be directed more to the social and psychological effects of drink than to those that are political or physical."

Miss Given Has Served E. V. Brown School 35 Years.

Memories of 35 years in the E. V. Brown School will crowd upon Miss M. E. Given, who has retired from the position of principal of the school, when educational and civic groups honor her at an informal reception November 14, at 8 p. m., in the old chapel of All Saints Episcopal Church.

Former pupils and residents of Chevy Chase are participating in arrangements for the reception. Among the sponsors are the Home and School Associations of the E. V. Brown, Lafayette and Ben Murch schools, Alice Deal Junior High and Western High School and the Chevy Chase and Forest Hills Citizens Associations.

Individuals scheduled to take part in the reception are Senators Burton K. Wheeler and Gerald P. Nye, Representative Clyde Kelly, Judge Ralph Given, Proctor L. Dougherty, Thomas H. MacDonald, Rabbi Abram Simons, Dr. and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Dean William A. Wilbur, the Rev Edward O. Clark, the Rev. Henry Teller Cocke, the Rev. J. Phelps Hand, Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, the Rev. Thomas Smyth, Edward F. Colladay, E. C. Graham, Jere Crane, Walker Buel, Walter Newton and Herbert Woods.

Miss Given was principal of the Brown School when that institution was a small frame building surrounded by woods.

Texas Guinan Dies After Operation

in Waco, Tex., about 48 years ago, she experienced a kaleidoscopic career that ran from the plains to the picture-making of early Hollywood, and then to a noisy New York climax that was studded with courtroom battles with prohibition.

She had just completed a Pacific Coast theatrical tour with her troupe of girls, opening here on October 28, and had another engagement scheduled at Victoria, B. C., this week.

She entered the hospital last Monday night suffering from ulcerated colitis. A physician said her condition seemed satisfactory until yesterday morning when an operation was performed.

She became worse steadily and died at 8:30 a. m.

Miss Guinan wrangled cattle on her father's ranch when she was 14, and was educated in a convent.

After moving to Denver, she won a scholarship at the Chicago Conservatory of Music. From an obscure start, Hollywood cast her in more than a hundred Western pictures.

Soon after 1920 her name began its Broadway ascent, financed by Larry Fay, taxicab and labor promoter, who was later slain.

By 1925 her "Three Hundred Club" in West Forty-eighth street, New York, was in its heyday. Rotund visitors from the hinterlands were "big butter and egg men." Out-of-town buyers became spendthrifts and merriment reigned supreme.

"Texas" presided. She introduced celebraties to her patrons and her girls to big spenders of the Howard Russell Ryder type.

In an article entitled "How I Make $10,000 a Week," she explained her likes and dislikes thus:

"I like noise, rhinestone heels, customers, plenty of attention and red velvet bathing suits. I smoke like a 5-alarm fire; I eat an asprin every night before I go to bed; I call every man I don't know 'Fred' and they love it; I have six uncles; I sleep on my right side and I like carrots. I eat a dozen oranges every day and I once took off 35 pounds in two weeks. I guess that settles my personality."

In 1931, with an expeditionary force of dancing girls, Broadway cowboys and musicians, she was excluded from France on her round-the-world tour for not having a labor permit, but she came back unabashed and drove about town in her Belgian-motored bullet-proof limousine.

Her matrimonial ventures—three in number, all ending in divorce—she preferred to forget.

About herself "Texas" had this to say:

"I want my funeral to be the speediest ever given with a cop on a motorcycle ahead, a wake for me in a night club and an bunch of college boys singing college songs loud as they can while they lower my coffin."

what happened then. But let us come home, and face the facts as they are and meet the issue, the burning issue, as it is presented.

"We have been trying credit inflation for three years. The former Administration loaned money by millions, but prices continued to fall and unemployment continued to increase. Credit inflation did not and could not reach those who most needed help. It did not and could not increase the volume of the circulating medium.

Money Held Needed.

"The crash came, and the greatest and richest Nation on earth, as we are fond of saying, on the fourth day of last March was sterilized from center to circumference. Twelve million men and women were without work, on the verge of hunger, while food rotted on the farm. There is no circulating medium with which to effect the transfer.

"What is the situation at present? Credit currency is unavailable to those who most need currency. You may pile up credit, but the producer can not get it. He has no security which those who are in a position to extend credit will accept. The farmer is worse off today when measured by the price that is paid, with the price he receives, than he was a year ago. That is the situation which confronts up. That is the issue. What are we going to do about it? What is the remedy?

Asks for Remedy.

"Let those who tell us that a greater volume of money is not the remedy tell us what is the remedy. We believe that prices are controlled by the volume of money in circulation, but if we are on the wrong track, do not be content with denouncing our contention. Tell us how we are to escape from this brutal, devastating, continuing deflation.

"What is the remedy? You may plow up cotton. You may reduce wheat acreage. You may kill pigs until their carcasses choke the Mississippi on her way to the sea. You may do all this while millions are hungry for what you are destroying.

"But all this will be but a drop in the bucket. Whatever may be said of this program of reducing acreage and so forth, as an emergency measure, it alone will not solve the farm problem."

Senator Borah then urged the use of both gold and silver, making a broader metallic base for the monetary system, asserting that "upon that broad base sufficient currency could be provided with which to meet the situation."

Gold Belief Ridiculed.

"We talk about gold and the virtues of the gold standard," he concluded. "Well, where is the gold standard? Thirty-three nations are on a paper basis. The rest of them are likely to be. It is evident that under present circumstances there is not sufficient with which to do the business of the world. Gold needs help.

"It seems to be the theory of some that, although we may lose the Constitution, although we may change our system of government, and although millions may lose their homes and farms, yet if we can save the gold standard, all will be well. Have we not something in this situation besides a standard which has become largely a fiction?"

Maryland Boy, 4, Loses Death Race

Baltimore, Nov. 5 (AP).—Four-year-old William Henry Howell, rushed here from Portland, Me., died shortly after he arrived at Johns Hopkins Hospital early today.

The child was brought from the summer home of his father, Dean Roger Howell of the University of Maryland Law School on a special car attached to fast trains. At Boston an express was held for him. In Baltimore a police squad cleared the streets as he was rushed to the hospital.

Death was said to have been caused by peritonitis, which followed an emergency appendix operation seven weeks ago. The child's appendix had been ruptured.

his farm near here when his car and an automobile driven by William Foster, of Delhi, smashed head-on.

Passengers of the other car were not seriously hurt.

Born at Hobart, Delaware County, January 15, 1873, he had a colorful life as a lawyer, mining executive, farmer and politician. He received a degree of doctor of philosophy from Lafayette University in 1898, later did graduate work at Colorado College, and was graduated from Brooklyn Law School in 1911.

For several years he was employed by the Oliver Mining Co.

His political activities began when he was elected to the sixty-seventh Congress. A strong believer in conservation, he was cosponsor of the Clarke-McNary bill for reforestation.

Mr. Clarke was the son of Capt. W. J. Clarke and Emaline Davenport Clarke. He married Marian Williams, of Cheyenne, Wyo., in 1905, and is survived by one son, John Duncan Clarke.

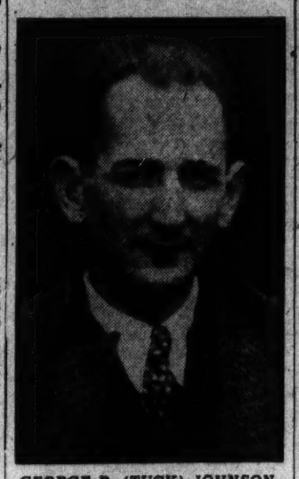
Killed in Crash



GEORGE R. (TUCK) JOHNSON, noted aerial photographer, explorer and war veteran, who died last night in a plane crash at Shrewsbury, N. J., which cost six other lives.

Tinton Falls, Shrewsbury, Red Bank and Eatontown.

Sergt. Poole had been a member of the aviation division of the National Guard since its organization in 1930. He was married and the father of an 11-year-old daughter. He was 36 and a foundry foreman in Newark.

Three investigations got under way immediately. Gill Robb Wilson, State commissioner of aviation, headed one. State, county and local police are conducting the second, and the third is in charge of the National Guard aviation board of inquiry, headed by Maj. Rober L. Copsey, commander of the aviation unit of the National Guard in this State.

War Pilot When 18.

His interest in aerial photography and love of adventure took Johnson to Peru three times. On his first trip he went to South America for a commercial concern, but he had been there only a short time when he accepted a commission in the Peruvian navy. His second trip to Peru was made for a reenlistment in the country's service, and his third as copilot of the Shippee-Johnson expedition.

Johnson went overseas at 18, a private in the American Army. Once he was nearly frozen to death flying and had to be sent to a hospital. Another time he crashed in a burning plane. The pilot was killed but Johnson escaped by jumping.

Johnson was the first photographer to fly over the volcano, El Misti. The pictures he made were so fine that the American Geographic Society picked 150 for incorporation in a book called "Peru From the Air."

Even more interesting to Johnson, however, were the villages he saw nestling in the mountain-locked Colca valley near Arequipa.

Japan's Pioneer Radical Dies

Moscow Mourns Veteran; Soviet State Funeral Expected.

Moscow, Nov. 5 (AP).—Sen Katayama, veteran Japanese bolshevist, died today.

The Soviet Telegraph Agency circulated the following announcement:

"The executive committee of the Communist International with deep regret announces the death of the oldest member of the Presidium of the Executive Comintern, the organizer of the proletarian movement in Japan, the organizer and leader of the Communist party in Japan, a firm bolshevist and a faithful struggler for the International Proletarian Revolution and the victory of socialism-Comrade Sen Katayama."

The Japanese probably will be given a Soviet state funeral.

Marc Smith, 58, Dies; Vice Consul at Geneva

Hamilton, Ohio, Nov. 5 (AP).—Marc Smith, 58, American Vice Consul at Geneva, died in a hospital here last night after a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Smith, a native of Hamilton, was granted a leave of absence October 19, because of ill health.

He is survived by his widow, Isabel Graham Smith, who is in Geneva and a sister, Mrs. John B. Cornell, Butler, N. J.

Prof. James Urges U. S. Readopt Gold

Believes Return Would Not Halt Rise in Prices.

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP).—Prof. F. Cyril James, of the University of Pennsylvania, advocated today immediate return to the gold standard as a safeguard against uncontrollable inflation and a restorative of public confidence.

"The gold standard doesn't stop the rise in prices," he told the Chicago forum, "for we were on the gold standard from 1913 to 1919, when prices were going up.

"I haven't the faintest idea why this policy of buying gold in the market was adopted, but I know what it is doing. Commodity prices are not rising as rapidly as gold prices—every day we must give more goods for an ounce of gold. This policy, far from improving the situation, makes it worse."

optional the Thomas amendment to the farm act which permits the President to devaluate the dollar by 50 cents and to issue currency up to $3,000,000,000, and provides also for free coinage of silver. The movement in this direction is led by Senator Thomas, author of the amendment, who is the recognized leader of the inflationists.

Relief Outcome Awaited.

Much depends, even inflationists concede, on the progress made by the recovery program between now and January, when Congress convenes. If the program, including public works, bank aid, credit expansion and other similar endeavors, shows marked progress during the next two months, the strength of the demand for inflation will be lessened. If it does not, inflation is expected to be one of the livest issues before Congress.

There is the added possibility that if the Administration does not obtain the results it wants from its gold program and relief measures already under way, other means may be tried to bring about an increase in commodity prices.

Besides the monetary and price situation, Congress is expected to be occupied at the beginning of the session with repeal legislation. This will take the form of tax laws, repeal of the Volstead act insofar as it applies to the District of Columbia, and repeal of the Reed amendment under which sending liquor advertising through the mails is illegal. Democratic leaders feel that the amendment offers no protection to dry States and that it is useless.

Stock Reform Urged.

Whether legislation concerning securities trading will be enacted will depend largely, it is understood, upon how far the New York Stock Exchange nad others go. President Roosevelt is understood to have told Richard Whitney, president of the New York Exchange, that he would like to see that trading center put in effect its own reform.

The exchange has under consideration moves to restrict short selling, marginal trading and the operations of floor specialists. If the exchanges do not enact their own reforms, it is regarded as virtually certain that such legislation will be introduced in Congress.

Tax Leaks Studied.

Revelations before the Senate Market Investigation Committee have turned leaders to a study also of how to plug up the holes in income tax laws. It is expected that there will be no drastic changes in the tax laws and that whatever changes are made will be largely adjustments in income tax legislation and efforts to eliminate nuisance taxes, such as that on checks.

Leaders foresee a drive by veterans and Federal employes to rescind the compensation and salary cuts imposed on them, but Speaker Rainey said last week that the Federal employes' pay would not be restored unless finances warranted.

Leaders do not expect any major banking legislation in the coming session.

NRA Due For Attracks.

It is expected that the life of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which expires on January 22 will be extended, since it has become a major financial appendage of the Government.

It is also expected that the Public Works program will be expanded to at least $5,000,000,000 from the present $3,000,000,000 and that more money will be voted for relief.

Although the NRA seems certain to be attacked, particularly from the Republican side, no major changes are looked for by Democratic leaders. The attitude of the leaders is that the NRA must be given further time and allowed to evolve into some permanent form.

Gen. Johnson Starts "Sales" Trip for NRA

Carries Battle to Enemy Territory in Farm Revolt Area.

Carrying his fight for the NRA direct to the rumbling interior, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson last night was en route to Chicago on a major offensive to quell the Middle West's rising chorus against the Administration's recovery program.

Grounded by poor weather, which prevented the take-off of his Army plane, the administrator boarded the Liberty Limited for a week's tour that will take him to eight cities in as many States, including the very center of the farm revolt headed by Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers Holiday Association.

Personality Chief Hope.

Gen. Johnson's dynamic personality, which has driven the NRA to miracles of industrial achievement, was counted on largely to swing the dissenters back into line. Edward F. McGrady, assistant administrator for labor, and his secretary, Miss Francis M. Robinson, were his only companions.

Behind were left a number of problems, including stubborn strikes, before the National Labor Board, an unsettled controversy with Henry Ford, and a large batch of codes for his assistants to handle. As a parting shot he left an assurance to labor in the form of a statement that code authorities could handle labor disputes only with organized labor representatives.

The opening gun of the Middle West campaign will be sounded at a luncheon meeting in Chicago today. In rapid succession he will fly for speeches at Minneapolis, Tuesday; Des Moines and Omaha, Wednesday; Kansas City, Thursday; Tulsa, Friday; Fort Worth, Tex., Saturday, and Louisville, next Monday. From Louisville he will return to resume command here.

Gets Many Invitations.

In each of the cities the administrator will be the guest at rallies and conferences arranged by chambers of commerce or other civic bodies. He will prepare his speeches between stops.

Facing the National Labor Board was the strike in the anthracite coal fields, called for today by the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania. Chairman Wagner last night had received no further word, he said, since the board dispatched Maj. John D. Moore to attempt mediation.

Senator Wagner selected five representatives to supervise elections at the steel-owned "captive" mines in accordance with an agreement effected October 30 by President Roosevelt. Involved was the question of how many miners want the United Mine Workers of America to represent them in collective bargaining with the companies.

Ford Workers' Plea Waited.

A petition addressed to Senator Wagner and Gen. Johnson from strikers of the Ford plant at Edgewater, N. J., asking the Labor Board's help in obtaining a settlement, had not yet been received but was expected today. Senator Wagner declined to anounce his course until the petition is received. Before leaving, Gen. Johnson approved 28 codes, dispatched half to the White House and returned the others for minor revisions. When signed by the President, the latest batch will bring to 100 the number so far promulgated—about one-third of the number eventually expected. More than 100 others are being adjusted after hearings.

The Recovery Administration's statement to code authorities declared when "an industry is organized for self-discipline that function will be accorded it." This was believed in line with Gen. Johnson's endorsement of the Swope plan as the eventual goal of the NRA. However, the statement made clear that the responsibility for code enforcement remained with the NRA.

Holds Few Industries Ready.

"The function of code administration lies primarily with the code authority provided for in each code," the statement said. "Nevertheless, it is the responsibility of the National Recovery Administration that the code be administered."

"Whenever, as in the bituminous coal code, an industry is organized for self-descipline that function will be accorded it. But in many instances industries are not so organized that they have machinery appropriate to the adjustment of complaints of violations of the trade practice and other provisions of their code.

"The organization of very few industries is at this time appropriate for the adjustment of complaints of violations of the labor provisions of codes. While, in every case, where the authority is organized, adjustment of fair trade practices will be left to the code authorities. As a general rule the code provides no plan for the adjustment of their labor provisions.

Takes Labor's Side.

"The code authority will be permitted to function on labor disputes when provision is made for adequate representation of labor on all committees, boards or other agencies set up to entertain and adjust complaints by employes against their employers for violations of labor provisions."

This was believed to indicate that NRA hoped for quick settlement of labor difficulties by the code authorities themselves, while the National Labor Board might be continued as an appellate agency. It was also considered an urging for industries to organize machinery for self-government.

While the status of the Ford case before the NRA continued muddled, it was thought likely that eventually the Labor Board would take a hand in the Edgewater and Chester, Pa., strikes.

Town Board to Meet.

A meeting of the Berwyn Heights town commissioners will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Steps liberalizing the plan to advance 50 cents a bushel on corn also are expected to be announced early this week. Under the original plan this loan rate applied on No. 2 corn at Chicago, with the rate at other points in the Middle West being somewhat less, due to freight and handling charges. It is now planned to make the 50 cents a bushel rate apply at 14 basic points in the Middle West and to apply this rate to corn which does not grade up to the No. 2 standard.

The plan announced Saturday for the purchase of 300,000,000 pounds of hog products, or the equivalent of 3,000,000 hogs, for distribution to relieve distress this winter, also will be advanced this week. The first bids for this quantity of food will be opened November 17. In agricultural circles here this plan to purchase hogs for relief purposes was regarded as containing real and lasting assistance to hog raisers.

Heavy Pig Buying.

Previously this year the A. A. A. bought about 6,000,000 pigs and about 200,000 sows. With orders going out for 3,000,000 more hogs, the relief purchasing program will be responsible for reducing the 60,000,000-odd hogs in this country by almost 10,000,000, or one-sixth before the winter ends, it was pointed out. This will be in addition to reductions under the benefit payment plan.

Administration leaders appeared yesterday to resent more than anything else that happened during the visit of the five governors here the parting remarks of Gov. William Langer of North Dakota to the effect that the "farmer is the forgotten man," that insurance, railroad and financial interests had obtained all the money and there was none left for farmers.

Charges Disputed.

This statement, it was contended, was disputed by the facts. Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—the agency which has been handing out Government money to all sorts of people—said that in his opinion "the farmer has not suffered when it has come to getting money out of the Treasury—indeed he has been well provided for."

It is difficult to get an accurate picture of the extent which the American farmer is benefiting out of the Treasury, due to the various agencies having charge of the work and the fact that in some instances allocations are set up and the exact amount of money expended is not quickly available.

But figures available yesterday indicated that since the Roosevelt Administration launched its farm relief program, farmers have received from the Treasury as loans on their farms and crops, in the form of benefits or subsidies for reducing production and from Government purchases of farm products approximately $600,000,000. Estimates indicate that by spring the farmers will receive at least $650,000,000 more or a total of something more than $1,200,000,000.

Where Funds Went.

The latest report of the R. F. C., issued yesterday as of the close of business on October 31, shows that the banks and trust companies have received from that agency $1,308,123,879; the railroads $386,955,308, mortgage loan companies $190,204,085 and insurance companies $86,936,641. These figures represent payments. Thus the indebtedness cash advances and do not reflect rein each case is less than indicated in these figures. Banks and trust companies on October 31 actually owed the R. F. C. only $666,462,778 or about one-half the sum borrowed.

The R. F. C. report showed advances to farm groups or for the promotion of agriculture as of October 31 totaled approximately $452,000,000 of which slightly more than $143,000,000 had been repaid to the Government corporation.

The items on the R. F. C. report were as follows:

	Total advanced.	Sum repaid.
To Secretary of Agriculture for crop loans	$135.000.000	$20.000.000
For capital of regional agricultural credit corps	44.500.000	.....
Expenses regional agricultural corps.	2.521.381	.....

To Farm Credit Administration	12.000.000	.....
Loans to regional credit corps	150.209.578	99.888.469
Loans to Federal land banks	36.300.000	.....
Loans to livestock credit corps	12.566.733	9.336.716
Loans to joint stock land banks	12.505.540	412.180
Loans to Federal intermediate credit banks	9.250.000	9.250.000
Loans to agricultural crdeit corps.	5.117.736	2.936.565
Loans to Secretary of Agriculture to purchase cotton.	3.300.000	.....
Loans to aid financing sale of farm surpluses in foreign markets	4.000.000	88.209
Loans to finance carrying and orderly marketing of farm products	4.591.705	1.908.267
Loans to commodity corporations	468.587	.....

Loans on Corn.

The Commodity Corporation has just been established and has hardly started to function. Its first loans were on cotton. For advancing 10 cents a pound on cotton the R. F. C. has allocated to this corporation $250,000,000. This corporation also will make the loans on corn at 50 cents a bushel and it is estimated that about $150,000,000 will be needed for that purpose.

In addition to the loans recited, the Farm Credit Administration, through the Federal Land Banks, is speeding up its program to stop farm mortgage foreclosures, being allotted $2,000,000,000 for that purpose by Congress.

Aside from Government loans, the AAA is now distributing $110,000,000 in benefit payments to cotton planters and has started to send out the first of the $70,000,000 to be distributed now to wheat farmers who have signed reduction contracts. Another $40,000,000 will be sent to these farmers next summer. By January 1 the AAA will start paying out $180,000,000 of the estimated $350,000,000 in benefits to corn and hog producers.

Sums from Treasury.

These sums will come from the Treasury, which will be reimbursed by processing taxes now being levied on cotton, wheat, corn and hogs. In addition the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has spent about $35,000,000 in the purchase of hogs, and in the next few months will spend about $15,000,000 more. Its program to stabilize butter prices at around 24 cents through purchases for relief distribution will cost between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000.

When the Middle Western farm leaders start talking about the farmer being a "forgotten man" it is possible Secretary Wallace will confront them with these statistics—he may refer to them in his speeches at Des Moines. Mr. Wallace on his return from Iowa will address a meeting of representatives of land grant colleges at Chicago next Monday and a farmers' meeting at Muncie, Ind., next Tuesday. He will arrive back in the Capital Wednesday of next week.

Miller Handles Mine-Election

He Supervised Voting in Nicaragua; Goes to Pittsburgh.

A man who obtained experience at supervising elections in Nicaragua was named yesterday by the National Labor board to manage the voting for labor bargaining representatives in Pennsylvania's "captive" soft coal mines.

Jesse I. Miller, now assistant chairman of the board, and in 1920 a special United States representative in the Central American Republic, was sent to Pittsburgh last night to take charge.

Helping him will be Dr. William Leiserson, secretary of the board, who will be stationed at Pittsburgh to supervise Alleghany County voting; Richard Neustadt, Federal employment officer at Philadelphia, to Uniontown for Fayette County; James F. Dewey and Fred L. Keightley, Labor Department conciliators, to Carmichael and California, respectively, for Greene and Washington Counties.

Senator Wager, boar dchairman, said 20,000 men will vote in the selection of spokesmen to negotiate an agreement on working conditions with the representatives of the steel mills which own the "Captives,"—so-called because all their output goes to the steel plants.

R.F.C. Has Lent 3,234 Millions; 935 Returned

Loans to 6,340 Banks Total $1,656,103,000; 49 Per Cent Repaid.

The Government has made cash advances of $3,234,762,000 through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation since that agency began operations February 2, 1932, the corporation reported yesterday. Repayments amount to $935,481,000.

Banks and trust companies were the largest borrowers. Loans authorized to 6,340 institutions aggregated $1,656,103,000. Of this amount, $196,313,800 was cancelled or withdrawn, $151,665,515 remains to the credit of the borrowers and $1,308,123,000 was disbursed in cash, of which $641,661,100, or 49 per cent, has been repaid.

Preferred Stock Purchased.

Since the passage of the emergency banking act, the corporation has agreed to purchase $60,670,500 of preferred stock in 138 institutions and $25,740,000 of capital notes and debentures in four institutions to aid in the organization or reorganization of banks and trust companies. The corporation has authorized loans, secured by preferred stock, aggregating $15,076,500 to 30 institions.

In addition to these authorizations, the RFC has made conditional agreements to subscribe for $114,980,000 of preferred stock or capital notes and debentures in banks and trust companies, and $11,025,000 of preferred stock in insurance companies. Authorization of funds on these conditional agreements is awaiting compliance with conditions.

Loans Made for Farmers.

Among the larger cash advances were $135,000,000 to the Secretary of Agriculture for crop loans to farmers, $63,345,700 to the Secretary of the Treasury for purchase of Home Loan Bank stock, $44,500,000 for capital of the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporations, $20,600,000 to the Land Bank Commissioner to make loans to joint stock land banks and to farmers under the emergency farm mortgage act, $12,000,000 to the governor of the Farm Credit Administration under the farm credit act, $299,985,000 in States and Territories for relief purposes under the emergency relief and construction act, $207,668,897 to States for relief purposes upon certificates from the Federal Emergency Relief administrator, and $56,174,339 to aid in financing self-liquidating construction projects.

Rails Borrow 386 Millions.

Included in the repayments are $20,000,000 from the Secretary of Agriculture on crop loans, $912,333,979 from various banks, railroads and other corporations.

Loans made to railroads totaled $386,955,309, of which $56,798,796 has been repaid. The biggest borrower among the railroads was the Baltimore & Ohio, which borrowed $69,552,378, none of which has yet been repaid. The Pennsylvania Railroad has repaid in full a loan of $28,900,000.

2 Held in Shielding Of Killing Suspect

New York Pair Linked to Massacre Fugitive.

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Two men were held here today on charges of conspiracy to harbor Verne Miller, sought by Federal agents in connection with the massacre of five persons with a machine gun in Kansas City last June.

The prisoners said they were Abrham Shait, 34, truckman, and Herman Borenstein, 21, his employe.

Authorities said Shait admitted he instructed Borenstein to obtain automobile license plates, which Federal Agent H. Clancy said were seen Thursday in Chicago on a speeding automobile which Miller drove.

League Opens Palace Today.

Geneva, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Plans were completed tonight for the inauguration tomorrow of the new League of Nations palace.

Ickes Hits Philadelphia Mayor for U. S. Job Digs

Public Works Administrator Ickes in a sharply worded letter last night rebuked Mayor J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, for criticism of the Public Works Board and accused him of failing to cooperate in the Government's reemployment program.

"Probably your state of mind," Ickes said, "is not unconnected with the fact that you are personally engaged in a political campaign."

U. S. Carries Kidnaping War To Touhy Gang

Keenan, Kellys' Foe, Ready for New Trial; Factor Accuses Prisoners.

St. Paul, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The Federal Government has primed its legal guns for the second big salvo against kidnaping beginning November 8, when four members of Chicago's "terrible Touhy" gang go to trial here.

Fresh from Oklahoma City, where he prosecuted George "Machine Gun" Kelly and Harvey Bailey for the Urschel abduction, the "ace" of the Government's racket prosecutors, Joseph B. Keenan, will come here to direct legal procedure against alleged kidnapers of William Hamm, jr., million St. Paul brewer.

Prosecution of Roger Touhy, Willie Sharkey, Eddie "Father" McFadden and August "Gloomy Gus" Schaefer, will be the second big test of the "Lindbergh" law.

The brewer is expected to be the star witness against Touhy and three associates. The Government contends they received $100,000 ransom for releasing Hamm after four days.

Chicago, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—John Factor, millionaire speculator who was held prisoner 12 days by kidnapers, today said he was certain of their identity and was ready to prosecute.

Factor's statement came shortly after newspapers said Roger Touhy and four other members of his gang had been identified as the abductors who obtained at least $70,000 ransom.

One suspect is held in jail here and the others reportedly identified are prisoners in St. Paul.

"I'm sure," said Factor, "they got the right men. I'm ready to throw my entire resources into the prosecution."

Crawford Case Starts Today

Failing, Alleged Loudoun Slayer to Ask Change of Venue.

Twelve men, all prominent in the official and financial life of Loudoun County, have been called by the State for the hearing today at Leesburg on the motion to quash the indictment against George Crawford, accused of slaying Mrs. Agnes Boeing Ilsley and her maid, Mrs. Nina Buckner. Motion to quash is based on grounds no Negroes were summoned to serve on the indicting grand jury.

Those called are Judge J. R. Alexander, of the Loudoun County Circuit Court, which indicted Crawford; E. O. Russell, court clerk; Sheriff E. S. Adrian; five members of the county Board of Supervisors, M. H. Whitmore, P. J. Coleman, Dr. W. H. Grubb, H. C. Rogers and Irving Leith; Bruce McIntosh, president of the Peoples National Bank; H. C. Thompson, president of the Round Hill National Bank; T. U. Dudley, president of the Middleburg National Bank, and C. H. Osborne, chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

Charles H. Houston, of Howard University, defense attorney, has called as witnesses 41 Negroes, the judge, the clerk of court, the sheriff and two members of the grand jury which indicted Crawford. A plea in abatement will be filed, to be argued today, claiming the accused can not have a fair trial in the county.

Grau Arouses Dictator Fears

Emergency Decree Framed to Control Press, Suppress Foes.

Havana, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The Beleaguered administration of Cuba visibly stiffened tonight and began preparing stern measures to restore order as opposition factors rejected the suggestion that they help govern the island.

Dr. Antonio Gutierrez, secretary of war, revealed tonight that a law of national defense, giving the government "extraordinary powers" was in preparation.

The law probably will be promulgated as a presidential decree this week, he said.

Gutierrez said the measure would authorize the administration to put an end to "false news" directed against the government.

It would also empower the government to use strong measures to halt antigovernment conspiracies.

In come circles the statement was considered a forewarning of an iron-handed dictatorship.

Settle Hopes to Start Balloon Flight Tonight

Chicago, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Lieut. Comdr. T. G. W. Settle, Navy, tonight said that it was possible he and his aid, Maj. Chester L. Fordney, Marine Corps, might take off tomorrow night or Tuesday on their projected balloon ascension to the stratosphere.

Coughlin Sees Currency Back On Silver Basis

Priest States Roosevelt Will Rid Country of Money "Tyranny."

Detroit, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, predicted in a speech today that "the President is about to remonetize silver."

Asserting "one of the greatest moral issues in our Nation today is to cancel the money system which, since the year 1873, has been in vogue," Father Coughlin said:

"There is nothing wrong with the national recovery act. The fault lies with its team mate—the currency."

Father Coughlin spoke over an independent radio hookup.

Regarding the present monetary standard, Father Coughlin added:

"We must replace it with one that is honest, sound and adequate for the needs of our citizens."

"Sooner than you suspect, silver will be remonetized. Government certificates soundly and solidly backed by silver that has been restored to its normal and natural value in relation to gold, will begin to pass from hand to hand of a citizenry liberated from the tyranny of the international banker—liberated from the fear created by a famine of money.

"Be it remembered that four-fifths of the world's population are on the silver standard and can trade with us, the great manufacturing nation, only on that basis."

"The President is not a miracle man, but he is resolute and courageous. He has not forgotten his public vow which pledged him to a sound and adequate money.

"He still remembers his sworn promise to drive the money changers from the temple. It is either Roosevelt or ruin."

Consult Jesus, Lecturer Urges

Rev. Smith Deeries Quest for Happiness in Wealth Alone.

The Nation was urged to consult Jesus Christ in this crucial period yesterday by the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, of Catholic University, in the first of a series of nine sermons on the Washington Catholic Hour broadcast by Station WOL from the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

"Christ ought to be consulted in this time of crisis," he said. "Virtue and sacrifice have not lost their power to contribute to the happiness of men and nations. It is utterly silly to sit around moaning and wailing over the loss of material prosperity and for the return of the boom days when the secret of happiness for all men is close at hand.

"The codes of men will be but empty gestures unless they are supported by recognition of the code of God. All of these facts are but additional evidence of the age-long pursuit of happiness.

"The days of easy money and untrammelled comfort did this Nation not one whit of good. They made us soft and godless. Their return, their recovery, even though it were possible, is not advisable either for the country as a whole or for the individuals who make it up."

U. S. Denounces Pact With Greece

to justify the fugitive's apprehension and commitment for trial.

"There can be no doubt that the question of criminal intent referred to by the Hellenic government would be fairly and judicially passed upon by the courts in the United States. I am to add that my Government considers the decision utterly untenable and a clear violation of the American-Hellenic treaty of extradition, signed at Athens on May 6, 1931.

Treaty Assailed.

"Inasmuch as the Greek authorities have now seen fit on two occasions to deny the just requests of the United States, made under the provisions of the above-mentioned treaty, it is apparent that this treaty, although similar in terms to treaties which the United States has found effective in extraditing fugitives from other countries, can not be relied upon to effect the extradition of fugitives who have fled to Greece.

"My Government therefore considers that from the American point of view the treaty is entirely useless. Accordingly, I am instructed to give formal notice herewith of my Government's denunciation of the treaty, with a view to its termination at the earliest date possible under its pertinent provisions."

No reply has been received from the Greek government.

Action Defended.

Athens, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The semi-official newspaper Vradyni, commenting on the denunciation by Washington of the Greco-American extradition treaty yesterday, says that the action of the United States Government "makes us feel deeply sorry."

"The Greek government," the newspaper continues, "was unable to do anything to prevent the United States' decision. Greek justice is entirely independent and the United States Government could never expect Greece to abolish this independence for the sake of the United States, thus violating the protection afforded under our law to a guest on our soil. A contrary course would be cowardly."

Insull, apparently undisturbed by the denunciation of the treaty, took a walk in the suburbs this afternoon.

Pay Rolls, Jobs Over Maryland Set New Mark

Former's Gain Is Double, Showing Actual Wages Much Higher.

The gain in total pay rolls in Maryland was nearly twice as large as the gain in employment in September over August, the State Commissioner of Labor and Statistics announced yesterday.

Employment gained 5.5 per cent, while total pay rolls were up 9.7 per cent, showing higher wages actually are being paid to both old and new employes. September is the sixth consecutive month to show these gains in Maryland. Employment was higher than since June, 1931, while pay rolls were higher than since September, 1931.

Factory employment in September was 37.8 per cent higher than in March, the low point of the year, while pay rolls were 69.3 per cent higher than in March. The increase in both pay rolls and employment from August to September was greater than for any similar monthly gain in the last 10 years, it was reported.

Allotments of public works funds to State and local projects already total $4,493,767, while applications for another $8,613,000 are still pending. About 40 per cent, or $1,797,500 of the present allotments, will go directly for wages in the State. These totals do not include the Federal building projects being financed in the State by Public Works money.

At the NRA ball where a good time was had by all. View of the ballroom floor at the Mayflower Hotel during gala dance of those helping Gen. Johnson administer the national recovery act. This was the first general social event of the division.

THOUGH various departments and divisions are required to do much extra work in connection with the relief programs, requiring in many instances overtime work for employes, they apparently can not be given assistance by the agency for whom the work is done.

Comptroller General McCarl has held that the Home Owners Loan Corporation could not lawfully pay for equipment and salaries of clerks in the Treasury Department that would be used to handle the increase of work brought upon the offices of the Treasurer of the United States through the corporation's activities.

The chairman of the Home Loan Board pointed out in his request the amount of increased work devolving on the Treasury Department and, therefore, requested authorization by the Comptroller General for the corporation to provide personnel and equipment needed for the work. Citing legal provisions for his decision, the Comptroller General denied the request.

Iron Ring on Finger Brings Rescue Squad

The fire rescue squad sped over slippery streets last night to answer a call for aid in Chevy Chase.

Arriving at 3815 Legation street, the firemen rushed in to find Jerry Freedman, 7 years old, the center of a family disturbance. An iron ring was lodged on his finger.

Ogburn Sees Price Faults In Swope Plan

"Business Congress" Idea Dangerous, Unjust He Declares.

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP).—While he ranks its author as one of the most far-sighted philosophers of the industrial world Prof. William G. Ogburn considers Gerard Swope's new plan for American industry to be "dangerous and unjust."

Swope, Chairman of General Electric Co., proposed this week that a central government of industry be formed to take over enforcement of the NRA codes and to serve as a sort of "business congress."

Prof. Ogburn, noted University of Chicago sociologist and director of the Hoover social trends committee's research, sees in the proposal the same fault which led him to resign from the NRA staff.

"It forgets prices" he said in an interview.

"It would be dangerous for the public and unjust to the consumer. This would be so even if all businessmen were as public-spirited as Mr. Swope."

The Swope proposal, in Prof. Ogburn's opinion, would mean freedom for the rise of powerful combines or cartels, some of which, like the price cartels of Europe, would set prices.

"The dispute would not, however, be between consumer and industry," he said.

Prof. Ogburn praised the Swope proposal as an attempt, even if he found it an unsatisfactory one.

"Government and industry have come to have more regulatory effect on individual behavior than ever before," he said.

"They supplant, in a measure, the family, the church, and the local community."

$50 Under Rug In Home Stolen

Sneak Thieves Keep City Police Busy Over Holiday.

Andrew Knell, 630 M street southwest, told police someone entered his dwelling through an unlocked kitchen window and stole $50 in bills from beneath a rug in the bathroom floor.

Her pocketbook, containing $28, was stolen from her desk drawer at Seventh and H streets northeast, Mrs. Helen Douchette, saleswoman, 3914 Thirteenth street northwest, told police.

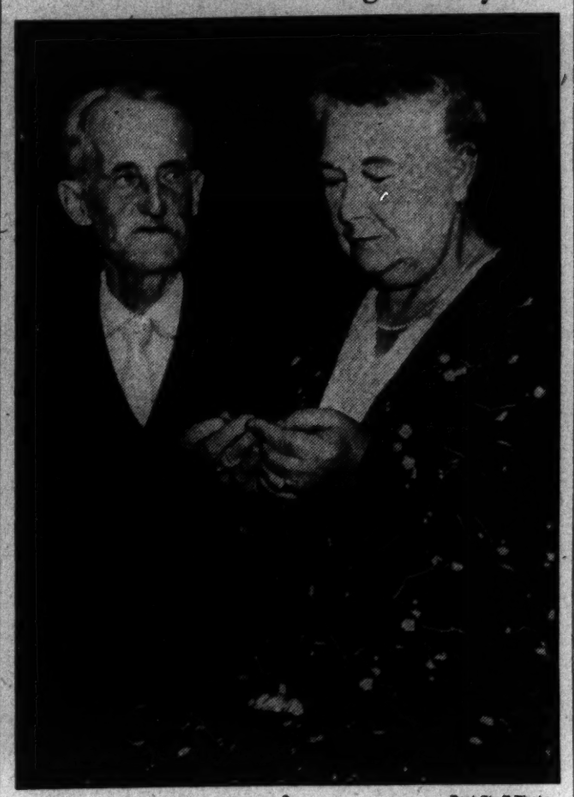
Married 50 Years Ago Today



Post Staff Photo.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN FEAST, of Woodside, Md., who will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary today. They were married in Washington on November 6, 1883. They are giving a party for 200 persons tonight.

Couple Will Be Hosts to Guests in Hall of Church.

Their fiftieth wedding anniversary will be celebrated today by Mr. and Mrs. John Feast, of 8906 Georgia avenue, Woodside, Md., when they will give a party for more than 200 guests.

Childless, they are giving their own party. Because their home is too small to hold all their friends, the affair will be held in the hall of the Woodside Methodist Church.

Wed in Washington.

The couple was married in Washington on November 6, 1883. After living ten years in Washington, they moved to Woodside. Ten years later, in 1903, they moved into the house they still occupy.

Mr. Feast, now 74 years old, is a native of Baltimore. Mrs. Feast, four years younger, was born in Washington. She was Miss Catharine E. Serrin, daughter of Daniel C. Serrin.

Mr. Feast served the government 46 years, retiring in 1928. He entered the Federal service in 1882, when he took charge of arranging the floral decorations for State and other functions at the White House.

16 Years in White House.

After 16 years at the White House he worked 10 years in the Government Printing Office, and for 20 more in the Department of the Interior.

For 10 years Mr. Feast has been an officer of the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department, and his total service with the department is 16 years. For eight years he was vice president, and for two years, president. He also was president of the Montgomery County Volunteer Firemen's Association in 1928.

Christian Zeal Held Big Need

Pastor Demands New Deal, Not Merely Shuffle in Present Crisis.

"This is an age of fire," declared Dr. Henry H. Ranck in his sermon yesterday at Grace Reformed Church. "We call it a machine age, but the machines are powerless without fire, the energy to drive them.

"The need of the hour is for real Christians with the fire, zeal and enthusiasm of Christ in their hearts. Our Nation is in a mess due to dishonesty, wickedness and sin. Think of the enormous losses of many of us from banks and investment companies here.

"They call this also an age of knowledge and education. Never has there been so much education. But we need more than mere knowledge, for no one is more vicious than the educated bad man.

"Our social and economical order needs some sort of new deal, not simply a new shuffle. No system will work if men are not honest. If the NRA fails it will be because of folk who chisel and dodge—who will promise, but not perform."

Large Nations Urged as Units In World Pact

Envoy to U. S. Discounts Wilson Theory All Stand Equal.

Asserting the Wilsonian theory of equality among all nations has proved impracticable, Dr. Ferdinand Veverka, Minister of Czechoslovakia to the United States, in a speech at the close of the Academy of World Economics at Goucher College, Baltimore, declared a lasting world fraternity could be built only by the larger and more powerful units.

He suggested Europe as a whole, Russia, the British Empire, the United States and Latin America as posible units.

William, R. Castle, jr., Undersecretary of State during the Hoover Administration, warned against a too rapid pace toward the millennium, asserting that economic recovery here without regard to the rest of the world was unsound.

Other speakers were Dr. Leonide Pitamic, Minister of Jugoslakia to this country, and William S. Thorp, chief of the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Dr. Dorothy Stimson, dean of the college, opened the closing session and Dr. Jacob H. Hollander, of Johns Hopkins University, presided.

Dr. William F. Notz, of Georgetown University, outlined the purposes of the Academy.

Columbia Heights Club To Hear NRA Speaker

The Columbia Heights Citizens Association tomorrow night will hear an address by William C. Grace, a member of the NRA speaking staff, in the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Thirteenth and Fairmont streets northwest.

Mr. Grace will speak on National recovery. Committee reports will be given on questions of public school boxing, prohibition and enforcement, street improvements and police protection.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BE AMERICA'S GREATEST STUNT GIRL

A SUDDEN NERVE-RACKING swing upward from a racing auto into a hurtling plane... It's all in the day's work for Mary Wiggins, famous stunt girl who also dives on fire into fire and does the suspension glide in mid-air while hanging only by her teeth. It means something when she says, "Camels never give me edgy nerves even when I smoke a lot."

JOE: I'm so glad to see you, Sue. Were you nervous during your first flight?

SUE: Not a bit. I smoked Camels all the way, and I never felt better! I haven't worried about nerves since I took your advice and changed to Camels.

A MATCHLESS BLEND

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

LISTEN TO MARY WIGGINS, greatest of all girl stunt performers. She says:

"I have to be sure my nerves are healthy to do my stunts, changing from a speeding auto to a plane, the high dive on fire into fire, wing walking while up in a plane, and the high-altitude parachute jump. As to smoking, I've found that Camels don't interfere with healthy nerves. I've tried all the brands. Camels are milder and better in flavor. They do not give me edgy nerves even when I am smoking a lot."

You'll like that rich Camel flavor and mildness. And your nerves will tell you the difference there is in Camel's costlier tobaccos.

South America Trade Beckons Russian Envoy

Litvinoff Recognition Trip May Be Extended as Gesture to Latins.

Moscow, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff may proceed to South America after his recognition negotiations at Washington this week. It was indicated in semiofficial quarters today.

The Soviet government is anxious to make expected recognition by the United States an entering wedge for recognition among all American nations. It was felt the chief reason for failure of Latin-American governments to recognize the Soviet Union had been Washington's refusal to do so.

Political circles have long been convinced that the United States influenced Mexico in her breach of diplomatic relations with Russia, and hope President Roosevelt's move will result in a return of normal relations with Mexico.

Meanwhile, Soviet leaders prepared over the week-end for nation-wide celebrations on Tuesday, the sixteenth anniversary of the bolshevik revolution and organization of the Soviet Union. The day coincides with the arrival of Litvinoff in the United States. This fact will be emphasized in speeches forecasting early recognition and the swift development of Russia as a world power.

The leaders hope that the Washington conversations will leave details of problems, such as old czarist debts to America, to negotiations.

G. P. Kimmel, Jr., In Grave Condition

7-Year-Old Boy Undergoes Second Operation.

George P. Kimmel, jr., 7, was in a critical condition at the Episcopal Eye Ear and Throat Hospital last night after it was found necessary to operate for a bloodstream infection, the second major operation in as many days.

An operation to remove a bone fragment pressing on his brain was performed a few hours after his parents completed a dash from Europe to be at his bedside.

George was brought from Fork Union, Va., Military Academy October 24 for a mastoid operation. His parents, who were in London, were notified. On October 28 his condition became grave and they started their race for America, arriving Friday.

Man Kills Woman, Son, Wounds Self

Boy Believed Slain Trying to Stop Quarrel.

Los Angeles, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—William P. Leyden, 49, newly married motor car mechanic, killed his son, William Leyden, 15, and his former friend, Mrs. Effie M. Wright, and wounded himself with a revolver today, according to police.

All were found at the home of Mrs. Wright, a widow.

Physicians believe Leyden will die. Detectives said the boy, a high-school student, apparently attempted to interfere in a quarrel.

Leyden's bride of two months, who came here from Brimingham, Ala., said she believed he had become demented.

Farley to Support Whole McKee Slate

he first smiled, then frowned, and remained silent.

McKee's supporters, jubilant over Farley's arrival and his statement, still had hoped President Roosevelt might have sent some message. Instead, there was only silence, and the Postmaster General's declaration.

"I assumed every one knew that when I announced my support of McKee, I, of course, was supporting his fellow candidates upon the Recovery party ticket," Farley said. "Naturally, I am going to vote for my friend, James J. Hoey, for borough president of Manhattan."

With the inevitable interpretation being put upon the Postmaster General's remarks, however, the most seasoned political observers admitted the mayoralty race now is a toss-up. It is the first campaign since before the war in which the issue has been left in doubt over the preelection week-end.

Meanwhile, Raymond Moley, formerly one of the President's chief advisers, made known his intention to back McKee and tonight made an address for the independent Democrat.

John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, predicted reelection of O'Brien as Tammany brought its final drive toward its finish. He said O'Brien would carry the city's five boroughs.

"The mayor's plurality," said Curry, breaking his silence for the first time in the campaign, "will equal that by which the fusion candidate was defeated in the city election four years ago and the candidate who deserted his party will be third in the race."

Mention of Minister Here Stirs Ecuador

Guyaquil, Ecuador, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Reports that Eloy Alfaro, Ecuadorean Minister to Washington, had announced his acceptance of the candidacy for the presidency of the republic, caused a sensation here today.

Cultural Week-End Note

Forgetting American Troubles to Ponder on German Joys

By William Harlan Hale.

The psychologists, I think, call them "introverts." They are the people all of whose attentions are fixed inwardly upon themselves and who thus tend to become removed from the wider world around them.

If we do not stop discussing our own politico-economic ills at the expense of everything else, we shall become introverts too. Hence the reason for this little week-end note on foreign culture, whose mission is to take us out of ourselves for a while and carry us to a different work across the sea.

The German Nazi government, that most remarkable of the creations of modern man, has just had another inspiration. After having heard so much about our American chambers of commerce, it finally decided that it could stand it no longer, and must do us one better. So it suddenly gave birth to the idea of a German "chamber of culture," a "kulturkammer."

What is the difference between culture and commerce? The New Deal American thinks commerce should be controlled, while culture should be given free play. The New Deal German is not quite so sure about controlling commerce, but he knows that the one thing that has really got to be controlled is culture.

And a chamber is the way to do it. You divide your chamber into several subchambers, each representing one of the arts: music, graphic arts, letters, theater, cinema, radio. You make it compulsory for an artist to join the subchamber in his field. Then you place on top of the whole gleaming structure Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Popular Enlightenment and Propaganda, who will direct from day to day the work that is to be done in each department. If a member of the Chamber of Culture disagrees, he is expelled from it, and that means he loses his license to practice art in Germany.

Think it over. Do not scoff at it as being reactionary, mediaeval, barbaric, or the production of a group of diseased minds. Think of the tremendous possibilities it opens up for German art!

Are too many paintings of nudes being executed by German artists? Then all Dr. Goebbels has to do is to pass the word down that: "Beginning December 1st, inst., the painting of nudes will be prohibited and artists shall turn to painting battle scenes. The list of battles eligible for painting, and the exact details of the uniforms worn in those battles, may be obtained from the Ministry of Defense."

Are too many lyrics and love poems being written? Dr. Goebbels need simply say, "Beginning December 1, inst., German poets will studiously adhere to the following formula: For every one love lyric written they shall write four Nazi hymns, and two 100-line panegyrics on Hitler. No verse forms of French origin, such as the Alexandrine, ballade, or rime royal, are to be used."

Are German musicians composing music which is too radical in its tonality, too much like jazz, Strawinsky, or the like? Then the edict is: "All music containing such elements as whole-tone scales, series of diminished sevenths, syncopated rhythms, &c., &c., is hereby condemned as being Bolshevist propaganda. Henceforth no music whatsoever shall be written in a minor key, lest the virile spirit of German listeners be depressed. Trombones, trumpets and drums are to be substituted wherever possible for strings and wood-wind instruments. The list of permissable key-relationships may be secured on application from the police president of the City of Berlin."

Thus the German government will take the leadership in making order out of chaos of modern art. And—better yet—it may even help in eliminating from further attention many of those classic artists whose memory still weighs upon our people and our schools today.

Take just the German classics alone. Why, Dr. Goebbels will perform almost a complete housecleaning there, and do it rapidly. He will have to suppress, for instance, the works of Goethe, Schiller, Bach, Kant, Nietzsche and Haendel—to mention just a few. He will have to banish the memory of these men from every loyal German's mind.

Why? Because Goethe was an internationalist, a pacifist, an opponent of Prussian revival. Schiller was the first great champion of democracy in Germany. Bach, world-master of music, had not the slightest interest in Teutonic race problems or aspirations. The philosopher Kant had several run-ins with the Prussian authorities. Nietzsche openly despised his compatriots, and Haendel left home to live in England.

It's too bad, perhaps, but all these fellows simply have to go. They, and the others like them, lacked patriotism, loyalty to German nationalist ideals, and therefore they lacked discipline. Their influence was therefore dark and subversive.

If they were practising artists today and forced to belong to Dr. Goebbels' Chamber of Culture, they would last about five minutes.

Old Shrine Yields Relics Of Pre-Historic Chinese

Traces of an ancient shrine, believed to have been used by prehistoric Chinese as a place of worship to the earth goddess Hou T'u, have been unearthed in the Shan-si Province by archeologists of the Freer Gallery of Art of the Smithsonian Institution.

Excavations yielded brick and tiles with Chinese inscriptions, which shed considerable light on the old religious practices of the Chinese. The work was conducted by two native archeologists under the direction of C. W. Bishop, of the Freer Gallery of Art.

The shrine is believed to have been erected in 113 B. C. by the Emperor Han Wu Ti and, although abandoned for nearly 2,000 years, the spot still has a supernatural reputation in the region. This aided the explorers to locate it.

Although a goddess, Hou T'u was not pictured by her worshippers as a woman. As far as the archeologists can learn, she was not given any human form. Worship to her was not officially recognized in the early days, being practiced only by village priestesses.

About two centuries before the birth of Christ, the old goddess came into power, coincident with the rise of the western Han dynasty, which came from the people. They were ready to worship mountains, trees and stars. Regional beliefs were incorporated into the state religion.

It was the sixth of the Han emperors who conducted the solemn sacrifices to Hou T'u. Upon a great earthen mound, sheep and swine were sacrificed to the earthen goddess, with the yellow-robed emperor officiating.

This continued to be the official shrine until the Christian era, when the eastern Han dynasty came into power. The capital was moved to the Honan Province, and a new mound to the goddess was erected. The old one passed from memory; and is believed to have been located only after archeologists had pursued numerous false clews.

The objects found, which include stone knives, iron arrowheads and shell and bone instruments, are being studied in China.

Reich Menaced, Hitler Asserts

"Have Seen War With My Own Eyes," Is Plea for Peace.

Elbing, Germany, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Chancellor Hitler told thousands gathered here in East Prussia today that the hands-off policy practiced by Germany in regard to other nations' domestic affairs entitled Germany to the same consideration from foreign powers.

Today was Guy Fawkes Day in England and he referred to the gunpowder plot of 1605 by saying: "When persons attempted to dynamite the British Parliament, they chopped their heads off, and they still celebrate the day."

Hitler reaffirmed Germany's desire for peace saying:

"I have seen war with my own eyes—more than many other statesmen can say—and I repeat that Germany desires nothing but to live in peace with her neighbors."

The chancellor said no one was threatened more than Germany, particularly East Prussia.

McElroy Kidnaper Hopes for Mercy

Life Term for Brother Heartens Friends.

Kansas City, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Friends of Walter McGee, condemned leader of the kidnapers of Miss Mary McElroy, today seized upon a life imprisonment sentence meted out to his brother, George, as an avenue for his escape from the gallows.

"I believe this verdict will give Walter's counsel a strong talking point for commutation of the death sentence," said Mrs. Alberta Brewer, a sister of the kidnapers. "If it will save Walter's life I will be more satisfied."

George McGee, 22 years old, was sentenced to a life term late last night by a Circuit Court jury which convicted him of participating in the $30,000 kidnaping of the 25-year-old daughter of City Manager Henry F. McElroy.

British Jews Boycott Reich

Empire-Wide Appeal Asks Refusal to Purchase German Goods.

London, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A Jewish boycott on German goods was voted today by 500 delegates representing 150,000 Jews in all parts of the country.

The resolution appealed to Jews in all parts of the British empire to abstain from purchasing or using German goods so long as Jews in Germany are denied full equality.

"We are here to meet the challenge thrown in the face of the Jewish people by the Hitler regime," said P. Horowitz, chairman. The Hitler regime is a challenge to the Jews of the world.

Miss Simpson to Discuss Fiction for Children

"Better Fiction for Children" will be the subject taken by Miss L. Jewel Simpson, of Baltimore, assistant superintendent of the elementary schools of Maryland, when she speaks Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Bethesda Elementary School.

A diplay of children's books will be held in conjunction with Book Week.

British House To Argue War Debt Deadlock

MacDonald Faces Queries Tuesday on Failure to Obtain Reduction.

London, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—The deadlock on war debts between Great Britain and United States will be aired in the House of Commons Tuesday.

Questions on the mission of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross to Washington will be prominent among the 50 formal interpellations which Prime Minister MacDonald and his ministers will be pressed to answer on the first day of Parliament.

It is believed Great Britain will meet its december 15 payment with another "token" $10,000,000, but the cabinet may not have an opportunity to make a formal decision before the House meets.

New Economic Issued Feared.

The only possible danger is that the failure to negotiate a debt settlement in Washington may result in the United States and Great Britain girding for battle over a new economic issue—that of money exchange controls.

Comment on this phase of the situation will not be forthcoming until after Secretary of State Hull has been heard and Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain speaks in the House.

It is expected attempts will be made to whip debts into a live parliamentary issue again, but observers think such a program is unlikely of success.

More Token Payments Forecast.

Chamberlain, as the government spokesman, will carefully refrain, it is believed, from placing any blame for the Leith-Ross mission's failure on the shoulders of the Roosevelt administration.

The British official view is likely to be one of disappointment over the Anglo-American inability to reach a final settlement. American observers here have reported to Washington that the British public is apathetic toward the whole debts question.

A continuance of token payments generally will be accepted by the British as the best means of handling the problem.

ties across the Chicago & North Western tracks at Lawton and forced the train to halt. Then the men broke seals of the cars—a Federal offense, the governor pointed out—and released the live stock bound for Sioux City.

The first attempt to unload the animals was made at Pierson. The train had stopped there to switch one car on a siding and one of the stock cars was opened by pickets who drove two head of cattle out before the train got under way again.

Sheriff Blames Reds.

Herring said he received a report of the affair from the sheriff of Woodbury County. The crowd was described by the sheriff as "mostly 'reds' from Sioux City." Railroad detectives on the train were helpless to protect the shipment.

"Both the sheriff and the Mayor of Lawton," Herring said, "have promised to call me again in the morning. I told them that the stopping of the train was a Federal proposition as it is interfering with interstate shipments."

Oklahoma City, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A movement of Oklahoma farmers to withhold agricultural products from the market until cost of production is realized, is scheduled to begin at noon tomorrow.

"Treasure Hunt" Ends In Car Death; 5 Hurt

Windsor, Ontario, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A social "treasure hunt" ended in tragedy today with the death of Miss Winifred Hindle, one of a party of six, the rest of whom were injured in an automobile crash near Sandwich.

Those injured were Ethel McMullen, of Windsor; Lucille Stevenson, of Detroit; Harold Cook, Windsor; Martin Simpson, of Walkerville, and Robert Williams, Windsor.

Cities Urged to Retain Playground Facilities

"Unless a city is bankrupt, it should not give up playgrounds for its little children, even in times of depression," Mrs. Philip O. Coffin, of the National Recreation Association, said yesterday in a message to Washingtonians from New York.

The association's reports, she said, show a need for additional constructive activities to occupy enforced leisure of the unemployed. Attendance increases of 63 per cent at indoor recreation centers and 70 per cent at community centers were reported in 1930 and 1931.

King Will Address Parent-Teacher Group

Senator William H. King will address a meeting of parents and teachers at McKinley High School tomorrow evening on "The Public School Situation in Washington."

Other speakers are the principal of the school, Frank C. Daniel, and Miss Alida Bowler of the United States Children's Bureau. Miss Bowler will speak on "Guidance in the High School" in connection with the guidance program now being worked out at McKinley.

To Discuss Alien Training.

Manual for Immigrants Committee, District of Columbia D. A. R., will meet today at 2 p. m. in the library of the Americanization School, Tenth and H streets northwest. The chairman, Mrs. Sterling Bockoven, will present Miss Mary Anderson, of the Woman's Bureau, Department of Labor, whose subject will be "From Alien to Citizen."

Taxed Dice

Judge Suggests Legalized Gambling for Levies.

Chicago, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Gambling, where it exists, should be operated for the benefit of the public rather than enemies of the public, Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green declared today.

Elaborating on a suggestion made from the bench—to license the flourishing gambling industry in Chicago, the jurist said:

"I am against gambling. It has always bred evil and always will. But the fact remains it exists. It is an important underworld business.

"We can't wink at that fact, and I believe gambling should be licensed.

"It then could be operated honestly for the benefit of the public. Revenue which now goes to sustain organized crime could be collected for schools and other worthy institutions.

"Some resort cities have found local taxation unnecessary after licensing gambling."

Supreme Court Will Test New Home Aid Law

First of Emergency Acts to Be Argued Orally Here This Week.

(Associated Press.)

The validity of emergency legislation designed to protect homes against foreclosure will be argued orally this week in the United States Supreme Court.

It is the first of emergency relief measures to be taken up by the high court for decision; others are on the way. One case challenges the validity of the New York milk control act under which the minimum retail price is fixed by the State Milk Control Board.

The case to be argued this week, brought by the Home Building & Loan Association against John H. Blaisdell and others, attacks the Minnesota moratorium act which was passed to protect property owners by extending the time in which they may recover property sold on the foreclosure of a mortgage.

Other important questions also to be taken up during the week for oral argument include the complaint of the Montana Board of Railroad Commissioners, supported by the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners of various States, protesting against the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission in fixing railroad rates on intrastate shipments.

The minor disturbance that was over the East Gulf States Saturday night has moved northeastward to the upper Ohio Valley, Parkersburg, W. Va., 29.96 inches. The tropical disturbance which is still of slight intensity is centered tonight about 300 miles northeast of Nassau, Bahamas, moving east-northeastward. These disturbances have been attended by rain in the Middle Atlantic, South Atlantic, and East Gulf States, Tennessee, the Ohio and middle Mississippi Valleys, and in portions of the southern lake region, and by light snow in the plains States, the upper Mississippi Valley and portions of the Rocky Mountain region and the western Canadian provinces. High pressure prevails from Alaska southeastward to the West Gulf States and over Ontario, western Quebec, the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, and the lake region, Mayo, Yukon, 30.58 inches, Kamloops, British Columbia, 30.44 inches, Dodge City, 30.40 inches, and Hallevbury, 30.32 inches. The temperature has fallen almost generally from the plains States and the southern Rocky Mountain region eastward to the Atlantic Coast, while it has risen in Wyoming, Montana and the western Canadian provinces.

Nazi Activity In Palestine Is Discounted

Arabian Press Blamed by Jewish Agency for Racial Unrest.

New York, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Rumors from abroad that Nazi activities were connected with the recent anti-Jewish rioting in Palestine were discounted here today by the Jewish Telegraph Agency.

The Hitler government's policy of Jewish restrictions was seen as having only an indirect effect in Palestine, by giving the Arabian press ammunition for its attacks on Jewish immigration to that country.

Reports that a majority of Germany's 500,000 Jews would be transported to Palestine were received with resentment.

The Jewish agency says, however, that the total number of Jews which have emigrated from Germany to Palestine since Hitler came into power is approximately 6,000.

None of the stringent requirements of the immigration laws into the British mandate have been waived and German Jews can enter Palestine only under the regular immigration schedules allotted.

These schedules are distributed by the Jewish Agency for Palestine, a body representing the Jews in dealing with the League of Nations and Great Britain.

Dollfuss Moves To Curb Foes

Will Establish New Office to Ferret Out Nazis in Government.

Vienna, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—A sweeping shake-up of Austria's governmental machinery under the supervision of a federal commissar, authorized to ferret out and eliminate officials and government employes of Nazi sympathies, was announced by Chancellor Dollfuss in a speech today.

The chancellor said the new commissar would be appointed within the week. It will be the government's first move in a new "hard-boiled" campaign against undercover opposition.

"I am astounded," exclaimed Dollfuss, "that in those very circles which always laid stress on personal honor and moral responsibility, such things as a sworn oath today are taken lightly.

It was recalled that last May Dollfuss required all government employes to swear a new oath of allegiance to "independent Austria." Several university professors attacked this requirement as unconstitutional.

The premier said it was a source of strength and encouragement to know that "the Holy Father is following developments in Austria with so much understanding, which is a proof to us that we are on the right road."

200 Honor Memory Of 82 Mine Victims

Millfield, Ohio, Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Two hundred persons, many of whom lost loved ones when 82 were killed in a mine explosion two years ago, participated in anniversary memorial services today.

Robert Marshall, one of the few survivors, presided at services in the Methodist Church. Speakers included G. W. Savage, of the United Mine Workers of America, and Oral Daugherty, of the Sunday Creek Coal Co., owner of the mine.

Frederick P. Royce, 66, Retired Banker, Dies

Dedham, Mass., Nov. 5 (A.P.).—Frederick P. Royce, 66, prominent in bank and utility circles, died suddenly today at his home.

A native of Newton, Royce, until his retirement five years ago, was vice president and director of Stone & Webster. He was a director of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston and of many electric and power companies.

"WHY DIDN'T I SAVE $14.00 On My Car Insurance?"

WHY SHOULD I Pay $14.00 more for my car insurance than my friends who buy their insurance direct from Liberty Mutual?

"Of course my broker doesn't like it when I ask him to place my insurance in the Liberty. That's natural because the Liberty won't pay him a commission. They sell you your policy direct and pass along the savings to you in dividends. Liberty Mutual's cost to sell policies is only one-third as much as the selling cost of other companies.

"And my friends say that Liberty Mutual will accept insurance from only one careful driver out of every four car-owners, which saves many ruinous losses from reckless driving. Then, too, Liberty Mutual has no stockholders. It pays all dividends to its policyholders.

"Under the Liberty's plan—the Mutual plan—these savings are paid back to policyholders in the form of cash dividends.

"This plan would have saved me $14.00 on insurance for my Cadillac in 1932.

"I understand that Liberty Mutual has an unbroken record of earning and paying 20% dividends off standard rates to its policyholders every year for 21 years. Furthermore, it has added substantial sums to surplus and reserves every year. The company now has Assets of $25,348,920; Reserves for Liabilities, $18,868,015; a Contingency Reserve of $2,375,000 and a Surplus of $4,105,905 (June 30, 1933), and is the largest mutual liability insurance company in the country. That's strong enough protection for anybody.

CONSIDER THESE SAVINGS in this $25,348,920 Company

This chart shows how much the Liberty Mutual dividend has reduced the cost of complete insurance on cars in Washington. Liberty Mutual has paid 20% dividends off standard rates to every policyholder every year for 21 years.

Lincoln Cadillac Packard Class Cars	Buick Chrysler Nash Class Cars	Ford Chevrolet Plymouth Class Cars	Trucks 1½ tons or less
$14.00	$12.70	$12.50	$17.38

Monthly payments, if desired

"My friends say that if they have an accident, they just 'phone the nearest Liberty Mutual office and seldom ever hear of their case again until it is settled. They tell me that 99% of its cases are settled without trial in court, which proves that Liberty Mutual must be fair and prompt in making settlements.

"Liberty Mutual must be a good company. It has more than 115,000 policyholders—responsible, careful-driving car-owners. They've saved over $37,000,000 for their policyholders—and I could just as well have had my share of it. I'm going to 'phone the Liberty Mutual office at once."

Call up or call at Liberty Mutual's Washington office today. A trained representative will give you all the details about insuring your car and will not annoy you with high-pressure selling. Or, send coupon below for information as to how you may make the savings on your car insurance as shown above. Do it today, so you won't forget it tomorrow!

Why Dollars Depreciate.

The phrase, "flight from the dollar," provides a convenient blanket explanation of the reasons for the decline in the exchange value of a basically sound currency. But a definition of what is meant by a flight from the dollar is needed, and it should be shown, too, how such a flight affects the value of the dollar.

Often it is difficult to decide whether a particular exchange operation is or is not an indication of a flight from the country's currency—that is, an attempt to convert dollars into foreign currencies because of fears of future depreciation. For example, sales of dollar securities by Americans and by foreigners and investment of the proceeds in foreign currency obligations, may take place under normal conditions, resulting in a movement of capital from the United States. Ordinarily nobody would regard these operations as a capital flight. But when fear as to the stability of the dollar exists, and investment buying and selling of this kind develop on an extensive and unusual scale, it is reasonable to conclude that actually a flight from the dollar is in progress.

There are various other ways of fleeing from the dollar which are less obvious but no less real indications of flight than those resulting from capital transactions. Thus, American exporters may sell goods abroad and permit the proceeds of such sales to accumulate in foreign countries, instead of converting them into dollars as they would ordinarily. Another form of flight from the dollar is indicated by the tendency of foreigners with dollar balances at their disposal to reduce the size of their holdings. In this case, too, reductions may occur for reasons unconnected with fears for dollar stability; but if withdrawals occur on an abnormally large scale, the inference is that they are due to a desire to get rid of dollars.

These and other characteristic manifestations of a flight from the dollar have the effect of lowering the exchange value of dollars in relation to foreign currencies either by adding to the number of dollars that would be offered normally in exchange markets or else by decreasing the demands for dollars which would be effective under normal conditions.

Sudden changes in the demand for and the supply of goods and services bought and sold in organized markets are likely to produce startling changes in quoted prices, whether the articles bought and sold happen to be commodities or claims to dollars. Hence it is easy to understand why the extraordinary buying and selling of dollars caused by a fear of inflation has caused the price of dollars in world exchange markets to drop to less than two-thirds of their par value.

A flight from the dollar motivated by fear undoubtedly has been the major cause of the depreciation in dollar exchange. But there has been at work also a combination of other abnormal influences, traceable to an expectation of inflation, affecting the exchange value of the dollar since the suspension of gold payments. For instance, the acceleration of import buying in recent months is attributed, in good part, to a desire of importers to increase their stocks in advance of an anticipated rise in prices. This concentrated buying has added to the pressure upon the exchange value of the dollar. On the other hand, as the dollar has depreciated, tourist expenditures have been reduced—a development tending to strengthen the dollar by reducing demands for foreign currencies.

In fact, numerous classes of international exchange transactions, whether they are due to current trading operations or result from capital transfers, motivated by fear, have been affected by threats of inflation. To all these causes of disturbance there have now been added the gold buying operations of the R.F.C., which are intended to force down dollar exchange values still further through offers of dollars for foreign currencies with which to buy gold in outside markets.

If existing abnormal influences were eliminated, the dollar would be quoted at or around par, since the United States is still a creditor to the rest of the world on current account. That fact simply has been obscured for the time being by the abnormal conditions created by fears of inflation.

The America's Cup Race.

With the appointment of a committee by the New York Yacht Club to consider the challenge from the Royal Yacht Squadron for a match for the America's Cup there seems to be no further doubt that the fall of 1934 will see another exciting contest. The British challenge is made on behalf of Thomas Sopwith, whose all-steel challenger, the Endeavor, is now building at Gosport, England.

The committee empowered to answer the challenge is expected to be interested in the syndicates which will build several yachts, one of which will be selected to defend the cup. It is considered unlikely that any of the four boats built for the last series will be used in the next contest. Of those yachts only the Weetamoe has been altered to conform to the new rules.

It is probable that next year's races will be held off Newport, as in 1930. Prior to that year they were held off Sandy Hook, but that locality was abandoned in favor of Newport because of the large amount of ocean traffic off the entrance to New York Harbor. The challenge suggests mid-September of next year for the start of the races. This would permit of summer trials, and the weather in September is more favorable than it would be later for the sailing of large yachts.

The New Deficit.

Treasury statements are beginning to show the effects of the Administration's extensive program of spending on emergency projects. Revenue continues to increase, especially from the extraordinary taxes levied by Congress at its last session. But expenditures took such a high jump in October that the Treasury was left with a deficit of $244,413,546 for the month.

During the first quarter of this fiscal year Federal expenditures averaged a little more than $300,000,000 per month. In September the approximate figure was $329,000,000. But in October $500,055,147 was spent, bringing the total for the first third of this fiscal year to $1,409,549,755.

The Government has spent a little less during the last four months than was spent during the corresponding period of last year. It is only in recent weeks that expenditures have grown to unusual proportions. In the early part of the current fiscal year demands upon the Treasury were considerably less than they were a year before. But in October the Government spent about $59,000,000 more than in October, 1932. Even the general expenditures, not including any of the items now placed in an emergency budget, were greater last month than they were in the previous October.

It is worthy of note, also, that advances made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were a sizable item in the expenditures of October, 1932. These loans are scheduled to be repaid by the borrowers, and therefore, are not expenditures in the ordinary meaning of the word. Last month the so-called emergency expenditures included large items for public works, reforestation projects and farm relief. Very little, if any, of this money is subject to repayment.

The Federal deficit accumulated during the last four months amounts to $481,906,629, which is less than half the amount of the deficit last year at this time. This figure does not, however, give an accurate view of the present trend in Uncle Sam's fiscal affairs. In the single month of October the deficit was more than doubled, in spite of the fact that revenue showed a considerable increase. If this excess of expenditures over revenue should continue throughout the remainder of the year, the Government would pile up another deficit of more than $2,400,000,000 by the end of next June.

Prospects for curtailment of expenditures during the remainder of the year do not appear to be bright. The Public Works Administration has announced its intention of alloting all its $3,300,000,000 fund before January 1, and in most cases expenditure of allotments within one year is anticipated. Only $94,165,423 of this vast sum is included in the Federal expenditures of the last four months.

New demands upon the Government for relief funds are expected. Nearly all of the money now being spent for relief work is taken from the Federal Treasury. Indications are that relief needs during the coming winter and spring will require additional appropriations.

A substantial addition to the Federal debt—which now exceeds $23,000,000,000—appears to be in prospect.

A Questionable Project.

Funds for two new irrigation projects have been allocated by the Public Works Administration, in spite of widespread protests against bringing new land under cultivation while the Government is spending millions to induce farmers to reduce their planted acreage or destroy their crops. The North Platte power and irrigation project was allotted $7,500,000 and the Verde irrigation and power project $4,000,000.

Initiation of the Verde project especially evokes criticism, in view of previous adverse reports by Bureau of Reclamation engineers and the mysterious atmosphere in which the latest investigation seems to be enveloped.

The Verde River flows into the Salt River, and the water is used to irrigate about 255,000 acres of land in the vicinity of Phoenix, Ariz. The Roosevelt Dam provides storage facilities in Salt River Canyon, but no provision has been made for storage in the Verde. A number of engineers who have made a careful study of the entire project claim that all the storage water that the Verde can provide is needed for land now under cultivation in Salt River Valley. This position is supported in an exhaustive report made a few years ago by Homer Hamlin, engineer for the Reclamation Bureau. "Water stored on the Verde River," he wrote, "can best be used for the irrigation of lands within and adjacent to the Salt River project."

Nevertheless, another irrigation project which must draw its water from the Verde River was approved, after a brief hearing, by two members of the Arizona State advisory board of the P.W.A. and a Reclamation Service engineer. Apparently P.W.A. officials were not satisfied with this report. At any rate, a special board of engineers was asked to consider the project. Its report is not available. The chairman of that board refuses to state whether its findings were favorable or adverse. Yet funds have been allotted to start the project.

Only $4,000,000 have been made available for construction of the Verde irrigation plant, but it is estimated that $18,912,000 will be necessary to complete it. The P.W.A. or the Congress will be compelled ultimately to make up the deficiency or leave the project unfinished and useless.

About 94,000 acres of land are included in the Verde irrigation district. Engineers say that if the rights of farmers in the Salt River Valley are protected, the water available in the Verde district will not be sufficient to irrigate this large additional area. Farmers doubtless will be inclined, therefore, to plant grain and cotton, because these crops require less water than vegetables and alfalfa. One arm of the Government is bringing cotton and grain lands into use while another arm is taxing consumers and paying millions to growers of these crops with the view of reducing surplus production.

Bureau of Reclamation engineers admit that use of this land alone would not justify the expenditure of $19,000,000 for storage reservoirs and canals. The sale of power is relied upon to make the project economically feasible. Reports from Phoenix indicate, however, that a surplus of power from the Salt River project, which also was financed largely by the Government, is now going to waste with no market in sight.

Soon after the establishment of the Public Works Administration Secretary Ickes said that only projects which could be justified on economic and social bases and which would not involve continuing expenditures by the Government would be approved. It is difficult to see how the Verde project squares with this criterion.

It is even more strange that the P.W.A. should set aside funds for a project of this character in preference to such essential improvements as the District Municipal Center, which has the definite approval of Congress. Is the District to be penalized merely because it lacks the necessary political pressure?

The Saga of Prohibition.

The affirmative votes of only three more States are needed to insure the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Six States—Kentucky, South Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Utah and North Carolina—will vote on repeal next Tuesday. There appears to be every assurance that by December 5 ratifying State conventions will have rung the knell of prohibition, although November 7 may be considered the end of the dry era.

Looking backward through the centuries, Maryland appears to have passed the first regulatory statute in 1642, providing fines for drunkards. In 1733 Oglethorpe prohibited liquor importations in the colony of Georgia. It was not until 1808 that the first American temperance society was formed, followed by the first national organization in 1826. In 1832 the grog ration for soldiers was abolished. A year later Georgia adopted the first local option law.

The first decision of a national character by the Supreme Court was rendered in 1847, holding that the States had authority to regulate liquor traffic. This was followed by the first State prohibition law enacted by Maine in 1851. Three years later Ohio passed an antisaloon law. In 1869 the Prohibition Party was formed and a national convention was held.

Kansas, in 1881, was the first State to adopt constitutional prohibition. The first Prohibition Party candidate was elected to Congress in 1890. South Carolina installed a State dispensary system in 1893, and in the same year the Antisaloon League was formed.

Canteens were abolished in American military establishments in 1901. In 1906 liquor sales to Indians were prohibited, and in 1913 the Webb-Kenyon act was passed, prohibiting transportation of liquor into dry States. The eighteenth amendment was submitted to the States in 1917. In the following year war-time prohibition was ordered, and Mississippi cast the first ratification vote for prohibition. In 1919 Nebraska completed ratification and Congress repassed the Volstead act over Presidential veto. The constitutionality of the eighteenth amendment and of the Volstead act was affirmed by Supreme Court decision in 1920.

New York made it impossible in 1923 for State courts to try liquor cases by repealing its enforcement act. The Jones "five and ten" enforcement law was passed in 1929. In the following year House wets were defeated in the first prohibition test in Congress, but in 1931 wet sentiment showed notable gains among members.

In 1932 repeal resolutions were introduced in Congress, and the 3.2 beer bill passed the House, but was defeated in the Senate. The special session of Congress called in March of this year legalized the sale of beer and submitted repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the States. Tuesday, November 7, is expected to witness the ratification of repeal by more than enough States to end national prohibition.

Seeking Privacy.

From the Boston Transcript.

Musing upon the importance of unbroken quiet to the deep thinker, Dr. Einstein suggests that offshore lighthouses would serve the purpose well. He does not say whether he has in mind the combining of lighthouse tending with scientific research or philosophical reflection, but it is probable that only so could a man find in a lighthouse what Wordsworth calls the bliss of solitude. For if he should take a lodging with a lighthouse keeper, he might better try to cogitate on Broadway at Times Square.

A lighthouse keeper is lonely by the nature of his calling; he craves human companionship—yearns for somebody to talk to. What a boon to have a philosopher shut up with him on his sea-swept rock; to be able to burst in upon him at all hours, perhaps interrupting an abstruse calculation to dwell upon the monotony of his lot, to tell him tales of memorable shipwrecks, to show him all the portraits in the family album with a running commentary on their virtues and failings.

We doubt that the theory of relativity could ever have been worked out in a lighthouse. A man of the Einstein stamp of genius would be better off on an uninhabited island or in the topmost room of a metropolitan skyscraper.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

MR. LITVINOV AND THE PRESIDENT.

The President—Welcome, Mr. Litvinov. Shall I call you comrade?

Mr. Litvinov—You are the better judge of the reaction from that in America than I am.

The President—The question before us is recognition of Russia. You changed so much with the overthrow of the czar that we decided not to recognize you, but you've changed so much since we decided not to recognize you that we think it possible to recoognize you.

Litvinov—Well, anyhow, the question now is whether we're both willing to forget and forgive.

The President—And if so, what it will cost us.

Litvinov—Precisely. Everything depends on the price.

• • • •

The President—Of course, there are those war debts.

Litvinov—I trust America will not find them a barrier. As for Russia, we have forgotten them entirely.

The President—Yes. We noticed that. But America finds it rather difficult to forget debts.

Litvinov—It's really very easy if you try. What do we owe you, anyway?

The President—Well, there was that $192,000,000 loan to Kerensky, there's $135,000,000 in accrued interest and $441,000,000 in private claims over confiscated American property. Do you wish further details?

Litvinov—No. I'm sorry I brought the matter up. After all, Mr. President, money isn't everything.

The President—Especially when we don't get it.

• • • •

Litvinov—Can't we forget about money? The important thing is trade. Russia is a great market. She is ready to take American business. Is American business ready to be taken?

The President—It depends on the interpretation of that word "taken." How would Russia pay for our goods?

Litvinov—It's very simple. You lend us the money. We buy your goods with your money.

The President—But suppose there are any losses?

Litvinov—Russia wants to be fair. If there are any losses, America can have them outright.

The President—But how shall I meet them?

Litvinov—Oh, through the R. F. C.

The President—C. O. D.

THE WORDS OR THE MUSIC?

The Nazi government has barred the American song, "Lazybones." The Hitler attitude on "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?" is eagerly awaited.

THE RETURN TO NORMALCY.

Jack Dempsey socked a wrestler for doing too much fighting in the ring the other night. Now if he woud sock a few fighters for doing too much wrestling everything would be swell.

Ring W. Lardner

The death of Ring Lardner on September 25, 1933, is a sad and irreparable loss to American literature. Mr. Lardner was born in Niles, Mich., on March 6, 1885. He began his career as a sporting reporter on the newspapers and was also sent to national political conventions to write them up from the humorous and ironical point of view. At first his humor consisted partly of the misuse of words—"the Kansas degradation are looking for a saloon," &c. And indeed his phonetic spellings have since been followed by many writers. He was the first to spell "of" for "have," in expressions like "It's lucky I didn't give him my left or I'd of croaked him," which gives the correct pronunciation. He has now been followed in this by innumerable writers. Another instance, "they's" for "there are: "They's a good many ball players who," &c.

I mention these details because they show the love he had for precision; his numerous characters are transscripts from life in their speech, their actions, their appearance and their mental attitudes. Mr. Lardner's humor was so irresistible that it delayed his recognition as a master of creative writing; but for some ten years before his death he enjoyed a high reputation. His best stories are "Champion," "Zone of Quiet," "A Caddy's Diary," "Horseshoes," while the last novel he published, "Lose With a Smile," has beauty and tenderness as well as scorn. His loss is irreparable, for there is no one who resembles him, though many have tried to do so.

Tomorrow—John Brown's Body

You Can't Beat a Player Who Cheats, But Why Let Him Play?

By Robert Quillen.

When you are young and healthy and in love with your job, working for your living is fun. It is much like a game, except that it makes you feel useful and respectable. You spend your money freely and feel no anxiety.

But when you begin to slow up, or jobs become scarce, you begin to think about the future and worry because you haven't saved any money.

Having to work for your bread doesn't seem fun any more. You begin to feel resentful. Life seems hard and unfair.

At this stage you get the habit of making comparisons. It seems unjust that you should work hard and live in poverty and miss most of the good things of life while other men who do no work live on the fat of the land.

If these men were morally and intellectually superior to you, the difference in your fortunes wouldn't seem so unfair. But that isn't the explanation.

You are handicapped by the rules. These rules were made by society to profect life and property and enable people to enjoy the fruits of their labor in peace and security.

You realize that the rules are sane and necessary and you observe them. You do not lie or cheat or steal.

By observing the rules, you voluntarily accept a handicap. You never obtain as much as you could. Almost every day you have opportunities to steal automobiles or take money from your employer or make a profit by lying to those who trust you.

You don't do these things because you aren't that kind of man. You play the game squarely. You have a sense of honor and a conscience.

But these other men, who have neither honor nor conscience, are not restrained by rules. They feel free to take what they can. Some of them are millionaires.

Don't you realize what the Nation's crooks are doing to you? Would you continue to sit in a game, meekly losing your earnings, if you knew the other players were breaking the rules?

Why do you let them get away with it?

Big and little crooks get billions every year by breaking the rules you obey, and you make up the loss. All such losses are eventually added to the overhead of business and taken out of your wages or added to the cost of things you buy.

The "smart guy" with soft hands and hard eyes is your enemy. He spends the money you earn. When will honest men learn to organize against him?

Press Comment

Liquor Advertising.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Reed amendment, a product of the great dry crusade, compels the Postoffice Department to assume the herculean task of keeping out of the mails all liquor advertising destined for dry States, whether in the form of letters, circulars or notices in magazines and newspapers. The department will endeavor to enforce this measure, according to a statement just issued. It may be possible to restrict direct-mail advertising of liquors, though this certainly has its difficulties. But the surveillance needed to stop newspapers and magazines carrying the tabooed advertising will be far greater than what would be needed to enforce prohibition itself.

Canada on the Home Stretch.

Toronto Mail and Empire.

The recent appreciation in the value of the Canadian dollar in the United States has made it easier for this country to meet its obligations south of the border. The revenue from the sales and excise tax is rising. The speedy and overwhelming success of the new conversion loan caps the climax for Canadian good news. We have a long road to travel back to full prosperity, but we are on the way.

The Progressive's Fate.

Houston Post.

Somebody in California suggested to Senator Hiram Johnson of that State that he seek reelection as a Democrat rather than as a Progressive, or insurgent, Republican. The senator thus far has failed to indicate his reaction to the proposal.

Senator McAdoo was not long in letting it be known that the idea was repugnant to him. The son-in-law of Woodrow Wilson has not forgotten the bitter fight Johnson waged on the Wilson policies. Besides, Senator McAdoo doubtless believes that there is sufficient Democratic timber to choose from, without invading the Republican ranks.

Johnson supported Roosevelt for the Presidency in 1932. Johnson comes up for reelection in 1934. Will Roosevelt return the compliment and support Johnson for return to the Senate? The question is becoming all the more interesting, because two other senators who deserted the G. O. P. in 1932 to help elect Roosevelt are coming to the ends of their present terms next year. They are Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico, and Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin.

With

Carlisle Bargeron

OF all the delightful experiences which the NRA deputy administrators are having, none carries greater joy than that of Prof. Lindsey Rogers, who has the newspaper code. This young man is having the time of his life. It makes, indeed, Horatio Alger reading where the hero who has been mistreated by his boss later finds himself the boss and the villain his employe.

BARGERON.

The professor used to be a newspaperman, you know. Unlike the Alger stories, which portray the hero as being a kindly and fair fellow whose heart goes out to his former employer, the professor is getting a big kick out of tormenting the publishers.

• • • •

THE result is that when he and the other deputy administrators get together of nights to swap stories and tell how they frightened this and that business man out of his wits, the professor has the funniest of all to tell. Others in the professor's position would not enjoy themselves as much as he because they perhaps would not be as gifted.

He is analytical, of great mental depth; he is firm and he has a sense of humor. This makes him well-nigh the perfect man.

• • • •

SELDOM do you get all of these qualities in one man—a group of men, maybe, but not in just one man. It is as though Nature when it came to the professor was short on structures or wanted to knock off for the day, its 35-hour week having been completed, and decided to heap all of its endowments on him without spreading them around as it does in its day-by-day work.

So well was the professor advertised in this newspaper sketch that I took the first opportunity of observing him in action. It was really a treat.

• • • •

IT was during the hearing of the newspaper code here several weeks ago. The first glance at the professor as he sat behind his desk on the dais took in his satisfaction with his task. This man obviously was sitting on the top of the world.

Yet he unquestionably has all of the qualities which the newspaper sketch had related. He asked questions of those who came before him which revealed the analytical mind as well as the depth. He looked competent, too. Publishers nor newspapermen threw him the slightest off his poise. He was sure of himself if ever a man was.

Then when a young lady reporter for a New York paper advocating the workers' cause pointed out that her paper with its million circulation had had the five-day week for a long time, he banged his gavel and admonished her not to mention the paper's circulation as that was an effort to advertise it.

And when she replied that she only wanted to show that a paper this big could successfully operate under the five-day week he banged his gavel again. This, to my mind, was a perfect demonstration of his firmness. She was a winsome young lady, too.

• • • •

IF any further proof that he was possessed of this quality of firmness were needed, it was given in the way in which he switched from levity to firmness. One minute he would be laughing and cracking jokes and the next he would bang his gavel. The ability to switch is one of the highest and most infrequent traits. A lot of men are firm, but they have to be firm all the time. They can't let down their bars for a minute.

It was the professor's demonstration of his sense of humor, though, that completely took me in. I had been thinking to myself that while he had demonstrated mental depth and firmness that he would most surely fall down on the sense of humor.

But he didn't. Heywood Broun, the columnist, had spoken for the workers. As he started to leave the stand the professor motioned for him to remain. Everybody leaned forward because they knew that now was coming the sense of humor.

The professor explained that when the textile code was being heard some work of the textile operatives was referred to as "home work."

Ill-Mated.

Divorced! Her beauty could not hold
His love against the winds of hate.
It seems their natures failed to mate.
What seemed like love grew early cold.
He thought that silver coins and gold
Sufficiently would compensate
For loneliness and she should wait
With patience till he homeward strolled.

She wanted thoughtful speech and care,
Prompt dinner hours, as women do;
But this he never guessed or knew.
He bought her pretty clothes to wear,
Thinking that quite enough to give.
On food like that love can not live.

Keeping the Objective in Mind.

One of the important things for a Bridge player to remember in the bidding as well as the play is the objective. The existence of a part-score modifies this objective and frequently determines the final bid. Sometimes the final contract, when the partnership making it has a part-score, is one which would be illogical if no score existed. In Bridge, as in geometry, a straight line is generally the shortest distance between two points.

The hand below, which was played in a recent Rubber game at Crockford's Club, New York, is an example of that proposition. The holder of the South hand was Mrs. Molla Mallory, former world's champion tennis player, who has in recent years given up the strenuous exercise of the tennis courts for the milder mental stimulus of the Bridge table. When the hand was dealt Mrs. Mallory and her partner had a part-score of 30, while their opponents were scoreless.

Pass	Pass	Pass

1—The hand contains 3½ honor-tricks and is well prepared for a spade response. While no suit is strong, there does not appear any prospect of a very severe penalty.

2—Mrs. Mollary anticipates a two-spade bid by her partner, and the two-diamond bid is merely a step on the way to her objective, a game contract.

3—A better bid by North would have been two notrump. Partner's hand may be a bust and in such a case North conceivably might not take more than 3 tricks at a notrump declaration.

4—While Mrs. Mallory anticipates the possible loss of four heart tricks, should this occur she hopes to find sufficient strength in other suits to permit her to fulfill her contract.

West's Opening lead was the heart Knave, which Mrs. Mallory won with the Queen. Obviously, the routine play would be to seek to establish the diamond suit with the loss of one trick. This might be accomplished, but the accomplishment of it would avail nothing as the South hand would then be void of entries saving the possibility of a low spade lead from the Ace-King in Dummy, and this course would mean the loss of entirely too many tricks. Considering the question of entries and reentries, Mrs. Mallory decided that the club Ace was plainly marked in the West hand. If she could find an even break in the club suit, then her contract was apparently safe, as she would be able to make two clubs, two diamonds, two hearts and two spades. This line of play was followed. After the first trick was won, a club was led, and when West played a low club the King was put up and the suit returned at once. East felt there was nothing better to do than to clear the heart suit, and the King in Dummy won the trick. Now a club was returned, and when both opponents followed suit the safety of the contract was assured. West won and crashed three heart tricks, but the rest of the tricks belonged to South—a well-earned reward for a correctly bid and correctly played hand.

Tomorrow's Hand.

By what stages should North and South reach the correct final contract on the hand below?

What Today Means

"Scorpio.

If November 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 to 9 a. m., from 5 to 6:30 p. m. and from 9:45 to 10:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 to 12 noon, and from 3 to 4:15 p. m.

You will probably feel in a productive frame of mind on this date and anxious to get a lot of work done. You will succeed in this if you are able to isolate yourself, for interruptions will prove most upsetting, and this, whether the work interfered with be physical or mental. Exercise will most likely not give you that usual feeling of exhilaration.

The child born on this November 6 will probably tire easily; there will be nothing physically wrong with it. Will do thoroughly and accurately what it has to do, but will not cover a great deal of ground. Absolutely reliable except for a tendency to be tardy for engagements. A fast and enthusiastic reader of mysteries.

Wishy-Washyners.

If November 6 is the date of your birth, you are more than likely a sweet but ineffective person. You will miss a lot of real chances in life because of a certain "wishy-washyness" about you. If you would only take yourself in hand and make yourself snap out of it and do things, you would get a lot further ahead. You are not a fast worker, nor a particularly accurate one. You are not neat with other people's things in the affice, and more than likely your own possessions are kept in a slovenly manner. You miss being a very fine person because of one or two little things that you allow to stand in your way. People like you and try to help you in every manner possible and you are most appreciative of what they do; at the same time you don't quite seem to know how to go about helping yourself.

A Trusted Person.

Born on November 6, you will probably have a great many jobs in the course of your existence; none of them will perhaps be really good ones. You will be a trusted person wherever you work and you will be the one to have the office safe combination and access to the private records, but when it comes to handing out the big jobs, they will go to the aggressive ones who are on their toes, fighting for themselves and the company. You will form strong personal attachments and when you fall in love, you will fall madly so. You must learn to be more self-sufficient and more forceful.

Paul E. Sackett, Miss Graves Wed At Lynchburg

Many Out-of-Town Guests Attend Ceremony of Couple.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 5 (Spl.).—Miss Elizabeth Graves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ernest Graves, and Paul Edmunds Sackett were married yesterday evening at the country home of the bride's parents on Graves mill road, the celebrants being Dr. John W. Smith, pastor of Centenary Methodist Church, assisted by the Rev. Robert A. Magill, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Music was furnished by Miss Leone Coleman, pianist, and Mrs. Archer Summerson, violinist.

Wedding Attendants.

Miss Sally Sackett, a sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid and Miss Rebecca Graves was her sister's maid of honor. They wore gowns of gold rough over crepe made princess and carried armfuls of autumn flowers.

The bride's gown was of ivory satin in simple design with long sleeves and high neck. Her veil was of tulle and was caught with orange blossoms. Her flowers were a shower of lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Sackett will spend their honeymoon in New York City.

The bride was educated in Lynchburg and at Hollins College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Episcopal High School and University of Virginia, taking academic and law degrees at the latter. He is associated here in the practice of law with Thomas J. Williams.

Out-of-Town Guests.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Nita Blinco and Paul Blincoe, of Ashland; Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Phelps, of Bedford; Miss Louise Fisher, of Newnan, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Kemper, jr., of Bluefield; Mr. and Mrs. Norborne Berkeley and Miss Dorothea Berkeley, of Bethlehem, Pa.; Hamilton Haas, of Harrisonburg; Mrs. Phoebe Randolph Stilman, of Warrenton; Miss Pickett Davis and Dr. Elliott Randolph, of Baltimore; Miss Elsie Ingram, of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. D. Mrs. Lyons Hostess At Women's Club

Musical Program Given at Afternoon Tea.

Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Music Clubs, was hostess at a tea yesterday afternoon given by the Women's City Club at the clubhouse, 736 Jackson place. Dr. A. D. Zanzig, director of the music department of the National Recreation Association of New York City, was guest of honor.

Other guests, who were in the receiving line, included Mrs. Elizabeth Peeples, director of Community Centers; Miss Mary E. Coulson and Mrs. L. B. Roberts, of the Council of Social Agencies; Miss Maud Parker, division of women's and girls' activities of the Department of Playgrounds, and Mrs. Mary Burnett, music secretary of the Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Lyons presented Miss Marie Nolte, soprano, Miss Gertrude Dyre, pianist; Mr. Gilbert Winston Linville, tenor, and Mrs. Elsie Weaver, accompanist, in a musical program.

Patrons to Be Feted Following Lecture

Miss Janet Richards, following her first lecture on "Public Questions" this morning in the Willard Hotel, will entertain the following patrons at luncheon in the Crystal Room: Mrs. Claude Swanson, Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. Ben H. Fuller, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. Sydney Cloman, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Mrs. Wade Ellis, Mrs. Arthur Wright and Mrs. Douglas McDougal.

The talk will include comment on the high lights of world affairs for the past six months and will begin at 11 o'clock.

Votes Not Cash Sought By Man Passing Hat

Mrs. John Temple Graves, widow of the veteran orator and newspaperman who ran for Vice President of the United States on the Independence League ticket in 1908, was in Washington for a few days last week, en route to New Jersey, where she is visiting one of her children.

Mrs. Graves is fond of telling this story, even though the joke was upon herself.

At a political rally one night a young man started passing a hat around among the audience. When he came to the row in which Mrs. Graves was sitting, she noticed that not a soul put anything into the derby.

She took a half dollar out of her purse and dropped into the derby as it came past her.

The young man was amazed. He was collecting ballots not funds. But he took the coin out of the hat and gallantly bowing said to Mrs. Graves: "We want your vote, Madam, not your cash!"

Paske-Smiths Announce Troth Of Daughter

Miss Chiquita to Marry Montgomery Winn, of Honolulu.

The British Counselor in Honolulu and Mrs. Montague Paske-Smith have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Chiquita Paske-Smith, to Mr. Montgomery Winn, of Honolulu. Mrs. Paske-Smith and her two daughters, Miss Chiquita and Miss Isabel, have just returned to their home on the islands from several months, travel in England, France and Spain.

Tourist Returns to White House as First Lady

One day in the late nineties a party of tourists was being shown through the East Room of the White House.

With the group was a vivacious dark-eyed girl from New England.

"Oh," she exclaimed as the guide stopped in front of the beautiful gold piano, as it was called. "I must play just a note or two on that lovely instrument."

Down she sat and started a few chords.

Horror-stricken, an attendant rushed up to her.

"No one is allowed to touch that piano," he said crossly. "Get up, get up."

With an embarrassed laugh the young lady got off the piano stool. "I did not mean any harm—" she began. But the attendant waved her on, his feelings still ruffled by what he considered the height of presumption.

Years passed, the young lady married and by and by she came to Washington and—then, strange is the turn of fate, to the White House again.

This time she sat down at the gold piano and played on it to her heart's content. No one stopped her, for she was Mrs. Calvin Coolidge then, the wife of the President of the United States.

Twelve Most Perfect Types of Feminine Beauty Analyzed by Leading Authorities

Gleaming Silver Gives Dinner Table Allure

By Ruth Ann Davis.

Since the days of King George III, the making of fine silverware has been handed down in a certain family from generation to generation. A number of years ago that family came to America and settled in a city not far from Washington. Their sterling silver is sold at only one store in Washington.

This store has taken an especial interest in one pattern, exquisite in its simplicity, and has named it "American Mother." Any American mother could be proud of her namesake.

Not one bit of decoration marks this pattern. The gleaming metal has enough beauty in its own right without ornamentation. Initials may be used to advantage, however, by those who like that intimate touch on their silver.

Twenty-six pieces may be had for $35. This set includes six forks, six knives, six salad forks, six teaspoons, one sugar shell and one butter knife. Satin or bright finish may be chosen.

What could be more ideal for Christmas gifts than sterling silver?

Some one, undoubtedly a man, got fed up with seeing women struggle with lipsticks in street cars, taxis, and all the other outlandish places where women drag out mirrors and lip rouge. This man was wise enough to know that he could never stop the dears from making up in public. But he could simplify matters. He did. He has given to the feminine world a lipstick with a tiny beveled mirror set in one side of the enamel rectangular case. After the lipstick has been pulled from the case by a gay little silk tassel, it's a perfectly simple matter to make a Cupid's bow with the help of the clear mirror.

The rouge is made in light, medium and dark shades. The cases are red with white tassel, red with black tassel, black with white tassel, black with green tassel, all black or all green. Price $1.

Cleaning the refrigerator will not be half so troublesome if a squeegee is used. A squeegee is a rubber strip, attached to a long handle, used for washing huge windows. Now baby squeegees, just the right size for small windows or for refrigerators, are in a downtown store. The rubber strip, attached to a 4-inch wooden handle, leaves windows unstreaked. It leaves refrigerator interiors smooth and spotless. It's also much easier on the hands than the old-fashioned wet cloth. Price 25 cents.

Six pyrex baking cups are neatly arranged in a wire frame with a handle at each end. The cups are just the right size for baked custards or other desserts. They're also nice for individual portions of baked vegetables. The cups and wire frame sell for 37 cents.

A breakfast tray, which may also be used to hold a reader's book, finds uses in any home. Even if the family insists upon its members having breakfast together, with not a single indolent creature permitted the day's first meal in bed, the tray will come in mighty handy in times of sickness. And then there are those people who can't enjoy reading unless they are reclining. Let them recline. But save their eyes from strain by placing their book on this tray which may be adjusted to a slanting position. In addition to the adjustable top, the legs are collapsible.

Yellow, blue, rose, or green wood makes the tray. Dainty wild roses form the decoration. The top is curved to fit the body of the person using it. A small rim on the other three sides keeps dishes or books in their place.

Evergreen, with jolly red berries, grows in a small green metal pot, lined in silver. This isn't the usual sort of evergreen. Instead of springing from Mother Earth, it grows from bath crystals, wrapped in brilliant green cellophane and tied with green and tinsel ribbon. The tinsel note is repeated in a narrow gold band that encircles the 3-inch pot.

The attractive trifle would make an adorable centerpiece for a bridge table. Let the holder of high score carry off the pot, evergreen and bath crystals as the prize—that is, if the hostess can bear to part with them.

Shiny silver flat flowers grow in a scarlet pot. Red cellophane is wrapped around bath crystals and tied with scarlet and tinsel ribbon.

These unusual plants sell for 50 cents.

Heavy aluminum, in a brand known for its wearing quality, makes cake tins in 5, 7 and 9 inch sizes. The large ones may be had with the removable bottoms or in one-piece styles. Five and 7 inch ones sell for 19 cents. The 9-inch ones are priced at 25 cents.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Dynamic—that is how the experts classify the beauty of Joan Crawford (above). Ruth Chatterton (top center), they have chosen as a model of the Intellectual type; and lovely Loretta Young as the Spiritual beauty. All women by studying themselves in the mirror can discover to which of the types of beauty they belong.

Kay Francis (center) is the ideal example of the Sophisticated beauty; and little Janet Gaynor of the adorable Ingenue. Below is Wynne Gibson, bewitching Flower Face of the films. These are the first six of the twelve selected types of femininity.

Paris Clings To Hoods, Belts And Peplums

Schiaparelli, Maggy Rouff and Vionnet Influence Modes.

Vionnet's hood collars, Schiaparelli's calf-belted coats, and Maggy Rouff's peplums had such a prominent place in the Paris midseason openings that they will undoubtedly influence spring fashions.

The newest version of the hood collar has a flat-pointed drape in back that extends to two crossed points in front. Vionnet also uses the front drape with an ermine collar-like bib. This designer clings to full sleeves, but the fulness starts below smooth shoulders.

Maggy Rouff, who has been featuring flared pepulms for afternoon and evening with success, is flattening them for suits and street frocks. Her necklines are twisted or draped at the front while collars stand up stiffly in back.

Swagger coats sometimes gain fulness with inverted box pleats, suspended from a yoke.

"Most Beautiful Blonde" Wears Black Pearls

When Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the American Ambasador to Cuba, attends State functions she is very apt to wear her long strand of priceless black pearls, the gift of her mother, the late Mrs. Richard Townsend, long the uncrowned queen of Washington society. These pearls were purchased by Mrs. Townsend for her daughter from among the crown jewels of Russia, many of which were sold in this country after the revolution.

As Miss Mathilde Townsend, Mrs. Welles was spoken of as the most beautiful blonde in the world and was thus hailed in our American cities and in court circles in Europe. On her first marriage to Peter Goelet Gerry, from whom she was later divorced, thousands of white orchids were used to decorate the Townsend mansion at Massachusetts avenue and Twenty-second street.

Heritage of Two Parties.

Mrs. Robert Lansing is one woman who can, with impunity, embrace the prerogatives of a Democrat and a Republican at one and the same time with good grace.

For Mrs. Lahsing is the daughter of that fine Republican Secretary of State John W. Foster and the widow of Robert Lansing, Democratic leader and also Secretary of State in the Wilson administration.

Every Lovely and Alluring Woman Is Either One of These Types or a Cross-Blend of Two or More, They Insist, Citing, as Examples, the Fairest of the Films.

Beauty of form and loveliness of spirit—the twin forces in woman which have moved men to their destinies and molded human events since the beginning of time. What are they, essentially? Are they innate? Or can they be cultivated? Who are the most beautiful women of today? And how do they express the beauty that makes them at once the object of universal admiration and envy?

The Woman's Page assigned Elizabeth Young to ask these and many other pertinent questions of national authorities. This is the first of a series of articles in which the answers are presented.

By Elizabeth Young.

Twelve great beauty types, each in itself unique, embody all that is alluring in femininity. Painters and poets, famous experts on beauty and leaders of society have agreed that these comprise the complete range of notes and harmonies, into which somewhere every lovely face will fit.

Every woman, from the time of Lilith, these authorities insist, has belonged to one of these 12 types. They are the "tone-scale" of beauty, according to which even the most unusual and breath-taking perfection of face and figure may be classified, either as pure type or cross-blend.

Through the collaboration of these authorities, a selection has been compiled of screen actresses and of Washington debutantes and young matrons, who most perfectly illustrate the clear, unblended types of beauty.

The selection of these supremely beautiful women followed the most careful scrutiny of the attributes of hundreds of film stars, and of society women of the Capital.

Every woman needs to know to what category of beauty she belongs. To quote the words of Mrs. Fred Britten, leader of Washington's official social set:

"Modern social occasions require, in simple courtesy, that a woman look and be her best. Society expects a decorative quality in women."

"Any one who is intelligent may be beautiful," declared Mrs. Frederic Ernest Farrington, for 16 years mistress of Chevy Chase School for Girls, nationally famous for the loveliness of its pupils.

"Every woman without exception has something beautiful about her," Senor Cesareo Bernaldo de Quiros, Argentine painter of international repute, who is here doing the portraits of Washington society leaders, asserted.

These and many other interviewed in the course of this study concurred in enumerating the 12 beauty types as follows:

The Dynamic.

1. She has the charm of excitement. Life is so thrilling to her that she makes it thrilling for every one with whom she comes in contact. Those in the thrall of a dynamic beauty feel her compelling physical fascination, making time timeless.

The Intellectual.

2. There is a stark candor about er personality that is mirrored in the planes of her face. This is the woman with the courage of her convictions, who seems to say: "Here I am." Everything else about her is subordinated to the force of her intelligence.

The Spiritual.

3. Her charm lies in her seeming detachment from what we term the worldly. There is a gentleness, a wistfulness about her that appeals to the best in every one, as a child's helplessness does.

The Sophisticated.

4. More socially aware than any other type, she is thoroughly alive to every nuance in the social scheme. She embodies the epitome of social experience. She projects her mental power through her delightful exterior.

The Ingenue.

5. This is the type who seems untroubled by life's complexities, who finds surprises in every situation and keeps an element of enthusiasm. Everything for her holds the wonder of the unusual.

The Flower.

6. She has the delicate charm of modesty. She is unfailingly sweet and gracious. There is a fresh virginal quality about her that clings throughout life.

The Siren.

7. She is the complete woman, the type who draws all men to her. One finds as many women worshiping at her shrine as men, perhaps because they feel she has something they can learn of her allure.

The Exotic.

8. There is a frail voluptuousness, an orchid-like quality about her, which demands always a luxurious setting. She is the type who gets without giving, to whom life is generous and unexacting.

The Piquant.

9. She has a sense of humor and an unusual slant on events. She has an elusive quality of character, invariably denoted by some unusual outward manifestation. Always there is a tip-tilted nose, a short upper lip, a quirk to an eyebrow, a slanted eye, a fawn's ear, which makes her a little different.

The Innocent.

10. Her charm lies in her seeming complete dependence on some protective force. It may be her attitude of mind that safeguards. She is one who seems to have fought no battles, to have had no destructive forces assailing her from within or without. This is the type who suggests complete vulnerability, too precious to violate.

The Gamine.

11. She is the self-assured type, who unconsciously assumes that the world is her oyster. She is spontaneous, delightfully impulsive and lovable.

The Wholesome.

12. She is sincere. She suggests sunshine and breeziness. Hers is the appeal of the maternal quality. She has the ability to charm by the impression that she is absorbed in the destinies of those about her.

This classification of beauty's outstanding types can best be understood by the identification of each with a lovely woman familiar to all the world through the medium of the motion picture.

Loretta Young is the Spiritual. There is an ethereal quality to the magic of her gentle face.

Was there ever an ingenue like Janet Gaynor? Shy, eager, expectant, her unusual expression has bewitched millions of her movie fans.

Wynne Gibson. The flowerlike countenance breathing the perfume of a wild, sweet rose.

There are the first six of the world's great beauty types defined. Tomorrow's article will tell you something of the second six.

Though a woman be beautiful naturally, many arts may be brought into play to enhance her natural allure. The proper haircut and coiffure provide a harmonious setting for her particular form of face. Cosmetics carefully chosen emphasize, but do not distort her individual coloring.

Perfect grooming, clothes of faultless cut, exquisite choice of accessories, all lend their detail to that perfection which creates a lasting impression of loveliness.

"Beauty is a matter of emphasizing one's best features and drawing attention away from one's bad features, if one admits any," commented Miss Mary Whiteman, stylist at Jelleff's, who for years has studied the needs of beautiful women.

"It is a consciousness of personality expressed through fabric and color and line and accessory, as well as through physical charm. Creating the illusion of beauty is a high art. But once a woman, though only plain in reality, understands to what type she belongs, she may succeed in creating the illusion of perfection in that type. The web of illusion once spun, she herself falls under its spell, and very often becomes, in some inexplicable way, truly beautiful."

Miss Marian Chace, creative dancer of the Denishawn School, who has her studio in Washington's new House of the Seven Arts, declared that bodily poise is an essential of beauty.

"One only carries off beautiful clothes and manifests one's beauty of spirit and form when really poised," she explained. "Developing a sense of rhythm helps in achieving poise in every phase of life, the physical, the nervous, the mental and the spiritual."

It is this marvelous synchrony of face, and form, and of all the adjuncts of natural perfection, that the famous beauties of history and of the present day have managed to achieve. By an instinctive or acquired sense of those things which are appropriate to set off their type, they have made themselves the personifications or rare and wonderful charm and loveliness in the midst of a prosaic world.

Mabel Willebrandt Poet.

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States and an enemy of Demon Rum in the exciting days of the 1928 campaign, can write more than passable poetry.

This talent of hers she used to furnish nursery ditties and cunning songs for her adopted daughter, Dorothy Willebrandt, when she was a little tot. Now Dorothy is a demure school girl and has outgrown nursery rhymes as a general rule. But she confesses to a fancy for those written by her foster mother.

Like Water Pouring.

By Katherine Smith.

Your voice,
Like water pouring
Slowly from earthenware jars,
Smoothes into the silence, and leaves
No trace.

Why does the sound dissolve?
And where
Can I hear the same low flowing beauty
When your lips
Are still?

Crowds Flock To Colorful Mums' Show

But Home Gardener Is More Interested in His Few Blooms.

Seven hundred and ten varieties of chrysanthemums wave and nod in gay display at the greenhouse of the Department of Agriculture. Every-day crowds flock through the long aisles, exclaiming over the riot of form and color. But, however admiring they are, if they belong in the select rank of true flower lovers, they would give up the whole acreage of departmental blooms for the hundred carefully tended stalks in their own backyard.

For that marks the gardener. She treats what flowers she has with all the tenderness and watchfulness of the head gardener at Buckingham Palace, and the next spring the blossoms burst out fit for a king.

Very soon now, when the chrysanthemum flowers are all gone, cut the stalks down. If you do gardening in a big way, you will find it wise to lift the plants from the soil and set them closely in a cold but frost-proof frame. But if the soil in which they grow is well drained, you can leave them in place all winter.

Dahlias you had best replant in boxes stored in a cool cellar. As they should be kept slightly damp, it is well to bury them in sand or sawdust. Take care that the place of storing is free from frost, but yet not warm, and that the storage material is perfectly dry. Otherwise the roots will rot. Good storing is the most difficult part of dahlia raising.

The trees, so lovely now with their rich color, provide leaves valuable now to the gardener, since they form a winter cloak on the garden to keep frost from killing the plants. When decayed they make a valuable addition to the soil.

Manchu King Decrees Ban On Decollete

Ladies Must Be Swathed in Ample Gowns at Court.

Hsinching, Manchuria, Nov. 5 (AP). In the future all male visitors desiring to see Mr. Henry Pu-Yi, chief executive and prospective King of Manchukuo, must wear regulation morning coats or full-dress attire. Intending lady visitors are required to don robes of a discreet color and of ample proportions, as is done in Rome when any woman is admitted into the Pope's presence. Decollete is forbidden.

The new edict regarding dress has gone forth since it became evident the Japanese authorities were preparing to elevate the deposed boy emperor of China from the chief executiveship to the dignity of kingship over Manchukuo's 30,000,000 people.

Formerly American newspaper correspondents and others who went to see the chief executive wore any attire they liked, and nothing was ever said either by Mr. Pu-Yi or by his Japanese mentors.

In the past Mr. Pu-Yi always preferred a simple American style sack suit to native Manchu robes. But since it became likely the young man soon might be sitting on a golden throne, he discarded the sack suit for a natty, black swallow-tail coat, smart striped trousers, "gates ajar" collar, and black patent leather shoes.

Washington Hostess Offended Actor

An aspiring Washington hostess, who shall be nameless, once had Richard Mansfield, the actor, as a dinner guest.

Mansfield had just published a book. The hostess hit on it as a topic as they sat down to the meal.

"Mr. Mansfield," she gushed, "you are as great a writer as you are an actor. I have read your book, and could not put it aside until I came to the very last paragraph."

Someone nearby misquoted the book, and Mansfield took him sharply to task. "Get the book!" he demanded of the hostess.

The butler was sent for it after the hostess had insisted she had lent it. The flunkey did not rise to the suggestion, and said it was on the library table.

"Go and get it!" snapped Mansfield.

When it was handed to the author he quickly saw the pages were uncut. Without a word, but with a look that spoke volumes, he stalked out of the house, and never returned.

Confederate Veteran Tells Experiences

Orange, Va., Nov. 5 (Spl.).—According to a statement made here today by W. C. Williams, there are eleven living Confederate veterans in Orange County. Their ages range from 75 to 90 years.

An interesting tale is told by J. A. Spicer, one of the oldest living veterans in the county. While returning from a desperate battle at Cedar Mountain in Culpeper County, J. A. Spicer dropped his gun and was left far behind by the remainder of the army. It was a hot summer night in August and dark as pitch.

He states that he was lost in practically "no man's land" for approximately six hours and pulled into camp at daybreak to find his name scratched from the list of the living.

Lindley Says Roosevelt Will Increase Pace of Changes Toward Recovery.

"The bulk of the evidence at the close of the first phase of the Roosevelt revolution indicates that the pace of the change will be accelerated. Far more radical and more drastic measures may have to be used. * * * Recovery without reconstruction of the economic system is probably impossible. * * * Mr. Roosevelt will probably have to use greater force to drive those facts into the heads of the vested interests of the old regime."

These words, with which Ernest K. Lindley ends "The Roosevelt Revolution," which the Viking Press will publish on November 13, hold especial weight because Mr. Lindley has checked at every point with "those higher up," and has been in close touch with the President himself.

From Christopher Morley's "Thunder on the Left," Jean Ferguson Black has made a play of the same name which opens in New York tomorrow.

Esquire, the quarterly magazine for men, which has met with such a rush of readers that it plans to turn into a monthly, will print book reviews by Burton Rascoe, author of "Titans of Literature," and play reviews by John V. A. Weaver, dramatist and movie scenarist.

The Gentle St. Francis.

A novel, "SING TO THE SUN," by Lucille Papin Borden; Macmillan, $2.

In this story of St. Francis of Assisi, as seen through the eyes of his youthful companions, Mrs. Borden has given us a vivid picture of the great Umbrian, whose life was an absorbing drama from beginning to end.

The boyhood of Francis—born Francesco Bernadone—is told in the words of his friend Adriano, son of a merchant prince of Assisi, and Adriano's sweetheart, Victoria, daughter of the Doge of Venice. Both of these individuals eventually become members of the lay order founded and established by Francis after he became a wandering friar.

The narrative is, of course, fiction, but it is draped on a slendor framework of fact. Many of the characters are historical figures and many of the incidents are of historical importance, but the narrative is still fiction because the author has drawn a number of events from her imagination. And she has been particularly skillful in weaving a number of legendary incidents into the story which are accepted as fact by those of Cathclic belief.

Mrs. Borden's five other novels were distinguished for their vivid character portrayals. Certainly this book lives up to the high standard she has set for herself. Not only has she presented a picture of the first of the Franciscans from a new angle, but she has given an impressive portrayal of one of the most colorful periods in Italian history.

That the novel is didactic, however, cannot be denied. Mrs. Borden emphasizes her contemporary aim repeatedly—just as Francis was "the hope of a falling century," his followers are now the ones to whom the weak may look in time of stress. But although stories written obviously to teach a lesson are rarely well received, this one deserves reading, because the narrative is unusually artistic and appealing. Every sentence has the cadence of a prose poem. Even in the selection of her title Mrs. Borden has shown her poetic inclination. It is based on Francis' answer to his friend's question, "Why do you sing to the sun, Francesco?" said Francis. "If I sing to the sun, brighter, warmer, more shining and beautiful than any other cerature . . . I sing in my soul to Him, not to it . . . My song is a song to the Son!"

Those who know already something of the life of St. Francis will enjoy this narrative. Catholics will find her sincere presentations of several tenets of the Catholic faith most satisfying, and others will like this story even though some of them know little of the life of St. Francis.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER.

Three lawyers, a bootlegger and his brother form the personnel of this murder mystery which is set at Bayside, an estate on the Maryland shore near Baltimore. Cyrus Evans, his adopted son Tom, and his two nephews live on the secluded estate of Bayside. Bob Williams, the teller of the tale, comes down from Baltimore for some shooting. There is shooting enough, but not the kind Bob had anticipated. The afternoon of Bob's arrival at Bayside, old Cyrus Evans is mysteriously murdered with a Colt .48. Suspicion is immediately attached to Tom, who conducts his own defense at the trial and is acquitted. The whole case rests on the science of ballistics. The explanation of guns and the part they play in the mystery is most interesting.

Even after the trial, the search for the missing .45 continues. Old John Patrick Vaile, the family lawyer, and Bob Williams stay on at Bayside to settle up the estate and to try to solve the mystery. From that time on, things begin to happen. The whole family are lovers of guns and have a large and unique assortment, but the particular gun that fired the fatal bullet can not be found. Local and State police are constantly on the job, but in spite of their vigilance numerous inexplicable incidents occur, leading finally to another death. The devious pursuits of the members of that eccentric household keep the reader in suspense until the murderer is finally unearthed.

"Murder at Bayside" is a fascinating and smoothly told story which will baffle the most astute guesser.

MARY TINLEY DALY.

White House Grandchildren Now Neighbors

Little Roosevelt and Coolidge Girls Near Each Other in Connecticut.

Two small granddaughters of the White House are now neighbors.

Sara Delano Roosevelt, granddaughter of the President, piles her blocks, and spanks her dolls at the home of her maternal grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Cushing, in New Haven, Conn. Cynthia Coolidge, born last week, granddaughter of the late President Coolidge, sucks her thumb, and blinks her eyes at the light at Cheshire, home of Mr. and Mrs. John Coolidge, just down the avenue from the Cushing house.

Sara has been doing some extensive touring this summer. From her home in Cambridge, Mass., she went to the White House, where she reigned as empress of all she surveyed for two whole days. Her word was law, and nobody minded obeying the commanding wave of such a charming hand.

Processions of children, led by Sara and soon by Baby Cynthia, have romped on the White House carpets, and slid down the Presidential dwelling's bannisters. Little Nelly Parke Custice searched through her stocking on Christmas morning, twelve grandchildren of Thomas Jefferson danced around the Yuletide tree to the rollicking tune of Jefferson's violin.

The four small Donelsons cheered the mourning heart of Andrew Jackson on Christmas morning shortly after the death of his wife. Next comes Letitia Tyler, granddaughter of John Tyler. Through the years tiny feet have pattered, those of the children and grandchildren of the great.

Of all the honors conferred upon the Presidents, perhaps no one of them is as gladly accepted as admittance into the Presidential Granddaddy Club. Johnson and Taft, Wilson and Hoover, and both the Roosevelts, all were grandfathers. The late President Coolidge missed it by only a year.

"General" Rosalie Jones.

There is only one woman in the senatorial circle who could truthfully say that she had walked all the way from New York to Washington. She is Mrs. Clarence C. Dill, wife of the Senator from the State of Washington, who as "General" Rosalie Jones, the noted suffrage leader, marched her army from New York to Washington to show that a woman had a right to put her foot in the political pie. Washington remembers the thrilling day in Wilson's first term when Gen. Rosalie and her army pitched their tents at historic Bladensburg, a few miles outside the city, ready for the next day's march on the National Capital.

Half Forgotten Romances of American History

Abigail Smith—John Adams

Abigail Smith Adams was an old-fashioned sweetheart and helpmeet, one of those courageous but gentle pioneer women who had a part in the building of these United States. Hers was the unusual privilege of being both wife and mother of a President. For both the man she loved and married, John Adams, and their son, John Quincy Adams, were elected to the highest office in the land.

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

Abigail Smith Adams, wife of the second President of the United States and the very first mistress of the White House, had romance in her soul, despite the fact that she was a thrifty housewife and hung the family wash in the east room of the Executive Mansion.

We know that, through the mute witness of a yellowed sheet of paper on which Abigail Smith Adams in her cramped handwriting, after years abroad with her husband in his treaty-making and visiting of potentates, wrote to a relative:

"I have learned to know the world and its values; I have seen high life; I have witnessed the luxury and pomp of state, the power of riches and the influence of titles, and have beheld all ranks bow before them as the only shrine worthy of worship. Notwithstanding this, I feel that I can return to my little cottage, and be happier than here; and, if we have not wealth, we have what is better—integrity."

Abigail Adams was the old-fashioned type of wife, a helpmeet in every sense of the word; the pioneer type of American woman, who, side by side with the men of the country, built the United States on a foundation that shall endure. Her sturdy virtues have been transmitted to generations that followed her until her descendants are a goodly throng, prominent in church, State, law and every progressive field of American life.

The wife of one President and the mother of another, surely that was glory enough for any woman. She lived to see her well-beloved son, John Quincy Adams, occupy his father's place as Chief Executive of the Nation.

But no more tender tribute was ever paid her than the lines inscribed on her memorial tablet in quaint old First Congregational Church, Quincy, Mass., when John Adams, out of his grief over her loss, had engraven there:

Abigail, beloved and only wife
In every relation of life a pattern of filial, conjugal, maternal and social virtue.

The promise not to remarry he kept, too, in an age when men married three, four and even five times, out of compliment—so they said—to the dearly beloveds who had left them through death. A cynic once remarked that the graveyards of the country reveal that practically every Revolutionary worthy outlived at least three wives. John Adams was the exception to this general rule.

The love story of John Adams and Abigail Smith is set in an old New England village, Baintree, Mass., not many miles as the aviator flies, from historic Boston. There the picturesque white houses with their green shutters and gabled roofs speak proudly of a colonial past, and cherish memories of the Adams family and their contemporaries.

It was early in the seventeenth century that Henry Adams came to Baintree. He had good stout arms and a stouter heart and it was not long before he acquired a homestead. Four generations of his descendants lived there in peace and plenty until John Adams, farmer and cordwainer, smiled into the face of a new John Adams on October 30, 1735. Little did the mother, Susanna Boylston Adams, dream that in her arms nestled the second President of the United States that was to be. The motto of that household then was "Fear God, honor the King;" the old Bay State colony was loyal to the George then on mighty England's throne.

In her heart Susanna Boylston Adams treasured the fond hope that little John might some day thunder threats of hell from a colonial pulpit. To this end she saved for his tuition at Harvard and saw to it that he was prepared to matriculate at that institution, the center of New England learning then, as now.

Meantime in a neighboring village, Weymouth, a little girl, Abigail Smith, played joyously with the flowers, the birds and her pets in the garden of her parson father's manse. She came from a famous "preaching line" and had spent much time with her grandfather preacher in still another bay colony town.

Clerical families were included among the New England gentry. When John Adams and Abigail Smith met and he began to court her, her parents were not overpleased. Tradition hath it that he even denounced John, as it were, from the pulpit while preaching furiously one day from the significant text: "For John came neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and ye say, he hath a devil."

Instantly John Adams became the most desired of men, and for John the virtues of Abigail rivaled those of the saints in Paradise. Dr. Smith fought against the inevitable for a time. Then he yielded gracefully, it must have been, because, in 1764, he read the simple rites by candlelight in the parlor of the Weymouth manse that made John Adams and Abigail Smith man and wife.

After the wedding supper John and Abigail slipped away from the merry making and walked, hand in hand, in the starlight through the winter wood to Braintree proper, where stood a little cottage. John unlocked the door and led his wife into the new life she had so wisely chosen, as after events proved.

In after years, other famous feet pressed that same big flat stone door step. Washington rode out there on horseback and while his aid held his horse he visited with good Dame Adams, drank mulled cider and ate doughnuts. John Hancock came often and Otis, Samuel Adams, Loring and other colonial worthies used to enter without the formality of raising the big brass knocker.

In that Braintree cottage on July 11, 1767, John Quincy Adams was born.

It was not many years before the first rumbles of the Revolution were heard in the modest little home. With her 7-year-old son, John Quincy, Abigail was to stand on Penn's Hill was to watch the burning of Charlestown and the flashing cannons and rising smoke that marked the battle of Bunker Hill.

In this same cottage she was to receive letters replete with devotion from a husband absent as minister to the courts of Europe, and to read "Our little cottage has more comfort and satisfaction than the courts of royalty." The sturdy cradle four times was shelter for sons of this happy pair.

Still the cottage was home sweet home while John Adams was in the Continental Congress and away from Braintree on affairs of State. Then came the Presidency and in November, 1800 Abigail Adams came with her husband-President and all the effects of government, to the infant capital on the Potomac.

In the "grand and superb White House" Abigail Adams was homesick. It was not finished and there were many inconveniences. She wrote "The house is made habitable, but there is not a single apartment finished, and all withinside, except the plastering, has been done since Briesler came. We have not the least fence, yard or other convenience, without, and the great unfinished audience room I make a drying room of, to hang up the clothes in. The principal stairs are not up, and will not be this winter."

But they were only to be there until March 4, 1801, when Thomas Jefferson was to take office as the third President of the United States. In those three months, Abigail Adams, as the forerunner of the gracious First Ladies who were to follow her, made of the President's House a home. Her woman's touch could convert even its bareness into comfort.

White House days over, back they went to Braintree and the peace that was there.

So the happy years swept by and old age came upon the Adamses, lovers still. It was 1814. October and 50 years had passed since John Adams and Abigail Smith had married. The golden wedding bells rang out across the placid New England meadows.

More years passed. It was October again, 1818, and the bells were not those of joy, but funereal chimes, "what a world of solemn thought their monody compels." Two days before Abigail Adams had lain dying, with John Adams' trembling hand in hers. "Do not grieve, my friend—my dearest friend—" she had whispered with her last precious breath, "I am ready to go, and—John, it will not be long."

She was right. After only eight years of living without her, when, on July 4, 1826, the same day, curiously enough, on which Thomas Jefferson was to die—John Adams, 90 years old, the oldest of all our former Presidents, went on humanity's inevitable journey into a land that is "fairer than day" and where he was to meet his Abigail—so he believed—again.

What's in Fashion?

Directed by Amos Parrish

Dresses are certainly doing their part to make every one look on the bright side of life. For if you look at the newest silk afternoon dresses, you can't help seeing the bright side since all sides of most of them are bright.

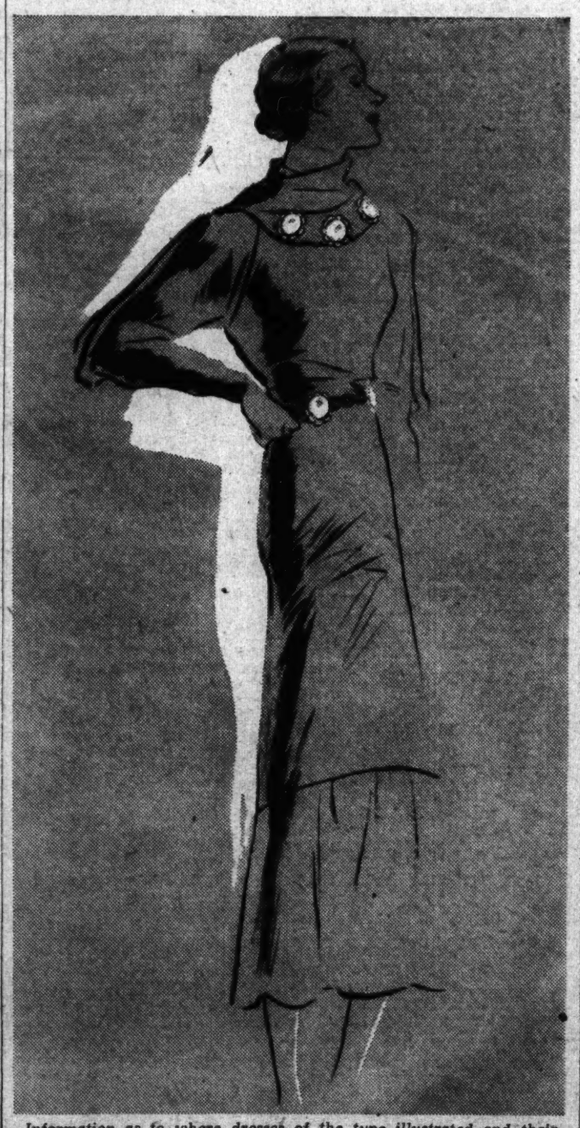
Bright blues . . . pansy and NRA. Bright Chinese jade green. Rust, another Chinese bright.



Information as to where dresses of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

Even when a dress happens to be dark . . . black, brown or those luscious shades of port wine. Concord grape and blackberry . . . it's like the cloud with silver lining—with a bright spot shining out at the neckline or belt.

Bright Trimmings.

The reds, rust and green are grand trimmings for both black and brown dresses. Ruby and pansy combine with the dark port wine.

And even a dress in a bright color may have a touch of contrast, as a pansy blue dress with soft rose belt, or bright Chinese green accented by black, brown or gold.

(Metal, by the way, will smartly trim any of these colors. In buttons and belt, for example, as might be the case in the dress illustrated.)

Then your darker colors may use a less sharp but none the less effective contrast, such as a blackberry dress touched with mauve pink or port wine one with a dash of raspberry.

Swathed Necklines.

One thing you're going to notice about many of these new afternoon dresses. That's the high swathed neckline, an outstanding new feature of this season. The dress sketched has one type of this neckline and you can see how soft and easy-to-wear it is.

Long sleeves are the general rule, too, though sometimes the three-quarter length is used. And most dresses of this type are a trifle longer than your regular daytime frocks . . . about lower calf length.

This is the dress to wear at the neighborhood bridge party, an informal tea, a matinee or any of those dress-up but not grand affairs on your engagement pad.

Soft Silk Fabrics.

Soft faille ribbed silks and fine cantons are the popular materials for them. And they do take these bright colors beautifully. But you'll even find some such dresses made of very fine, soft woolens . . . which take the colors equally well.

Lots of velvet is used for the bright trimming. Metallic fabrics are a fine livener-up, too.

If your coat is black or brown you can choose just about any of these colors you like. If it's red or green, you'll have to exercise a bit more care to make an effective ensemble. But it certainly is effective when thoughtfully made!

Tomato, Squash Pie Substitutes For Pumpkin

But Don't Serve Pumpkin and Carrots at Same Meal.

At this time of year there is a nice pie — a green tomato pie—which should be very cheap in any part of the country where tomatoes are plentiful.

To be at their best, pies should, of course, be served in a right combination with other foods, according to the particular kind of pie. For one thing, the rest of the meal should not be too heavy with starch and fat, for you have both of those food materials in the pie crust. If you are following the suggestions of the Bureau of Home Economics for a low-cost balanced diet, you would serve a green vegetable or a yellow one every day. But you would not serve pumpkin pie the day you serve carrots or Hubbard squash or sweet potato for dinner. The pumpkin is not only like the squash and sweet potato in texture and color, but is also a source of vitamin A for which all three of the yellow vegetables are useful. With pumpkin pie, baked white potatoes would be good, with shredded raw cabbage for crispness and for its vitamin C.

There are good substitutes for pumpkin pie, by the way, and they are sweet-potato pie or squash pie, made by almost the same recipe as the pumpkin pie.

KITCHEN GOSSIP by HILDA

A trick or two, for meatless meals

WHEN it comes to meatless dinners, we can learn something from the Chinese chefs. They use bean sprouts—a delicious, tender vegetable with new, exciting flavor. You can buy real bean sprouts, packed in cans by La Choy. Ask your grocer.

CREAMED BEAN SPROUTS

Prepare a cream sauce with butter, flour and 2 cups of milk. Season with La Choy Soy Sauce. Add 2 cups of drained La Choy Bean Sprouts. Cook 3 minutes and serve.

BEAN SPROUTS AU GRATIN

3 sliced potatoes. 1 chopped onion. 1 chopped green pepper. 1 can La Choy Bean Sprouts. Mix all ingredients in baking dish, and season with La Choy Soy Sauce. Add 1 cup of milk, slightly thickened. Cover with ¼ lb. grated cheese and bake.

You'll find a score of wonderful Chinese recipes in the La Choy cookbook. Write to me. I'll send you a free copy. Address La Choy Food Products, Inc., Detroit, Mich.

The Family Marketer

Unusual Fruit Called St. John's Bread Good for Colds, Stewed, Raw.

The Marketer had a delicious sense of exectancy this morning. She was sure she was going to find something unusual. She wasn't dissappointed.

In an Italian stall she spied an odd looking thing, about 5 inches long, brown in color, and dried.

"What's this?" she asked the market man.

"A fruit. We call that St. John's bread," he answered.

"What's it good for?"

"Some people soak it overnight, and stew it with prunes," he said. "It's good for colds. I like it raw this way." He took a piece, broke it in half, and munched on it appreciatively.

"What does it taste like?" the Marketer was curious.

"Try one?"

This was an adventure!

The Marketer helped herself to one, broke it, and took a bite. It was sweet, and crunchy, chewed like hard tack and tasted like honey. 'Twas good! Still chewing, she hunted around the shop for another surprise.

Home Pickled Olives Found.

"They are, home-pickled." The market man offered her one. "Maybe you won't like them, because they're sort of bitter."

They were sort of bitter, but the Marketer likes odd-tasting things. The market man said that they are to be eaten with bread. They are priced at 2 pounds for 35 cents.

At the same stall you can get pine nuts for garnishing cookies at 50 cents a pound, and freshly grated horse radish at 15 cents a bottle.

Here's the Italian way to prepare artichokes: Break off the darkened outside leaves and the withered tops. Parboil and slice, fry in butter or olive oil, and serve. If you want to experiment, this is a change from the usual preparation, boiled, and served with drawn butter sauce. Artichokes are 30 cents a dozen.

It is sometimes a problem to serve oranges without the membranes. If you peel them correctly the result is gratifying. Peel the orange with a sharp knife, around and around, as you would peel an apple, so that the fruit cells are exposed. Loosen segments by cutting on either side of the diving membranes. Lift out whole sections; remove seeds.

Florida Salad.

Serve grapefruit and orange sections, free from membrane, on crisp water cress or lettuce, with French dressing.

Dinner for Four at 70 Cents.

Cold Roast Beef
French Fried Potatoes
Diced Buttered Turnips
Whole Wheat Bread Butter
Milk Tea or Coffee
Florida Salad.

Winter Brings Idaho Return Of Cave Men

Unemployed Again Take Refuge in Ancient Caverns.

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 5 (AP).—Idaho's cave men have returned to their prehistoric river-bank dwellings for another winter.

With the first real cold blast persons looking for shelter are making for the numerous room-like caves along the shores of the Snake River, many of them once occupied by prehistoric Indians.

Most of the residents are lone men, but in one instance a family with two children took refuge in a cave until charity workers found them.

Most of the caves are 30 feet or more above the river, in lava formations. In some instances they have small entrances opening into larger covered caverns that make fairly habitable quarters.

One near Parma was occupied by the same man for two successive winters. Neighborhood farmers provided him with a few vegetables and flour, and occasionally a chicken would find its way into his cave to vary the menu.

A New York museum excavated one of the caves two years ago and discovered signs of occupancy at seven different periods, one nearly 2,000 years ago. Discovery of what was believed to be human bones gave ground for a belief that cannibalism might have been practiced.

Non-Federal Public Works Funds Hurried

P. W. A. Would Distribute $113,000,000 Allotted to Make Jobs.

The legal department of the Public Works Administration is working double shifts, day and night, in an effort to catch up with the intricate job of preparing and sending out agreements and contracts totaling approximately $113,000,000.

Up to November 1, Public Works Administration sent out 200 bond purchase contracts and grant agreements to local Government agencies receiving non-Federal allotments.

Double duty has been performed by the Public Works Administration legal department on these allotments. Each project must be examined before allotment is made and afterward agreements and contracts drawn in Washington are sent to local Government agencies for signatures. They then are returned to Washington to be signed by Administrator Ickes.

Want Work Started.

Bond purchase contracts are found more difficult to prepare than grant agreements, but continuous efforts are given to getting them all out as quickly as possible to remove men from relief rolls to pay rolls.

The policy of the Public Works Administration has been to give right of way to agreements and contracts where grantees or borrowers are prepared to start construction.

In numerous cases allotments have been made at the request of the applicant, subject to the outcome of local elections on the issuance of bonds. In these cases, at the request of the applicants, preparation of agreements and contracts has been suspended awaiting referendums in communities.

As an example of such a situation, P. W. A. officials point out the 13 allotments made to San Francisco several weeks ago. These grants are dependent on the outcome of a bond election tomorrow.

Nearby Allotments.

For Federal allotments, comprising bulk of those made to date, no P. W. A. agreements or contracts are required.

On November 1 the 200 bond purchase contracts and grant agreements sent to recipients of non-Federal allotments included the following:

Baltimore, $39,000 grant for pumping station; $135,000 grant for addition to Municipal Hospital, $60,000 grant for sludge digestion tanks, $9,000 grant for new sewers, $12,000 grant for a firehouse, $124,000 grant for additions to school buildings; Vienna, Md., water and sewer systems, $27,000 grant; Franklin County, Va., $2,000 grant for school building; Shenandoah County, Va., $27,000 grant for school buildings; Dinwiddie County, Va., $3,800 grant for school buildings; University of Virginia, $38,000 for art museum; Essex County, Va., $12,600 grant for a school building; Nelson County, Va., $11,000 grant for school building.

Leeway Given In Stock Issues

May Be Advertised Pending Registration if No Sales Made.

Underwriters of stock issues may distribute circulars describing a proposed issue among dealers between the filing of a registration statement with the Federal Trade Commission and its effective date, provided no efforts are made to sell or buy the proposed stock, the commission ruled yesterday.

Interpreting the securities act, the commission held it proper for dealers to spread information about the nature of their proposed offering during the 20-day "waiting period" between registration and effective date of registration. Any circulars distributed to describe the issue, however, the commission held, must plainly be marked that the stock is not offered for sale at that time nor will offers to buy be accepted.

"Prospective purchasers, whether they be dealers or the general public, during this waiting period, should be educated up to the nature of an issue, which it is expected that they will shortly be asked to buy, always reminding them that no determination to buy is requested of them until the expiration of the waiting period," the commission interpretation said.

Post Model Home Still Lures Many

New Forest Hills House Sets New Standards.

Threat of winter has in no way lessened the steady visitation to the latest Washington Post model home. Creating new standards in beauty, design, construction and arrangement, the home at 4517 Twenty-eighth street northwest, Forest Hills, continues the season's spectacle. It is presented by Edward H. Jones & Co., Inc.

The dwelling has drawn admiring throngs of prospective homeseekers from all parts of the city. All through the week representatives of the company were engaged in conducting delighted groups through the house.

The structure was erected by Carl I. Johnson and was built from plans prepared by Harvey P. Baxter, noted architect. It will be open daily from 10 a. m. until 9 p. m. until further notice. The home may be visited by driving out Connecticut avenue to Albemarle street; then turn right to Twenty-eighth street and left to the home as indicated by the road signs.

Price-Fixing View Unchanged

Rejection of Governors' Proposal Does Not Kill the Idea as Such

By Ralph West Robey.

President Roosevelt's rejection of the agricultural program of the five Midwestern governors is important primarily because of the light it sheds on the possibility of the Administration going into price fixing for farm products.

For many weeks there has been a growing fear that sooner or later the Administration would take such a step. In fact, it already virtually has done so though offering to lend 10 cents a pound on cotton and 50 cents a bushel on corn. Neither of these offers, however, were effective price fixing. The real danger has been that the Government would revive the old Farm Board or establish some other agency which would be its functional equivalent. It is in connection with this possibility that the President's current action deserves analysis.

First it should be noted, however, that there perhaps never has been a worse program receive serious consideration than that offered by these five governors. Not only did it propose to fix agricultural prices at an outrageously high level, but, as well, to have the Government license every farmer and tell him exactly what and how much he could produce on his land.

Personally, I should have had more sympathy with the group had they just demanded flatly that every farmer be paid $5,000 a year by the Government. This, at least, would have the merit of simplicity and I am not sure it would not prove cheaper in the long run. So far as the mere rejection of the program itself is concerned, therefore, it seems to me that this was more or less certain from the first.

Significant Aspects Basis on Which Plan Was Rejected.

The only question, in other words, as I saw it, was the basis upon which the rejection rested. It could be on the grounds that all price fixing is unsound, superficial and ineffective, or it could be simply because this particular program did not provide the proper mechanism. If the former line of reasoning was used, it would mean a break in the recent trend toward price fixing, and, consequently, would be encouraging to all who, on the basis of the teaching of history and the conclusions of economic logic, are convinced that it would be unwise for the Government to try to help the farmers in this way. On the other hand, if the plan was rejected because it did not offer the proper mechanism there would be no reason to interpret it in this favorable light.

Actually, of course, the rejection was based solely upon the latter grounds—upon the contention that the program does not offer the proper mechanism for pric fixing. Thus, the three principal arguments given were: First, that the plan probably could not be made effective throughout the country; second, that it would not be feasible to apply it to only a few commodities, for soon producers of other commodities would demand the same treatment, and, third, that adoption of the plan would raise serious legal questions and perhaps present difficulties in raising the necessary funds. Nothing at all was said in the official statement made from the White House on the unsoundness of the underlying idea of the program.

Invitation for Further Discussion Is More Important Than Arguments.

Even more significant as an indication of the way the wind is blowing than these arguments, however, was the point made at the end of the statement. This was that the Agricultural Department has complete sympathy with the objectives proposed by the governors and hoped that they or their representatives would "sit with the department" in order to "explore every possible method to improve the situation in respect to each agriculture' commodity."

One can never be sure, of course, how much of the wording of such statements is based upon political consideration. In this case, however, some of the wording can not be passed over lightly merely because of the possibility of such a consideration. I appreciate the desire of the Agricultural Department to aid the farmers and their interest in getting any available help. At the same time, when price raising is tied up directly with individual commodities, as contrasted with the whole agricultural situation, it smacks of price fixing. That, it seems to me, is the only feasible interpretation of the manner in which this proposal of the five governors has been handled.

I am afraid, therefore, that although on the surface it appears the nonprice-fixing group has won a victory, actually they have gained little. A particular plan has been rejected, but the idea of price-fixing as an aid to the farmers has not been killed. That was the danger before the five governors came to Washington, and I can not see that the situation has been materially altered.

Stocks Back and Fill as Gold Buying is Begun to Aid Dollar

Ninety Representative Issues Record Small Gain of Seven-Tenths for Week; Corporate News Indicates Hope for Improvement.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Financial markets became confused in the maze of new monetary policies this week and wobbled about without making much progress in any direction.

Despite the announcement of the extension of the Administration's gold buying program to foreign markets, the dollar declined less rapidly in relation to foreign currencies than in the previous week, and sensitive commodities made little progress.

The stock market backed and filled irresolutely, the price index of 90 representative issues recording the small gain of 7-10 of a point for the week.

It was notable that the announced foreign buying of gold, calculated to depreciate the dollar, was pursued with utmost caution. Purchases were kept secret, and believed to be very small. After a sag in the week, the dollar was inclined to resist further declines in terms of other currencies.

Therefore, it appeared that the plan was not as yet being given a decisive test, and some quarters felt that aggressive operations were being delayed in the hope of reaching an agreement with the British, which might obviate a currency war. Some quarters in Wall street were convinced that the so-called war debt negotiations with the British delegation in Washington were concerning themselves very earnestly with the currency problem.

Corporate news continued fairly encouraging, with earnings statements for the third quarter showing considerable improvement, although it was widely remarked that present indications are that fourth quarter statements will be less satisfactory for many companies. U. S. Steel reported the smallest deficit for the last quarter for any three-months period in more than two years, and the better conditions in the oil industry were reflected by a resumption of dividends by Socony-Vacuum Corporation.

The controversy over inflation continued, with the sound money school becoming a little more vocal, and gold mining stocks declined toward the end of the week. Some quarters in Wall street felt that the fact that plans under discussion in Washington with governors of some of leading farm States appeared to involve price-fixing chiefly, indicated that inflation was being sidetracked. On the other hand, other observers in financial circles said that should the present gold program fail to achieve results, the greenback agitation would probably reach powerful proportions.

Prices Decline In Wool Tops During Week

New York, Nov. 5—Prices of wool top futures on the New York Wool Top Exchange showed a decline of 2 to 14 points during the past week, with the largest recessions in the more distant months. Trading was very quiet and confined mainly to the winter months.

Business in the spot top market at Boston continued to be extremely slow with very few sales reported and those for very small quantities only. Prices, however, were very steady with the Boston spot prices of the exchange standard top holding unchanged at 109.5 cents.

Futures in foreign markets closed the week at higher levels. The Antwerp market registered advances of ⅞ to 1⅛ pennies, while Roubaix was up 70 to 80 centimes. Both markets were fairly active. Bradford spot quotations were unchanged to up 1 penny.

$850 Note of 1904 Costs $2,902 by 1933

Warren, Ohio, Nov. 5 (AP).—Since 1904 Mary Lang, of Niles, Ohio, has been paying interest on a note of $850 to Kate Watson Abbey, of Warren, a sister-in-law. The interest in that time totaled more than $2,000.

Last October Mrs. Abbey sued Mrs. Lang for collection of the note. A jury has ruled the note must be paid, adding some $52 to the principal to cover interest since last October, plus court costs.

Crop Report Holds Greater 1934 Demand

Outlook Believed Favorable as Industry Shows Improvement.

Farm production and demand will be somewhat closer together this year as industrial recovery progresses, the Department of Agriculture predicted today in its annual outlook report.

The report predicts a considerable increase in domestic demand, but a reduction in export. Even with increased demand, there will be surpluses of some farm products, the report says.

"It seems probable further advances in prices of farm products will be dependent primarily upon a more pronounced recovery in the output of industries using nonagricultural products," the report continued.

Some Low Yields Seen.

"Total production of crops may be held to about the same level as in 1933, when production, especially of grain, was influenced by unusually low yields in some crops. Plans for restricting the cultivated acreage in 1934 will tend to reduce the demand for production credit. Low interest rates in central money markets indicate low cost of credit on good security through agricultural credit corporations, production credit associations and cooperative banks."

The report indicated the total supply of cotton still will be large in spite of the adjustment program to cut acreage. It said Government action will continue a prime factor affecting wheat prices the coming year.

"Favorable aspects of the world wheat situation are to be found in the prospect for improved business conditions in various countries and in the possibility of a reduction in acreage and some relaxation of import restrictions as a result of the London wheat conference," the report said.

Tobacco Curb Expected.

It indicated supplies of most types of tobacco would continue excessive, although consumption has increased. The report said that before the next planting season it is probable action will be taken to control production.

In discussing live stock, the report said it is likely an increase in cattle will offset the decrease in hogs, brought about by the corn-hog control program.

Dollar Reaches Old Pound Par

Sterling Value Now $4.86 With United States Buying Gold.

Paris, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—The United States Government was expected to continue its purchases of gold in Paris tomorrow as the dollar returned to its old par of $4.86 to the pound sterling in London.

Banks in New York were reported to be preparing to purchase heavily during the week, on behalf of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—Washington's agent in the purchase of gold in the open market.

French bankers estimated that the United States already has obtained 15,000,000 francs (about $960,000) worth of gold here since President Roosevelt announced his gold policy. They believed that Mr. Roosevelt was ready to continue small purchases abroad until the dollar dropped to 13 francs. It at present is still around 16 francs to the dollar.

Financiers said short sales of the dollar through Paris totaled $500,000,000, and were increasing daily. The short sellers were certain of profit if President Roosevelt continues to increase the gold price, as he has done almost daily for the past week.

Mexican Lauds Roosevelt's Aid

Envoy to Pan-American Praises Efforts for World Comity.

Lima, Peru, Nov. 5 (AP).—J. M. Puig Causaranc, minister for foreign relations of Mexico, sailed today to represent his nation at the forthcoming Pan-American Conference in Montevideo.

The Mexican statesman lauded the efforts put forth by President Roosevelt for a rapprochement of the United States and Latin America with human understanding. He eulogized the Roosevelt policy as one which is helping millions of forgotten men.

"I do not want to mean by continental cooperation," said the envoy, that we are fostering aggression against any other country or any other continent.

"We want cooperation among our nations to improve our physical, moral, intellectual and spiritual life. I emphasize our policy of nonaggression because we must have cooperation also from other continents."

Evanston Faces Deficit.

Chicago, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Evanston, exclusive Chicago suburb, and reputedly the second richest city in the United States, will finish the year with a deficit of $90,000, Herman Simpson, city council finance committee chairman, announced recently. A decrease of 25 per cent in Cook County real estate is given as the principal reason for the deficit.

$25,000 for Road Work.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 5 (Spl.).—For grading and paving of eight-tenths of a mile of State route 26 within the corporate limits of Kingwood, the Federal Government has made an allotment of $25,000.

Kenilworth Plant Will Make Beers

The newly formed Kenilworth Brewing Co., incorporated in Maryland, plans to engage in the manufacture of beer, vinous and malt liquors, and later may extend its activities to the distillation of liquors. A byproduct is carbonic gas which is convertible into dry ice.

The brewery of the new company will be located in Kenilworth and have a capacity of approximately 100,000 barrels a year.

Among those interested in the Kenilworth Brewing Co. are many of Washington's prominent business men: Hymen Goldman, of the Standard Cigar & Tobacco Co.; Abraham Liebman, of Liebman Brothers, wholesale grocers; Edward Zupnik, president of Edward Zupnik & Sons; James Witt, of Witt & Mirman, wholesale meat dealers.

U.S. Companies Bid For Chilean Wines

Valparaiso, Chile, Nov. 5 (AP).—Shipping circles are excited over the possibility of wine sales in the United States. Numerous American firms have sent representatives here, or have written to the chamber of commerce, making offers for Chilean wines.

Many of the larger wineries, numbering about 100, are banding to form a sales agency for exports. The government urged them to combine so as to eliminate useless competition and standardize the product.

Chile's wine industry is an extensive one, but not as large as in the boom years. Huge stocks left on hand in that era caused a drop in vine acreage. Production this year is estimated at about 250,000,000 liters. Less than 3 per cent of the wine is exported now, the country consuming the larger portion. Exports are chiefly to European countries.

Cotton Buying Follows New Gold Policy

Gains Early in Week Reduced 30 Points on Quiet Trading.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—A flurry of buying in cotton followed the announcement that Government operations in gold would be extended to the foreign markets, but it was supplied on advances of 15 to 20 points at the opening of Monday and trading later in the week was generally quiet.

Prices sagged off about 30 points from Monday's high figures under a moderate volume of Southern hedging and realizing or liquidation, but prices steadied up again on covering as the dollar weakened toward the end of the week.

December contracts, which had sold up to 9.73 on the bulge of Monday and reacted to 9.40 during Wednesday's trading, worked up to about 9.64, closing tonight at 9.62, compared with 9.64 at the close of a week ago.

Three of the private end-October crop reports had been issued up to the close of the week, placing the indicated yield at figures ranging from 13,418,000 up to 13,740,000 bales and averaging 13,548,000, compared with the last Government indication of 12,885,000.

Additional private reports are expected before the Government figures appear, but on the basis of those so far issued, traders were supposed to be evening up their accounts in anticipation of a considerable increase in the official estimate.

Meanwhile, the falling off in the volume of Southern hedging has been accompanied by reports that the holding movement in the South is becoming more general.

The New York Cotton Exchange Service reported world's consumption of American cotton for September was approximately 1,193,000 bales against 1,262,000 in August and 1,168,000 in September last year.

The consumption in the United States showed a decline of 85,000 bales as compared with August, but there was an increase of 16,000 bales in the September consumption abroad.

Kentucky Asks U. S. Relief Aid

Governor Tells President State Has Exhausted Its Resources.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5 (AP).—A request that the Federal Government take over relief work in Kentucky was made today by Gov. Ruby Laffoon.

The governor telegraphed President Roosevelt that relief taxes passed by the General Assembly had proved inadequate and that Harper Gatton, State relief director, had resigned.

Inability to raise necessary revenue, $250,000 a month, in cash from taxes on whisky and beer, which the Legislature provided, and inability to sell tax anticipation warrants to produce that sum monthly, as required by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, were explained in the governor's telegram. He wired a copy to Hopkins.

The State will be without means to provide relief for 92,000 cases on its rolls after November 15, the date of Gatton's resignation, Gov. Laffoon told the President. He added he had sold $250,000 anticipatory warrants for October relief, but that banks and investors had refused to buy more. He added "all good lawyers" termed the tax on medical whisky unconstitutional, and that the beer tax would raise not more than about $280,000 between now and next July 1.

Bad Weather Blocks Wedell's Speed Flight

Atlanta, Nov. 5 (AP).—Jimmy Wedell, speed pilot forced down here last night on a New York-to-New Orleans flight, attempted to resume his journey today, but was obliged to turn back because of bad weather.

Fraternal Insurance Prospers.

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP).—The Royal League, national fraternal insurance society, has announced its new insurance business has shown "an enormous increase over 1932." The announcement said adult policies doubled and junior policies increased 85 per cent.

1,400 Men Return to Work.

Lansford, Pa., Nov. 5 (AP).—Fourteen hundred men have gone back to work with the reopening of the coal colliery of the Lehigh Navigation Compnay. The mine closed three months ago after being flooded by high water.

Holiday Trade Is Expected to Start Upturn

Freight Loadings Still Hold Margin of Gain Over 1932 Period.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Business barometers during the past week have generally taken a downward slant, although preparations for the holiday shopping season are proceeding with considerable optimism, in view of the marked gains in employment over the levels of this time last year.

Production in a few lines has actually dipped under the like period of 1932. This was true in the steel industry, where ingot production for the week ending yesterday was estimated by Steel at only 25 per cent of capacity, off 5 points from the previous week and the lowest since April. Bituminous coal output also was reported a little under last year.

On the other hand, the movement of revenue freight, while it appears to have reached its seasonal peak, as it usually does, in October, still holds a fair margin over last year. The report for the latest week shows a recession of 13,808 cars from the previous week, a little larger than the usual seasonal decline for the period, but the total of 638,674 cars was still 19,390 over the like week of 1932.

Automobile output, despite the fact that it has entered a between-seasons lull, also holds above last year. Production for the last week was estimated by Cram's Automotive reports at 16,107 units, a drop of 9,127 from the previous week, but still well over the total of 12,250 for the same period of 1932.

Electric power production, as reported by the Edison Institute for the latest week, showed a small, somewhat less than seasonal gain over the previous week. It was still 5.8 per cent ahead of 1932, which was the smallest margin over last year since the first week of June, and compared with 5.9 per cent in the previous week.

U. S.-Canadian Wheat Exports Drop in Week

New York, Nov. 5—Exports of wheat (including flour as wheat) from United States and Canadian ports, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., for the week ended October 28, 1933, totaled 4,181,162 bushels, as compared with 6,717,456 bushels in the previous week and 6,207,644 bushels in the corresponding week of last year. For the season, July 1 to date, wheat exports aggregated 66,904,257 bushels, as against 100,210,663 bushels for the same period a year ago.

Corn exports for this week were 2,000 bushels, compared with 2,000 bushels in the preceding week and 34,000 bushels yast year. For the season, corn exports totaled 27,000 bushels, as against 777,223 bushels for the like period in the previous year.

Southern Roads Retain Bituminous Coal Grip

New York, Nov. 5—The four leading Southern coal roads—Louisville & Nashville, Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western and Virginian—will continue to originate the bulk of the country's bituminous coal despite shifting competitive conditions due to NRA regulations, in the opinion of John Leeds Kerr, railroad economist of the investment counsel firm of Young & Ottley, Inc.

For the five-year period ending in 1932, his analysis shows, these carriers handled an average of approximately 22 per cent of the Nation's bituminous coal traffic. Thus far this year, he explained, the average stands at 23 per cent, despite many predictions that the coal codes would ruin the business of the Southern mines.

Sweden Finds Radium.

Stockholm, Nov. 5 (AP).—Traces of radium deposits have been found in iron mines at Kiruna, in northernmost Sweden, by Dr. Axel Corlin. Whether the deposits are sufficient for commercial purposes is uncertain.

Monroe Doctrine Shrine Preserve

Washington, Ga., Nov. 5 (AP).—An old mansion, where some historians say the Monroe Doctrine was born in conversations between President James Monroe and William H. Crawford, once Secretary of the Treasury, will be preserved as a shrine to Crawford's memory by his descendants and others.

They have asked for a charter for the Crawford Memorial Association.

A modest marker along the highway informs passersby that Crawford is buried nearby. Monroe often visited the Crawford mansion.

Federal Bonds Drop as Gold Boost Starts

Semi-Speculative Issues Gain Strength Near Close of Week.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Extension of governmental efforts to depreciate the exchange dollar to gold operations in world markets was accompanied by a decline in U. S. Government securities and other high-grade investment mediums last week.

Federal issues showed a decided heaviness of tone all through the period. Some of the Treasury loans lost considerably more than a point, receding to levels fairly close to the lows for the year.

Pressure on prime investment ratings in the corporation divisions was sporadic rather than general, but in a considerable number of cases values fell sharply because of an apparent reluctance of buyers to pay asked prices in the face of monetary uncertainties.

The general trend among bonds of the better class, in the opinion of market observers, tended to confirm reports which Wall street has heard frequently of late that some substantial investment holdings have been liquidated for reinvestment in equities.

Semispeculative issues followed an irregular downward course during the first half of the week, but braced up later under the reviving influence of the rally in stocks.

Due to general lethargy and heaviness in the domestic departments, many traders turned to the foreign list and found considerable action in French, British, Swiss and other European government obligations. This group pushed ahead vigorously over a considerable part of the week in response to sharp advances in the respective currencies against the dollar.

Curb Market Improves as Week Closes

Cautious Trading Yields to Better Demand for Specialties.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Uncertainties as to monetary matters found reflection in the cautious movements of the curb market last week. The beginning of the period found prices inclined to droop on light offerings, but the list steadied at midweek and an improved undertone was in evidence at the close.

Strength of the alcohols contrasted with reactionary tendencies in metals. Utilities were narrow and extremely dull at times, while oils, after lagging, experienced a moderate late demand.

In the repeal group Hiram Walker, distiller corporation, Seagrams and Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" were in favor. Other issues that responded to improved sentiment included shares of Gulf and Humble Oils, American Gas & Electric, Parker Rust Proof, International Petroleum, Technicolor, Aluminum Co. of America, Swift & Co. Singer Manufacturing recovered mostly from a 9-point drop, while New Jersey Zinc and Newmont Mining had to absorb sizable offerings at times.

Trading was dull and colorless over extended intervals, but showed some expansion on the late buying. Total transfers were substantially under the figures for the previous week, and adveraged less than 200,000 shares per each full five-hour session.

Only 9 State Banks Closed in Montana

Helena, Mont., Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Only nine Montana State banks have remained closed since the March moratorium, State Bank Examiner Frank Johnson reports. Total deposits of these institutions still in liquidation were given as $2,351,045, including public funds secured by bonds.

Exactly 100 State banks, with deposits of more than $37,000,000 were reported in operation.

Screen Champions Revealed by Box-Office—News and Reviews of Theaters

September Had Seven Winners Widely Varied

'Tugboat Annie' Leads All; Film Premiere Tonight; About Showshops.

Seldom has such diversity of subject matter and treatment characterized any monthly selection of "box-office champions" as distinguishes the September winners as set forth in the November 4 issue of the Motion Picture Herald.

The pictures nominated for "championship" honors by the key city box-offices of the country during the month of September are divided among four rankings. That seven releases are in competition for the four coveted places is accounted for by the fact that three are tied for third honors and two for fourth.

The film plays which attracted the greatest September patronage, according to bona fide box-office records, are as follows:

"Tugboat Annie," costarring Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery, with a notable cast in support, accorded an undisputed first place over all competitors.

"Morning Glory," starring Katharine Hepburn, with Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Adolphe Menjou and C. Aubrey Smith, similarly won a unanimous ranking next to "Tugboat Annie;" Lowell Sherman directing.

Scramble for Third.

In a sharp scramble for third place, in the order named, are listed "Penthouse," featuring Warner Baxter, Myrna Loy, Mae Clark and Charlea Butterworth, under the direction of W. S. Van Dyke; "The Masquerader," directed by Richard Wallace, with Ronald Coleman in the dual role of the drunken member of Parliament and the able young man who took his place in Katherine Cecil Thurston's much-picturized story, and "Captured," the Warner Brothers' war-time drama, with Leslie Howard, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Paul Lukas and Margaret Lindsay, under the direction of Roy Del Ruth.

The tie for fourth place lies between "Lady for a Day," with May Robson, Warren William, Guy Kibbe and Glenda Farrell, with Frank Capra directing, and "Paddy, the Next Best Thing," with fanciful Irish romance, featuring Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter in the principal characters of Gertrude Page's novel, as directed by Harry Lachman.

Two Stars Double.

It is to be noted that Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Warner Baxter play prominent parts in two each of the films that the box offices rated the highest month before last.

Running parallel with the diversity of subject matter utilized in these pictures is the wide spread of favor among the major producing companies, no single organization exercising any such dominance as has sometimes been the case.

The only company boasting two entries in the list of seven is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with "Penthouse" and "Tugboat Annie." The other five are divided one each among RKO-Radio, United Artists, Warner Brothers, Columbia and Fox.

Tonight is the night, 9 o'clock the hour and the Fort Myer Post Theater at Fort Myer, Va., the place set apart for a film premiere which will be executed as nearly as may be, this far from filmdom's capital, in the precise manner of an important first night at Sid Grauman's Chinese Theater, in Hollywood. For the first time in history, a Navy film will be given its premiere presentation at an Army post tonight, when "Midshipman Jack" will be projected for a brilliant audience that will include many of the Capital's notables. All of the picturesque trimmings of a flamboyant premiere—searchlights, bands, master of ceremonies, broadcasts as the audience enters, &c., &c.—will be in evidence. It should be understood, however, that this is not a private preview, limited strictly to invited guests. It is open to the public and all proceeds will go to the coffers of the Army Relief Society. An important participant in the gala goings-on will be "Rodney," the horse about which the story of the film now being made at Fort Myer revolves.

McClintic's New One.

Guthrie McClintic will produce "A Piper's Son," a new, serious drama by Allan Scott, who in collaboration with George Haight wrote "Goodbye Again," seen in New York last season.

Scott has had other plays presented in England, where he attended Oxford as a Rhodes scholar from Massachusetts after his graduation from Amherst.

"A Piper's Son" will not be staged until early in the new year. At present McClintic is directing "Romeo and Juliet," "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "Candida" for his wife, Katharine Cornell, and on December 12 he will present Tallulah Bankhead in Owen Davis' new drama, "Jezebel."

Following the premiere of the Davis play, McClintic will go to Seattle to supervise the first performance of "Candida," to be given by Miss Cornell outside New York City. On his return to New York he will begin preparations for the production of "A Piper's Son."

One learns from a helpful bulletin from Mr. Fred W. Jordan, who is more or less addicted to such things, that "A Trip to Pressburg," the, in a manner of speaking, new play to be seen in the National Theater beginning a week from tonight, with Pola Negri starred for the first time in a full-length drama in English, is "a kaleidoscopic and startling story of a young man's love for a woman he believes to be of aristocratic birth and great wealth and its tragic climax.

In Picturization of Noted Play

The ingenuous young English actress, Heather Angel, reputed to be quite as angelic as her name, who will be seen opposite her fellow countryman, Leslie Howard, in the camera rendition of "Berkeley Square," to inaugurate its local engagement as chief feature of the screen bill at Loew's Fox Theater, beginning Friday.

The action of the play is set against the gayety and glamour of a popular cafe in Vienna. It enlists the services of a supporting cast of 50. Max Reinhardt first produced "A Trip to Pressburg" in the Max Reinhardt Theater in Vienna three years ago and before the curtain had descended on the last act of the first performance Lee Shubert had been cabled to acquire the American rights—which he did. So here it is—or will be next week.

Dots and Dashes.

Texas Guinan, most famous and most successful of the night club hostesses, died in Vancouver, B. C., yesterday morning . . . It is part of the irony of show business that she should be appearing in as gay a part as the night club hostess in "Broadway Through a Keyhole," current at Loew's Fox, at the time of her death . . . Speaking of Loew's Fox, in the Cotton Club's "Stormy Weather Revue," on the stage, Adelaide Hall and George Dewey Washington, respectively, are singing "Stormy Weather" and "The Last Round-Up" as they should be sung . . . Particularly the latter . . . Washington sings the "Round-Up" number not like a cowboy's rodeo chanty, but like a dying cow-hand's last lament . . . Which is what it is . . . Edgar Hayes, pianist; O'Neil Spencer, singer—both with Mills Blue Rhythm Band—Alma Smith, singing soubrette, and the leader of the Rhythm Band, himself, by the way, are entitled to words of praise for their work in the Cotton Club revelry, which they failed, through inadvertence, to receive in Saturday's review . . . The most spectacular newsreel shots in many months are those depicting the oil-tank fire at Tiverton, R. I., now on the local screens . . . It is a magnificently horrifying spectacle . . . Congratulations to Mrs. Dorothy Hodgkins Dorsey upon the brilliant inauguration of her Sunday afternoon concert series with Lawrence Tibbett yesterday afternoon . . . Manager Fred Hand informed this department during an intermission between Tibbett groups that yesterday's was the largest audience of paid admissions ever assembled in the history of Constitution Hall . . . The 3,800 capacity was exceeded by a full 500, a total of 4,300 hearing Tibbett in one of his most gracious moods . . . And speaking of music, the lapse of 36 hours has not changed this column's opinion that "Waltz Time," at the Rialto, is one of the most delightful of the season's film releases . . . Beautifully staged, splendidly acted and admirably sung . . . Although we would not be too sure that much of the singing was not "dubbed in" after the action scenes of the picture had been shot . . . And way not? . . . It is done on this side right along . . . Audrey Sieber, new mistress of ceremonies at the Earle, is the most picturesque, sartorially, of the three charming young women who have occupied that post . . . A little less hurried manner of speech will come with time and experience . . . Slow and careful enunciation is the thing . . . But those gowns! . . . Shades of Poiret, LeLong, Darien, et al. . . . Tres chic, tres magnifique, trade you last!

National

"DINNER AT EIGHT." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the stage play by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman, adapted to the screen by Frances Marion and Herman J. Mankiewicz, with additional dialogue by Donald Ogden Stewart, featuring Marie Dressler, John and Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Jean Harlow, Lee Tracy, Edmund Lowe, Billie Burke, Louise Closser Hale, May Robson, Jean Hersholt, Karen Morley, Phillips Holmes, Madge Evans and scores more. Directed by George Cukor. Reviewed Sunday night, second week.

Combining the talents of an unprecedented number of stars, without overemphasis of any or indifference to any; mounting its scenes with the cinema's characteristic opulence and setting forth a story that never fails to interest—although it may, now and again, fail to convince—it was inevitable that "Dinner at Eight" should prolong its road-show engagement at the National at least through a second week. That week began yesterday with no evidences of diminution of the favor in which this fabulous picture has been held during the first seven days of its local run.

"Dinner at Eight," while it boasts a formidable array of names—and so may give a false impression of ultra-highbrowism or some ponderous quality requiring the services of the greatest acting talent the theater can provide—is in subject matter and treatment solely and completely a picture for the entertainment of the masses; a monumental creation, to be sure, in its every prodigious dimension, but a "showman's" picture, for all that.

The action abounds in comedy, romance and the zest of conflict and, least it lean too far on the side of frivolity, leavens its story with a touch or two of tragedy. The developments, for the most part, occur on the fateful evening when Mrs. Oliver Jordan has planned to give "an informal little dinner" to Lord and Lady Ferncliffe. This innocent social amenity, as it turns out, is attended by all manner of calamity. Each minor disaster and major catastrophe has its own little group of principals and only in the most remote sort of way are they interrelated.

It is by this device of story-telling that "Dinner at Eight" is able to provide each of its multitude of stellar personalities an adequate opportunity.

There is a remarkable balance in the apportionment of the pivotal incidents in the drama. It is unnecessary at this time—what with the names printed in small type in the paragraph preceding these cursory remarks—to enumerate the many excellent contributions made to this film by the Barrymores, Miss Dressler, the Wallace Beery-Jean Harlow combination, Lee Tracy, Edmund Lowe, May Robson, Billie Burke and the rest. Their proficiency in their present assignments has been sufficiently celebrated to leave no doubt that here is an unique diversion, providing as nearly prefect cinematic pastiming as one is apt to find in a month of Sundays.

Gayety

"DREAM GIRLS." Jimmy Lake presents a new burlesque attraction, featuring Adri-Ann, with Hap Freyer, Boots Rush, Virginia Helm, Jack Ryan, Lucky Darlin, Joy St. Clair, Lew Petel, Charley La Vine, Charley Goldie, Tangara, Frankie Moore and Frank Smith. Reviewed Sunday matinee.

Beneath the glitter and tinsel, grease paint and powder, songs and gayety of "Dream Girls" there is an undercurrent of gloom, for Jimmy Lake's company of artists sing their collective and individual swan songs this week. Next week the Good Colonel Lake springs a new deal with road-show "glorifications of burlesque."

Imminent as the demise is, the company bears up and presents a show only slightly below the high standard of previous weeks. Heading the list of attractions—and they are much more varied than usual—is dark-haired Adri-Ann, whose specialities add verve and vitality when most needed.

Spotted early in the program and adding a note so somber that its effect is not soon dispelled, Jack Ryan pays tribute to Armistice Day (next Saturday, if you've forgotten) with the singing of "I Wonder where My Buddies Are Tonight." Though stark drama is not a stranger to the Gayety stage, Mr. Ryan's was most unusual not only in its immediate effect but in its "hang over" as well.

By the time Lucky Darlin's specialty toe dance comes along the burlesque equilibrium is regained, and when, in the second act, Frankie Moore (Miss Moore, to you) finishes her second number the show is stopped stock still in its tracks.

Built around his earlier success in impersonating Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde, Charley La Vine scores again in demonstrating his histrionic ability in this dual role, with the burlesque aspects being added by Lew Petel, Frank Smith and Charley Goldie. That being, for the occasion, deemed insufficient, Messrs. Goldie, La Vine and Smith, with Tangara as Tondelayo, do a much abbreviated version of act 1 of "White Cargo" that packs a k. o. wallop in the tag line.

The ballet comes in this week for two especially swell numbers, the first built around "Jeannine, I Dream of Lilac Time,' with Mlle. Darlin dancing the solo, and the second an exotic routine, with Tangara in the ace spot. Miss Helm sings the solos in both numbers.

Throng Cheers Tibbett Songs In Wide Range

Overflowing Audience in Responsive Mood to Varied Program.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Lawrence Tibbett's popularity was attested at his recital yesterday afternoon by an audience that filled Constitution Hall and overflowed upon the stage. His enthusiastic hearers recalled him repeatedly, received his generous extra numbers with requests for more, and lingered until his last song dismissed them a quarter of an hour after the scheduled close. It was an auspicious opening for Mrs. Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey's concert course.

Mr. Tibbett has been heard in better voice than he was on this occasion. His higher tones lacked resonance, save when sustained to their full volume, and had a veiled quality in their softer, more lyric, emission. But his admirable breath control, his suavity of phrasing, and his crisp diction were sterling elements contributing to an enjoyable program. Moreover his ever-active dramatic sense imbued each song with vitality, and his winning ease of manner put everyone in a responsive mood.

Bows to Old Masters.

His opening group contained Handel's aria, "Hear Me, Ye Winds and Waves;" the traditional Irish song, "Has Sorrow Thy Young Days Shaded," in an overharmonized arrangement by Vincent O'Brien, and the jolly anteprohibition "Good Ale" by Philip Haseltine, alias "Peter Warlock." These were followed by a group of lieder by Brahms and Schubert, sung in English, as was his first extra number, "Tomorrow," by Richard Strauss.

As his next programmed offering, Mr. Tibbett gave an excerpt from his latest operatic role, Emperor Jones. From Louis Gruenberg's essentially unlyrical score, he chose the bit most effective for recital—the prayer lifted up by the terrified fugitive in the forest. He sang it impressively with an intenseness that held his audience bound. When recalled, he read effectively the elder Germont's aria, "Di Provenza al Mar" from "La Traviata."

In his last two groups, Mr. Tibbett rang the changes from grave to gay. A Negro "Moan" by Edward Harris preceded two songs by Jacques Wolfe, "The Hand-Organ Man" and "Sunday Every Day." The somber "Death's Lullaby" was followed by Mortimer Browning's serio-comic ballad, "The Spite Fence," and the "Eleanore" of Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

Others in Lighter Mood.

With the exception of the romantic "O Du Mein Holder Abendstern," Mr. Tibbett's encores during the later part of the recital were selected for their entertaining qualities. They include "Betsy's Boy," by Jacques Wolfe, Gladys Rich's satirical "An American Lullaby," with its references to father at the stock market and mother at her bridge party; Moussorgski's "The Flea," Philip Haseltine's "Peggasie," two songs of Negro life, "Shortenin' Bread" and "The Glory Road," and "On the Road to Mandalay."

Stuart Wille, the capable and sympathetic accompanist, contributed two solo groups. The first consisted of Alexander Siloti's transcription of the prelude to Cantata No. 35 and the G minor organ prelude of Bach. The other contained Debussy's "La Terrassa Des Audiences du Clair du Lune," and the third "Rhapsody" of Ernst von Dohnanyi.

He was recalled for an encore after each group. While his reading had clarity and precision, one felt the absence of poetic impulse, particularly in the Debussy prelude.

Police to Attend Gessford Rites

A special police escort will be provided today for the funeral of Maj. Harry L. Gessford, former superintendent of police, and members of the police force will serve as pallbearers. The funeral will be held from the home, 4713 Piney Branch road, with burial at Congressional Cemetery. Maj. E. W. Brown, superintendent, will attend.

A native of Washington, Maj. Gessford was a son of Lieut. James W. Gessford, who was a member of the department at the time of his son's appointment to the force in 1881, a month before he reached his majority.

Maj. Fessford is survived by three sons, five daughters and nine grandchildren. His wife died eight years ago. All flags on police precinct stations have been lowered to half mast.

Chinese Bandit Atrocities Told

Dr. Page Relates How Human Head Was Displayed in Cafe.

Bandits in one instance placed a human head on a table in a restaurant in which the missionary was eating, he said, in order to intimidate the proprietor.

Dr. Page told of the growth of the China Inland Mission. In its first three years, he said, the mission held over 2,000 baptisms.

He told of seeing a Chinese woman, her baby strapped to her back, walk toward the mission until the skin of her feet burst in ugly gashes. He said her husband sewed up the cuts with a needle and black thread.

"She stood all this pain willingly, for she was on her way to learn of God," he said.

Eastern Star to Give Supper.

Ruth Chapter, No. 7, Eastern Star, will give a chicken pie supper in the Masonic Hall at Hyattsville, Thursday evening from 5 to 7 o'clock. Mrs. Sue Starr, University Park, is chairman of the committee. The chapter will hold Obligation Night ceremonies tomorrow in the Masonic Temple.

Early Sell-Out Of Post Opera Tickets Seen

An early sell-out of seats for Washington's first grand opera at popular prices was indicated yesterday as the sales total rose to nearly 13,000, with tickets going at the rate of 800 a day.

Employes of the Stieff Piano Store, 1340 G street northwest, opera headquarters, were kept at their posts until late Saturday disbursing tickets.

Meanwhile, educational and professional leaders in the Capital area commended The Washington Post for making easily accessible many of the famous opera stars of the world. The Post has reserved for readers 3,000 seats at half price for each of the eight operas to be presented here by the International Opera Co., of New York, the week of Sunday, November 19.

Warren W. Grimes, Washington attorney and potentate of Almas Temple of Shriners, was one of the civic leaders to express appreciation of The Post's support of the operas in a letter to the newspaper.

Educator Voices Praise.

Writing of The Post's arrangement with the opera company for a special children's performance of "Aida" the afternoon of Saturday, November 25, Miss Adele France, principal of St. Mary's Seminary, St. Marys, Md., said:

"It seems to me The Post is doing a mighty fine piece of work in making an effort to educate young people through grand opera and to reeducate many adults the same way. I don't know when anything has created as much enthusiasm in my school. You may be sure I was more than surprised when, after reading the announcement of the operas and suggesting that anybody interested see me soon, I was deluged with the whole school at once."

E. W. McCullough, counsellor for the manufacture department of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, wrote:

"As a Post subscriber and reader for three years, I desire to voice my appreciation of your generous aid in making it possible for so many to hear Carmela Ponselle sing at a cost so reasonable."

Noted Singers to Appear.

Miss Ponselle, famed soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is one of many well-known opera singers comprising the casts of the International Opera Company's presentations. She will sing her favorite roles in an evening performance of "Aida" Thursday, November 23, and "Carmen," Monday night, November 27.

Emilia Vergeri, who rose to international fame in the soprano role of Santussa in "Cavalleria Rusticana," sings the same part in the Mascagni opera, opening night. "Pagliacci," with Fortunato De Angelis in the tenor role, is another opening night presentation.

Readers of The Post may obtain reserved seats for the opera at half the International Opera Compay's prices until the paper's allotment has been sold.

3,000 Attend Mormon Rite In Dedication

Latter Day Saints Church Formally Opened by Three Services.

Salt Lake CityDignitaries Bring Greetings to Congregation.

Devoted to serving "all nations and all humanity," the new Latter Day Saints Church, at Sixteenth street and Columbia road, symbolic of the ideals of the Mormon people, was formally opened yesterday with three dedication services attended by more than 3,000 persons, including dignitaries of the church from Salt Lake City, Utah.

Three members of the first presidency of the Church, President Heber J. Grant and Councilors Anthony W. Ivins and J. Reuben Clark, former Ambassador to Mexico, addressed the meetings. The services were at 10 a. m., 2 p. m. and 7 p. m.

Other leaders of the church who spoke were President Rudger Clawson, of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles; Apostles Reed Smoot, Stephen L. Richards, Charles A. Callis and John A. Widtsoe, former president of the University of Utah, who has just returned from Europe, where he acted as European president of the church seven years.

Bringing greetings from Mormons residing in Europe, former Ambassador Clark said the new church is intended for all nations and men.

Urges Tribute to God.

"Mormons," he said, "are concerned with the last and the least, the humblest and the poorest, and it was for them alone that this church was built. We must be reminded that the nation shall be sound if each individual pays tribute to God. Until men learn to love truth above all else, we shall not rise to the heights in politics or any other sphere. The individual looms high for the Mormon Church. Salvation is for any man, even to the meanest sinner."

Explaining the early sacrifices made by pioneers in the Mormon Church, Elder Stephen L. Richards, said the present church was made possible by the hardships. He described the expansion of the church and said that it was represented in nearly every city in the United States.

President Heber Grant spoke of the fulfillment of the Mormon Church and the prophecies of Joseph Smith and Brigham Young, founders. In delivering the dedicatory prayer, he said:

"Father, we thank Thee for this beautiful chapel and we now dedicate it to Thee for Thy Holy purposes. We pray that all who come here and speak to the people may do so under the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit and that no evil influences or evil spirits may have an abiding place here."

Special Songs Offered.

Miss Margaret Browning sang "My Father" to the melody of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and the "Resurrection." At the close of the services the choir sang the anthem, "Hosannah," which was written for the dedication of the Salt Lake Tabernacle. The congregation sang "Spirit of God, Like a Fire Is Burning." Benediction was offered by Brother Miles L. Jones, president of the East Central State Mission.

A striking feature of the interior of the chapel is the large electrical chandelier in the center. Formed of an inverted pyramid built in sections of light glass front, the fixture has a spread of 15 feet and is in the shape of a cross. Nine beautiful art-glass windows on the north, east and south sides have inserted panels with flowers of various States.

Don C. Young, a grandson of Brigham Young, cofounder of the church, was the architect, while Mahonri Young, also a grandson, designed the mosaic, "The Sermon on the Mount," above the main entrance.

Edgar B. Brossard, president of the Washington branch of the Latter Day Saints, is chief officer of the local congregation. His assistants are Dr. M. C. Merrill and Merlo Pusey, councillors.

Mormon Church Heads at Dedication

Left to right—Rudger Clawson, president of the council of the Twelve Apostles; Senator Reed Smoot, member of the council; Anthony W. Ivins, councilor to the president of the church; Heber J. Grant, president of the church; J. Reuben Clark, member of council of the Twelve Apostles, and former Ambassador to Mexico.

Seal Charges Dairy League "Dominated"

Evidence tending to show that the Maryland State Dairymen's League is dominated by the National Dairy Products Corporation will be introduced today before the Senate Milk Investigating Committee, it was announced last night by Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the committee.

Through the testimony of Allan Saurwein, Baltimore attorney, Mr. Seal expects to show that Saurwein represented the National Dairies and the producers when the milk marking pact for the Baltimore area was heard at the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

The purchasing operations of the National Dairies, through which it acquired the dominating position of Baltimore milk distribution, will be told by George S. Jackson, acting president of the Fairfield-Western Maryland Dairy, an affiliate of the National Dairies.

Other Baltimore witnesses will be: Irving Kemp, president of the Clover Lane Dairy; Albert D. Graham, chairman of the board of the First National Bank; Charles G. Page, assistant district attorney; W. G. Knapp, William Sauter and W. J. Finkner, producer.

$2,450 in Furs Stolen Here

Three Garments Believed Taken During Rush Hours Saturday.

Three fur coats, valued at $2,450, were stolen from the Capitol Fur Shop, 1208 G street northwest, David Silvermann, 301 Taylor street northwest, the proprietor, told police yesterday.

Silvermann said he believed the merchandise was smuggled out of the store Saturday.

The loot consisted of one silver fox wrap, valued at $450; a natural mink fur cloak, valued at $1,000, and another mink coat, also valued at $1,000.

Furnished Model Home Increasingly Popular

Numbers of visitors to the 1933 furnished model home at 3412 Garrison street northwest are increasing daily. This home is one of a popular group of five, four of which were sold recently. The display house, presented by Levin P. Handy, is furnished by Hutchison's, Inc., and the draperies are by John F. Ligon. The Dupont washable Tontine shades are by the Shade Shop.

The model home may be viewed by driving out Connecticut avenue to Fessenden street, then turning right one square to Thirty-fourth street and north one short square to Garrison street. It is open each day until 9 p. m.

371st Infantry Officers Meet; Pick Gen. Miles

Brig. Gen. Perry L. Miles, of Washington, was elected president of the Officers Association of the wartime 371st Infantry Regiment at the reunion of the association concluded here yesterday. Maj. Joseph Pate was chosen vice president, and Arthur Legge secretary-treasurer. Gen. Miles, who, as colonel commanded the regiment in France, is now in command of the Sixteenth Infantry Brigade with headquarters here.

The reunion, in addition to the business session, included numerous sight-seeing tours, a tea at the home of Gen. and Mrs. Miles, 2146 Wyoming avenue northwest, and a banquet at the Willard Hotel at which Maj. Gen. Hugh Drum, deputy chief of staff of the Army, Gen. Miles, and Maj. Pate delivered addresses. Capt. H. P. Taylor was toastmaster. Visitors from all over the South were received at the White House Saturday, and viewed a special drill at Fort Myer on Friday.

The 371st Regiment, with white officers and Negro troops, was incorporated into the 147th French division, under Gen. Goybet, and was one of the few National Army regiments decorated with the French Croix de Guerre. The regiment was trained at Camp Jackson.

Woman and Girl Reported Missing

Relatives Ask Police to Institute Search.

Two persons were reported missing in the District yesterday.

Marjory Mayer, 17, of 121 Twelfth street southeast, disappeared from her home at 9 p. m. Saturday, her mother, Mrs. Mabel Hanner, told police. The girl weighs about 135 pounds, has dark, wavy hair and a light complexion. She wore a dark green coat, with black fur collar, and black pumps.

Believed by members of her family to be despondent, Mrs. Marie C. Duff, 40, of 939 New York avenue northwest, vanished from her home November 1, police were told yesterday. She had gray eyes, was of medium height and wore a black coat with a fur collar.

Baker Badly Burned By Spattering Grease

Koahn was taken to Emergency Hospital from the bakery where he is employed at 5019 Connecticut avenue northwest. He went to his home after first aid was administered.

2,700 Join Mission Rally Of Catholics

Crusaders Give Pledge to Join in Spread of Religion.

Making his first official appearance at a public function since his consecration as a bishop, the Most Rev. James H. Ryan yesterday attended a rally of 2,700 Catholic young men and women, who gathered on Catholic University campus for their fourth annual mission crusade at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Cadets from St. John's College acted as a guard of honor. The rally included Crusaders, pledged to spread the Catholic faith; clergy, units from Catholic high schools, and members of 30 different religious orders.

Rev. Dr. John K. Cartwright, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, presided. He said it was the task of the Crusaders to spread the faith, a proper understanding of which leads men to right living.

Pledge Selves to Service.

In the crypt of the shrine, the Crusaders pledged themselves to the service of spreading of Christ's kingdom on earth, asserting that they would "fight darkness with light, error with truth, and paganism with Christianity."

Bishop Ryan, assisted by the Rev. Luis C. Vaeth, spiritual director of the Catholic University Conference, and by the Rev. Brother Robert Slavin, of the Dominican College, conferred the Grand Cross of the Crusade on the Rev. Charles Lee, Holy Cross Foreign Mission Seminary, who is preparing for mission work in India.

The rally centered around the solemn pontifical benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. The celebrant was Bishop Ryan, rector of the university and honorary president of the conference. He was assisted by the Rev. John Chester, S. M., deacon; Brother Hilary, O. P., and Brother Marcellus, O. P., deacons of honor; Brother Michael, S. D. S., and Robert Slattery, S. S. J., acolytes; Charles Carey, C. S. C., thurifer, and Charles Leonard, O. M. I., cross-bearer.

University Choir Sang.

The Catholic University choir, under the direction of Leo Behrendt, Ph. D., of the faculty, sang. Committees for the rally were: Frater Agnellus Kelly, president; Brother Sheldon Kelly, rally interunit; Hary Daley and Mr. Walsh, marshals; Vincent McQuaid, ceremonies, and Patrick Veale, publicity.

The following religious orders were represented: Sulpician Seminary, Oblates of St. Francis Desalves, Atonement Friars, Viatorians, Oblates of Mary Immaculate, Franciscans of the Holy Name College, of St. Bonaventure College and of Mount St. Sepulchre, Paulists, Redemptorists, Claretians, Augustinians, Discalced Carmelites, Marists, Dominicans, Capuchins, Josephites, Salvatorians, Carmelies, Holy Cross, Holy Cross Foreign Mission, Pallatines and priests of Caldwell Hall; Benedictines, Marian Fathers, Christian Brothers, Xaverian Brothers, Brothers of Mary and Holy Trinity Fathers.

The following schools were represented: Immaculata Seminary, Georgetown Visitation Convent, St. Cecilia's Academy, Holy Cross Academy, Notre Dame Academy, St. Patrick's, Immaculate Conception, Holy Trinity, St. Anthony's, St. Paul's Academy, Sacred Heart Academy, St. Rose's Technical School and St. Teresa's, St. John's College, Catholic University and Trinity College.

Rover Defends Grand Juries

Lawyer Disputes Bride's View That System Wastes Money.

Unalterable opposition to abolition of grand juries in the District of Columbia was expressed last night by Leo Rover, United States District Attorney, following a statement of William W. Bride, corporation counsel, that he is studying the question of recommending that the grand jury system be discontinued.

Bride made it plain he has gone no further than to think about making some such recommendation.

Bride pointed to the fact that England has recently abolished grand juries. He said the District Attorney can obtain an indictment at will and that grand juries are a waste of money.

"District attorneys can not obtain an indictment at will," District Attorney Rover commented. "I don't agree with Mr. Bride. Grand juries here have been independent and they do what they think is right."

J. Harry Covington, former chief justice of the District Supreme Court, said abolition of grand juries "represents such a fundamental change in our legal system that any such move should have very careful consideration."

Collection of Pictures in Library of Congress Forms Record of Early American Buildings

Donation of Prints Invited by Director of Fine Arts Division.

Have you a negative of the "old homestead," or of your great-aunt Lucy's dormer-windowed house, or of that old mill that burned down in 1915.

If you have, send them to the Library of Congress where they will form part of the imperishable record of the buildings of early America being established.

While decay or the steam shovel levels the colonial, the revolutionary and the early nineteenth century buildings of the Nation, a record of them will remain in the Pictorial Archives of Early American Architecture.

Preserving Old Buildings.

In the other, he is interested in the actual preservation of old buildings of particular historic merit.

Dr. Holland is chairman of the committee on the preservation of historic buildings of the American Institute of Architects.

Of this work, he says: "Not so long ago a baker's shop became the focal point of interest at Charleston, S. C. What a shock it was to learn that loaves of bread were being baked in rooms that could boast the most beautiful interior woodwork in the city.

Home of Heyward.

"The bakery shop was the town house of Thomas Heyward, jr., one of the four South Carolinians to sign the Declaration of Independence.

"Work of restoration was done under the most careful architectural directions and the place today is as it was when Judge Heyward lived and George Washington spent a week there."

But his work at the library has nothing to do with the actual preservation of buildings—there are preserved negatives of pictures of buildings, many of which have long since passed into oblivion.

The negatives are gifts. Approximately 1,000 a year have been received in the four years since the archives were established.

Date Back to 1860.

The donors are mostly people who have made a hobby of picturing the colonial with their cameras. Some were taken as long ago as the 1860s.

In the archives all of the negatives are indexed, according to locality and the type of structure or architecture. Enlargements are made and a complete file of prints is kept.

Suicide Trial Laid To Hit-Run Suspect

Policeman, Hurt Trying to Halt Car, Recovering.

Lewis I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police, was recuperating last night from injuries incurred when he was thrown from an auto allegedly driven by Joseph Koch, of First street and Constitution avenue. Koch was in Gallinger Hospital recovering from a wrist wound, inflicted in what police said was an attempt at suicide.

Koch was taken to the hospital early yesterday after being charged with reckless driving and leaving the scenes of two accidents. While in a cell at the Fourth Precinct, he is said to have tried to sharpen a coin on the floor and then to have slashed his wrist.

Altar Looted

A robber, believed to have come in the guise of a worshiper and lingered when persons attending the final mass left and the doors were locked, stole a chalice, valued at $250, and an undetermined amount of money from poor boxes at St. Stephen's Catholic Church, Twenty-fifth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, the Rev. George B. Harrington, pastor, told police yesterday.

Estate Is Willed By Miss Tytus To Two of Kin

Washington Social Leader Killed in Car Crash Left $250,000.

Disposition of an estate, believed to exceed $250,000, was revealed yesterday in the will of Miss Mildred M. Tytus, Washington society leader, filed for probate in Pittsfield, Mass.

Miss Tytus was killed several weeks ago in a midnight automobile crash. Real estate, household furnishings, farm machinery, equipment and live stock from her estate at Tyringham, in the Berkshires, was left to her sister, the socially prominent Mrs. Lawrence M. Coolidge, of Boston.

To her half brother, John Stewart McLennan, jr., Miss Tytus bequeathed her securities now held by the United States Trust Co., of New York. A block of United States Steel was divided equally between her sister and Mr. McLennan.

The will was drawn here in 1929. Gibbs L. Baker, Washington attorney, was named executor.

Dr. R. H. Miller Accepts Call

Noted Kansas City Pastor Comes to Christian Church Here.

Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, internationally known in the Christian Church, last night announced in Kansas City, Mo., that he had accepted the pastorship of the National City Christian Church on Thomas Circle.

Dr. Miller resigned as pastor of the Independence Boulevard Christian Church, Kansas City, after 14 years service to accept the Washington call. Some 15 years ago he organized the "Men and Millions" movement in the church to raise $7,000,000 for Christian Church missions. Last summer he represented the church at London conferences.

Since the resignation of the Rev. H. H. Harmon, early in October, the National City pulpit has been filled by Dr. W. H. Pinkerton, an elder and a former minister.

Coroner's Jury Decides Today in Stuart Death

A coroner's jury today will decide whether Robert Y. Stuart, 50, United States forestry chief, jumped or fell to his death October 23 from his seventh-floor offices in the Atlantic Building, 930 F street.

Forest Service officials believe he accidentally fell from a window while opening it. Because there were no witnesses, a formal death certificate has not been issued.

Lutherans Plan Roosevelt Gift In Celebration

Ambassador to Speak at 450th Anniversary of Religion's Founder.

In commemoration of the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther, President Roosevelt will receive a bronze plaque Thursday as a gift of Lutheran Churches and the National Lutheran Council.

The presentation will be made by E. F. Eilert, treasurer of the council. At 8 p. m. Friday an anniversary celebration will be held in Constitution Hall. The Rev. Paul E. Scherer, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, New York, and Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador, will be principal speakers.

A vesper service will feature the celebration. Combined choirs of Washington Lutheran Churches will sing under the direction of John Monroe. The Washington Orchestral Society will also take part.

Reich Feared ArmsInquiry, Says Writer

Confirms Torture Tales; Believes Nazis Hope Fascist Rise Here.

"Germany could not stand an investigation as a preliminary to disarmament and therefore left the League of Nations," Edgar A. Mowrer, former American newspaper correspondent in Berlin, who was forced to leave by the Nazis, told an enthusiastic audience last night at the Jewish Community Center in a talk sponsored jointly by the center and the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

"Nobody can ask France to disarm today," he said, "because Germany is arming. He scouted the idea of a preventive war on the part of France or Poland and said that only the Germans talk of such a war. Mowrer said he believes a desire for territorial revision lies at the bottom of German discontent.

Hitler, however, will not go to war, he stated, for three reasons: he doesn't want to lose and he would if he fought today; a dictatorship is the weakest form of government and Hitler realizes that under it he would be the first to lose his head in discontent or defeat, and the present Nazi terror has divided Germany into two camps—torturers and tortured—and to arm the discontended would be a fatal move.

Expect Fascist Rise in U. S.

Fantastic as it may seem, the present Nazi government fully expects a Fascist party with anti-Semetic tenets to appear and poll a huge vote in the next American Presidential election, Mowrer stated. There is no doubt, he believes, that the Nazis are, or at least have been, spreading propaganda among German-Americans in this country.

Tracing the rise of the present regime, Mowrer declared that it came to power only through two accidents. Franz von Papen was the man who asked Hindenburg to allow Hitler to have partial power with the idea that he, Von Papen, would tame him. "But the man who let out the lion was in turn eaten by him." The other "accident" was the Reichstag fire, whether set by Communists or Nazis, he said.

To the charge that only Hitler's coming power saved the Reich from Communism, Mowrer replied that there had never been a "menace" in Germany in the 10 years he had been there as the Chicago Daily News correspondent. There had been one in 1918, he said, but the people who saved the nation were the Social Democrats and not Nationalists.

Says Tourists Are Fooled.

American tourists to the Fatherland have been fooled into believing, for the most part, that the rumored tortures were only myths, although they are entirely true. He told of numerous times he and foreign correspondents had been visited by beaten Jews, Communists and others who came to them as the last resort in making known to the outside world present conditions. Most Germans would not have stood for the present treatment of the Jews, he blieves, if they had not been lied to by officials. He especially indicted Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda.

As to the World War and the freedom of the press, he dismissed them with the statements that "Germany never forgave God for losing the war" and Goebbels' declaration that "newspapers are an orchestra upon which the government will play the tune it likes."

The audience which filled the auditorium demanded that he continue his talk when he stated he was running over the time limit.

Cab Driver Found Wounded, Dazed

Mystery Shrouds Affair; Car Proves Clew.

A deserted and bloodstained taxicab last night sent police on a search which ended with the finding of William T. Griffin, 36, its driver, at 2220 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Griffin, a former policeman, could not talk coherently when questioned by Detective Sergt. Floyd A. Truscott. He had cuts on his hip and wrist. Police learned he had been treated at Emergency Hospital early yesterday under an assumed name.

Child Ill, So Hysteria Sends Whole Family to Hospital

Four Recover From "Food Intoxication;" Physician Calls It Overeating.

A family of four were treated at Casualty Hospital last night for "food intoxication" brought on by the illness of a 3-year-old girl who had become excited after overeating.

Morton Treskunoss, his wife and their two children, Joyce, three, and Harold, 10, were taken to the hospital from their home at 317 Twelfth street southeast by the fire rescue squad ambulance. A call had been sent in that they were suffering from ptomaine poisoning.

A guest, Mildred Brainer, 12, of Capitol Heights, Md., escaped illness.

They recovered quickly after treatement, however, and explained that Joyce and Harold had been engaged in an eating contest when Joyce became suddenly ill. Believing her poisoned by food, the other members of the family also took sick.

Dr. Louis Jimal, chief resident physician at Casualty, said they were victims of "food intoxication" caused by overeating and a form of hysteria.

Police obtained samples of the food for examination at the health department.

Foes Supplied Tennessee Evidence

Jealous of Success of G. W. in "Muscling In" on Crowds.

Dr. Marvin Apologizes to Auburn Team for Using Ineligibles.

THE wrecking of its football team, together with prospects of a financially successful season was the penalty suffered last Saturday by George Washingtnon University for its successful attempt to "muscle in" on football patronage and territory held sacred to Southern Conference teams.

Tennessee's protests, which resulted in the barring of "Nig" McCarver, Johnny Baker and Hardy Pearce, were first inspired by rivals of G. W. U., which had been looking on with great disfavor during the past two seasons while the Colonials had been making great inroads on gate receipts that formerly had flowed into the coffers of Southern Conference teams.

Tennessee officials admitted to George Washington authorities that the evidence against the three G. W. U. stars had been provided by other sources known to be jealous of the successful schedules the Colonials had arranged.

Not Conference Member.

George Washington, while in Southern Conference territory, is not a member of the conference whose chief representatives in this section are the University of Maryland and the University of Virginia.

Tennessee had entered two separate and distinct protests in its efforts to bar a goodly share of the strength of the Colonial eleven, the first of which was ridiculed and abandoned, the second of which was successful when the G. W. U. faculty athletic committee took cognizance of the fact that McCarver, Baker and Pearce had previously played four years of football at small Texas colleges.

The Volunteers had sought first to oust seven G. W. players as transfer students on the premise that the game had been agreed upon one day before Tennessee had dropped from the Southern Conference and thus, technically, the contract should have been signed on Southern Conference forms barring transfer students.

Refuted Statement.

When G. W. officials refuted this statement by pointing out that it was not until two months after Tennessee had quit the Southern Conference that the contract for the game was actually signed, Coach Neyland and Athletic Director Parker took another tack.

They were readily supplied by jealous third parties with the evidence against McCarver, Baker and Pearce, and this evidence G. W. officials could not disregard—thus Tennessee won its point.

With 10 months in which to investigate the status of the G. W. players, Tennessee did not act until 72 hours before the game, when the Colonial coaches found it impossible to prepare for the loss of the players.

Showed Signs of Power.

Not until G. W. defeated Auburn was there any word of a Tennessee protest. After the Colonials had shown unmistakable signs of power and loomed as a threat to Tennessee's proud record, plans for the protest were set in motion.

This fear of defeat by Tennessee was heightened by attacks on the Tennessee athletic administration and coaches by a Knoxville newspaper, seeking their scalps following two defeats earlier in the season. Defeat by G. W. would have provided new fuel for the opposition camp.

The position of Coach Jim Pixlee at George Washington is in pointed contrast. The G. W. coach is a certified member of the faculty, with the same status as any professor on the staff. He can not be discharged without cause and his job is not dependent on winning football teams.

Apologizes to Auburn.

As a result of the banning of the three Colonial players, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of G. W. U., yesterday dispatched a letter to Auburn, like Tennessee a member of the Southern Conference, apologizing for the unknown ineligibility conditions on the G. W. team last month when the Colonials defeated the Auburn eleven.

George Washington next season and in future seasons will look to the North and Midwest for football opposition, where they deem the rivalries are healthier.

Langley Field's Gridmen Rout Baltimore Team

Langley Field, Va., Nov. 5 (AP).—Langley Field's aviators scored a 7-0 victory here today.

Langley scored in the second period after completing several passes and then pushing over from near the visitors' goal line. Tyrell, quarter back, carried the ball over and then place-kicked for the extra point.

7 Players Lost, G. W. Cries "Carry On"

W. and J. Next Opponent; C. U. to Meet Detroit; Md. Faces Duke.

"CARRY ON" was the cry that resounded throughout the George Washington camp yesterday as the Colonials, crippled and weary after their brusing struggle with Tennessee, turned their eyes to the future and girded their loins for the home stretch of the most successful campaign ever enjoyed by the downtown school. Carry on they will, though the squad be riddled by injuries and its morale shattered by the loss of three men, vital cogs in the machine that made a gallant bid to go through the season undefeated.

George Washington will be without the services of "Nig" McCarver, its scintillating half back; Johnny Baker, quarter back, and Hardy Pearce, tackle, in these final trio of games, and that is like saying the Yanks will go into battle firing cap pistols.

It will be without that dynamic bundle of energy, "Zuzu" Stewart, its candidate for All-American guard, who went into the fray suffering with an injured knee, and emerged with a more serious injury that precludes all possibility of his playing again this season.

Others Are Missing.

Missing, too, will be Henry Strayer, another guard; "Tuffy" Leemans, the promising sophomore half back, and Capt. Lee Carlin, who recovered from an injured leg in time to have a recurrence of the injury. Seven men out, and though the blow would be enough to stagger any team, G. W. issues a rallying cry to carry on. The spirit is willing though the flesh be weak. That's what makes for good football teams, for gridiron immortals.

The Colonials lost, but they were not disgraced. Tennessee had a fine, well-balanced team, with an All-American half back as the spearhead of its attack. Leave Beatty Feathers, the All-American out of the line-up and Tennessee would still have a good team, possibly not two touchdowns better than G. W., but still good enough to trim the Buff and Blue with McCarver, Baker and Pearce sitting disconsolately on the sidelines.

Tennessee Denies Making Formal Protest Against 3 G. W. Gridmen at Eleventh Hour

Only Submitted Evidence, Is Assertion; Decision Up to Colonials.

TAKING issue with George Washington University authorities, University of Tennessee officials yesterday declared in an official statement issued at Knoxville that Tennessee did not formally protest the eligibility of three Colonial stars who were withheld from last Saturday's game and banned from further athletics at G. W. U.

George Washington was in possession of the information held by Tennessee concerning the eligibility of Nig McCarver, Johnny Baker and Hardy Pearce as early as last Tuesday, according to the statement issued by N. W. Dougherty, chairman of the Tennessee Athletic Council, and P. B. Parker, athletic director.

Their purpose in issuing the statement was to refute what appeared to be an impression that Tennessee had made an eleventh-hour protest, the Volunteers' sports chiefs said.

In announcing that the three players were being withheld from the game, George Washington officials made no mention of a protest, but declared that the "eligibility of three players on the team had been questioned by Tennessee authorities within the last three days."

Tennessee's statement follows:

Would Correct Impression.

"In order to correct an apparent impression that the athletic authorities of the University of Tennessee had lodged an eleventh-hour protest against three of the players of the George Washington University, disqualified for having played their full four years of football at other institutions prior to entering George Washington University, the following facts are given:

"No formal protest was ever presented by the University of Tennessee. At the request of the faculty committee of the George Washington University, the faculty chairman of athletics at the University of Tennessee named the men who were involved in the information in possession of the Tennessee authorities and presented certain facts concerning these men. This information was presented at a conference with the athletic commission on Tuesday, October 31, and as requested, confirmed by wire on Wednesday, November 1. We passed this information on to the George Washington University athletic authorities with the statement that their decision in the matter would be our decision.

"We did not undertake to dictate any action that should be taken.

"We stated that the University of Tennessee would play any team George Washington University sent on the field. The team went to Washington with no desire or intention to refer to the question of eligibility and, when the members of the coaching staff were sought by the George Washington University athletic authorities, they stated and continued to state that the team was in Washington to play against any team sent out by George Washington University.

"We regret the necessity for making a statement but we do not feel that our duty to the University of Tennessee will permit us to let go unchallenged the newspaper dispatches describing as an eleventh-hour protest the furnishing at their own request of information to the George Washington University authorities on Tuesday before the game."

Tennessee Threat Is Cited by Pixlee

Tennessee athletic officials entered the conference with George Washington authorities concerning the eligibility of 3 G. W. players figuratively bearing in one hand a peace offering and in the other a blackjack, according to the declaration of Coach Jim Pixlee of the Colonials.

"They told us they would abide by any decision made by G. W., said Pixlee, "but they also told us they would not be responsible for any unfavorable publicity George Washington would receive if we did not bar McCarver, Baker and Pearce. We knew what that meant."

J. Phelps Hand, Jr., Is Winner Of Postilion Gridiron Contest

THE time element played an important part in determining the winner of last week's Postilion football contest, in which the first prize of four seats to the George Washington-Washington and Jefferson game next Friday night was won by J. Phelps Hand, jr., a student at George Washington. Chester Pask, of 121 North Virginia avenue, was second, and will be given three seats to the same game. Both Mr. Hand and Mr. Pask selected the same number of winners, 28, but Mr. Hand's entry was received two days ahead of Pask's.

J. PHELPS HAND, JR.

Four, with 27 games predicted correctly, earned the third, fourth, fifth and sixth prizes of two tickets to Friday night's game. They were Wilton I. Eacho, 2005 Douglas street northeast; Forrest E. Byrns, 703 Elder street northwest; J. H. Simmons, 6305 Maple avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., and B. J. McGervey, 74 Melwood avenue, Cherrydale, Va. A number of other contestants forecast the outcome of 27 games correctly, but their entries were received after the four awarded prizes.

The Postilion football contest will be continued this week, with the prizes being tickets to the George Washington-Tulsa game at Griffith Stadium a week from Friday. The prizes will be four seats to the winner, three to the second best forecaster and two each to the third, fourth, fifth and sixth best forecasters. A blank for next week's contest will be found elsewhere in the sports section.

Unbeaten List Dwindles to 10 Teams

Only 1 of 3 Western Candidates Likely to Keep Up Streak.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP).—The list of contenders for the mythical National football championship had dwindled to a mere handful today, headed by Michigan and Nebraska in the Midwest; Army, Princeton and Duquesne in the East; Georgia and Duke in the South, and Oregon, Oregon State and Southern California in the Far West.

Unless they alone should reach the end of the campaign unbeaten and untied, neither Duke, which plays an all Southern schedule, nor Princeton, which meets Eastern rivals almost exclusively, will be able to gain general recognition for National honors, and the Pacific Coast schedule is so arranged that only one of the three remaining contenders in that section is likely to emerge unscatched.

Hardly within the memory of man have so many title hopes tumbled in the dust in a single afternoon as did yesterday. The East alone lost six of its previously unbeaten major elevens, mostly in intersectional warfare with the Far West, Midwest and South.

Rams' Hopes Revived.

Carnegie Tech, Holy Cross, Colgate and George Washington all were spilled, but the biggest upheaval, from an Eastern standpoint, was Fordham's 13-6 beating by the St. Marys Gaels and the consequent ruination of the Rams' hopes of an undefeated and untied season and a possible invitation to appear in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

Fordham had been rated by many Eastern experts the most powerful eleven in the sector, but the Rams were outplayed by St. Mary's most of the way. They got most of the breaks, had by far the most opportunities to score, but simply could not pierce the Gaels' huge forward wall, averaging 214 pounds per man, nor fool the alert St. Mary secondaries with passes.

Carnegie Tech, tied once but unbeaten and unscored upon, traveled West to meet Purdue of the Big Ten and took a 17-7 trouncing as the Boilermakers rushed all their points across in the third period.

Holy Cross Beaten.

Holy Cross, touted as another great array, was soundly beaten by Detroit as Doug Nott's passing led to three touchdowns and a 24-0 victory for the Titans. Colgate, unbeaten since 1931, bowed to Tulane, 7-0, as Floyd Roberts ran 75 yards to a touchdown in the first period and a late Colgate drive was ended by the final whistle 2 yards from the Tulane goal. George Washington, losing three of its stars by the three-year elegibility rule just before the game, was no match for Tennessee's Volunteers who won, 13-0.

The East got most of its consolation out of Navy's magnificent 7-to-0 triumph over Notre Dame's improved Ramblers at Baltimore in a rugged battle that set up three new records. It was Navy's first victory over the Ramblers, the first time in history that Notre Dame had lost three games in a row and the first time any South Bend eleven failed to score in three successive games. Notre Dame gained more than 300 yards on rushing and passing and chalked up 18 first downs, but Navy's inspired defense halted every advance short of the goal line.

Temple, beating drake, 20 to 14; Pitt, trouncing Centre, 34 to 0, and Army, beating Coe College by the same count, hung up the other Eastern intersectional victories, while West Virginia was tying Marquette, 13 to 13.

Michigan Continues Drive.

Michigan continued its drive toward the big ten title, but the Wolverines were outplayed a good part of the way in their 7-to-6 victory over Illinois. The margin of victory, as it turned out, was provided by Willis Ward, crack Michigan end, when he broke through and blocked the try for point after

Monday Morning Quarter Back.

WHEN that George Washington team took the field against Tennessee with McCarver, Baker and Pearce out of the line-up you could have knocked the G. W. supporters over with a feather. Tennessee did, knock 'em over—with a Feathers.

And when Coach Neyland and Athletic Director Parker of Tennessee demanded on Friday night that G. W. keep its three post-graduate performers out of the lineup, they were only demanding what was tantamount to a lot—and got it.

Those 1,000 Tennessee fans on the north side of the field had reason to be tickled with the performance of Feathers. As advertised, he was an All-American. As far as this department is concerned, he takes rank with the other gridiron greats who have trod the turf of Griffith Stadium—Cliff Battles, of West Virginia Wesleyan; Frank Goettge, of the Marines, and Jack Flavin, of Georgetown.

Notre Dame fans are still trying to recover their breaths from the Navy game which the Irish always considered a "breather" in their schedule. When the word of Navy's 7-0 victory was flashed to men at sea, it was the most gratifying message since Commodore Perry's: "We have met the enemy and they are ours."

Football history was revamped by Navy's triumph. It was the first time in Notre Dame tradition that the team had lost three in a row; the first time in South Bend annals that the Irish had failed to score in three straight games; and the first time in Navy's career that one of its football teams had beaten Notre Dame.

And to think, that it was only two years ago that a Notre Dame team that beat Navy by three touchdowns was accused of pulling its punches. There could have been no like accusation Saturday at Baltimore. Notre Dame had no punch.

Virginia beats Maryland, 6-0, on a blocked punt, and it begins to look as if the Old Liners have a kick coming, because it was a blocked punt by the same Virginia lineman that beat Maryland in last year's game.

With Boston College routing Georgetown, 39-0, Washington colleges not only batted .000 for the day, but failed to score. The last time B. C. ran up such a decisive score against an opponent it was against Georgetown—in 1920. That makes two assists for G. U., at least.

The greatest crash since the stock market tumble in October, 1929, was heard in the East Saturday when five of the unbeaten teams had been heard from. After they had been heard from, they were no longer unbeaten. George Washington, Fordham, Carnegie, Holy Cross and Colgate now know how it feels.

The Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's came all the way from the Pacific Coast to meet Fordham, and it was worth the trip, was that 13-6 victory. We are now destined to hear a great deal concerning the probability that Slip Madigan is the next coach at Notre Dame. They could do worse.

Michigan's great team, which has mentally been accepting the Rose Bowl invitation ever since it handed Cornell that 41-0 licking earlier in the season, escapes defeat by a 7-6 score against Illinois and the high estimates of the Wolverines undergoes a sharp revision downward.

All of which makes Army now the National favorite. That 6-0 beating the West Pointers dealt Illinois earlier in the season wasn't much to gauge them by, until what almost happened to Michigan on Saturday.

Dartmouth is still trying to whip Yale in the New Haven Bowl. Saturday was the seventeenth time, and for the seventeenth time the Big Green went down trying. The overworked Yale jinx slipped a bit a few seasons ago and permitted Dartmouth a weird 33-33 tie.

Best U. S. Pro Golfers Will Seek Honors and Cash in Kenwood Open This Week

Field Topped By Sarazen, Shute

Hagen, Wood, MacFarlane, Armour Among Stars to Compete.

District Pros and Leading Amateurs Enter $2,000 Tourney.

FOLLOWING a long drought, which hardly has seen their golfing appetites whetted this season, Washington followers of the royal and ancient Scotch game will be given the best treat of the season Saturday and Sunday at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club. The occasion will be the third annual Kenwood Open, a 54-hole medal test which brings practically all of the leading pros of the game into action.

As a matter of fact, the entry list reads like that of the U. S. or P. G. A. Open, for most of the top-notch paid players of the Nation will battle for honors and $2,000 in prizes which go with them. The winner will draw down $600 with the remainder being divided among those who finish lower down in the race.

All of the U. S. Ryder Cup team except Olin Dutra have sent in their names, including Densmore Shute, British Open champ, and Gene Sarazan, the P. G. A. king. Johnny Goodman, the U. S. Open champ, is one of the few big guns to be among the missing.

Hagen, Wood Coming.

Among the other first flight pros who will be on hand are Walter Hagen, Craig Wood, Horton Smith, last year's winner; Willie MacFarlane, who captured the initial event in 1931; Joe Turnesa, Henry Ciuci, Johnny Farrell, Wild Bill Mehlhorn, Bobby Cruickshank, Tommy Armour and scores of others whose name are synonymous with golf.

Washington pro golf will be represented by Al Houghton, of the host club; Bob Barnett and Gene Larkin, of Chevy Chase; Fred McLeod, Columbia; Bill Crason, of Anacostia Park; George Diffenbaugh, of Indian Spring; Alex (Sandy) Armour, of Congressional; Cliff and Carroll Spencer, of Beaver Dam; Tony Sylvester, of Bannockburn, and Dave Thomson, of Washington G. C. C.

Although the Kenwod Open is rated as a pro event, entries of highly regarded amateurs have been accepted and some of the best of the simon-pures will battle the paid players for honors. Jack Munger, the Dallas star, who reached the semifinals in the National Amateur and who also holds the interscholastic title, has sent in his name as also have Billy Howell and Chandler Harper, two of Virginia's best.

Local Amateurs Entered.

The Kenwood course is in wellnigh perfect shape and, if the weather is good, the caliber of the field is capable of forcing the winner to break par for the 54 holes for the first time in the history of the event.

Entries received to date:

Alex A. Armour, Congressional; Tommy Armour, Medinah G. and C. C., Oak Park, Ill.; Robert Barnett, Chevy Chase; John J. Beadle, Philadelphia C. C., Media, Pa.; Tom Boyd, Fox Hills G. Phi Sigma Chi Wins.

Phi Sigma Chi defeated Delta Sigma, 19-6, on the Sixteenth street reservoir grid yesterday. Two of the winners' touchdowns were made by Shipman, and Raiford made one. Tolsen scored the only touchdown for the losers.

Ballston Skulls Work.

The Ballston Skulls will practice tomorrow night at 8 o'clock on the Wilson Boulevard Field. The Skulls desire a game for Sunday. Call Col. 6941 before 5 o'clock.

Over the Goal Line, Not Over the Wall, With the Lorton Football Team

Lorton Eleven Saws Way to 12-6 Win

Scores Over Virginia Jrs. in Opener in Spite of Alumni Coaching.

LORTON REFORMATORY sent its first football team on the field yesterday against the Virginia Juniors—and Lorton won, 12-6, after a hectic fight in which "There waren't no ten commandments."

The grid christening of the Lorton eleven was attended by all the spirit, enthusiasm and bombast usually associated only with large intercollegiate games. The prison team was hampered by alumni and the possibility of at least one of its players being declared ineligible.

The alumni and post-graduate students were allowed to get in the players' hair from the sidelines—from where they did their "Monday Morning Quarter backing" with remarkable ease and facility. The question of eligibility arose when rumors circulated among the spectators that Crockett, outstanding back of the Reformatory eleven, was not qualified to play because this was his first year at Lorton. No official action was taken on the matter.

The Virginia Jrs. scored in the first period by an aerial attack, which baffled the home team. One Lorton player was heard to sing mournfully that portion of the Prisoner's Song which goes "If I had the wings of an angel," as the ball sailed over his head towards the goal post. In the second quarter play came down to earth and neither team scored.

Rally in Second Half.

Shortly after the half, the Lortonians overcame the Virginians' stone-wall defense by the simple and familiar expedient of making little ones out of big ones and their quarter back, Beck, launched an aerial attack of his own by sailing over the opposition into the end zone—while carrying the ball. The Virginia defense crumpled just before the game ended, allowing Crockett to go free—as far as the enemy's goal posts.

The game ended, the Reformatory eleven gave a resounding cheer for the visitors, a bugle sounded and they trotted off the field to the wild acclaim of some 500 fellow students who had witnessed the encounter. No goal posts were torn up—the crowd was too orderly for that—and so far as could be determined, there is no foundation for the belief that the Lorton eleven will be booked to play Sing Sing on Thanksgiving Day.

Caddy Tourney Captured by Harry Pitt

HARRY PITT, of the Manor Club, won the annual Brightwood Caddy tournament played over the Beaver Dam Country Club course yesterday. His score was 76 compared to a par of 72. George Voigt, one of the country's outstanding amateurs found the course too hard and shot an 82.

First place in the low net class went to Johnny Baldwin, who had an 84 with a handicap allowance of 15 for a 69. Second place went to D. M. Dulin, with a 90—20—70. Tom Pitt took third place, with 82—8—74. Jack Waldron, 95—20—75, and M. Mohler, 93—18—75, tied for fourth. This tournament is played each year, and is sponsored by the caddies who used to work at the old Brightwood course in Chevy Chase. Harvey Shipley was the winner last year.

Commander P. P. Powell and Reeve Lewis, jr., will meet in the finals of the Siamese Cup tournament at Chevy Chase. The match is scheduled to be played some time this week.

Arthur B. Thorn, Lancaster Club professional, recently equaled the noncompetive course record for the Indian Spring course. He was out a brilliant round of 66. He was out in 33 and back in the same figures. Thorn was playing with Leo Walper and Nick Altrock.

Curtiss Best Southpaw.

Bryan Curtiss was the winner of the District left-handers championship held Saturday at the Indian Spring golf course. Curtiss scored a total of 154 over the 36-hole route.

Western Plays Roosevelt for Last Place

Game Listed Tomorrow; Eastern and Tech to Clash Friday.

THE battle for the basement title between Western and Roosevelt and the high-toned clash between Eastern and McKinley Tech for runner-up or possible co-leader honors in the 1933 interhigh series is the two-way district public high slate for this week.

Tomorrow, the west-enders and Roosevelt stack up against each other on the Central stadium grid plot, with the Georgetown eleven the likely winner over the Ruf Riders. However, the game bids to be fairly interesting, with the loser resting neatly at the bottom of the scholastic pile.

Friday, Hap Hardell expects to have his Tech charges to another fighting pitch and will seek to knock off the Eastern team.

Good Battle Likely.

The Manual Trainers realize they have a tough nut to crack in this Lincoln Park school, which, incidentally, battled Central to a scoreless tie in the opening game of the series. A win for Eastern places it as co-title holder with Central, while a win for the Tech outfit, sends McKinley to the runner-up berth, a notch above Eastern.

As is usually the case, Friday is the big day for the battling scholastic gridders. Aside from the Eastern-Tech embroglio, Boys Latin, of Baltimore, meets Landon on the Tidal Basin field; Friends engages St. Alban's on the Cathedral lot; and Washington-Lee engages Alexandria High at Baggett's Field, Alexandria. The game between St. John's and Gonzaga, originally slated for Friday, has been shifted to Wednesday and will be played on the Eastern High field.

On Saturday Emerson meets Gettysburg Academy at Gettysburg and Virginia Episcopal of Lynchburg will entertain Alexandria Episcopal.

The game today between Emerson and Charlottesville fives, postponed from last Friday, will be played on the Monument Grounds at 3 o'clock.

Kennedy Wants Game.

The Northeast Hawks forfeited to Kennedy A. C. yesterday afternoon. The Kennedy Club would like to arrange a game with the Georgetown Preps for November 19.

District Pro Gridmen Bow to Shenandoah

Shenandoah, Pa., Nov. 5 (AP). Splashing through rain and mud, the Shenandoah Presidents football team today defeated the Washington, D. C., Professionals, 18 to 2.

The victory was Shenandoah's tenth for the season.

Eagles Are Challenged.

Benedict Silver Spring Star.

Jim Benedict starred as the Silver Spring Boys Club 135-pound team scored a 18-13 victory over the Brightwood A. C. in a hotly contested game yesterday. Benedict scored all of the winner's touchdowns, going over in the last half minute of play for the decisive marker.

Rockville vs. Marlboro.

THE Miller Furniture team, of the Recreation League, defeated the German-American eleven, members of the Capital City League, on the latter's field by four goals to nothing, in the feature of the local soccer play yesterday.

The winners were superior in every department. Their passing was well-timed and their shooting was accurate.

Miller Furniture pressed consistently at the start of the game, Hall and Stonburner giving Mayer many hot shots to handle. At the other end, Heller was offside when in a good position to score, and from the free-kick, Hoy and Hall tested Mayer again.

Goalkeepers Are Alert.

Play ranged from goal to goal, with both sets of defenses impassable, the kicking of Nau and Nix being opportune and accurate, and each goalkeeper was alert.

A corner kick taken by Heller was cleared by T. Wellens, Donovan getting possession. Travelling fast, the Miller outside right centered on the run, Hoy meeting the ball with his head and cleanly beating Mayer for the first goal of the game, after 26 minutes play.

Outstanding players were: For Miller, Tamagni, Chaconas, Donovan, R. Wellins and Hoy; for German-American, K. Mayer, Nix, Johnson, Evans and Benedict.

British United Wins.

British United won its first league victory yesterday afternoon, defeating Brandywine on the latter's field handily, but mild surprises were registered in the other games. Mitchell's Store eleven decisively trimming the Marlboro outfit, and Gaithersburg holding the fast Rockville team to a draw.

Maryland A. C. And Gunners Triumph

TWO close battles and a swamping marked play in the unlimited class of the National Capital League yesterday. The Maryland A. C. eleven squeezed out a 6-0 decision over St. Stephen's, while the Seaman Gunners drove to a 12-7 verdict over the Mercury A. C. The Marions turned in the only one-sided score when they routed the Fort Humphries team, 19-0.

Hoff and Rome were the outstanding stars for the Marions. Hoff made two touchdowns, one on a 20-yard run. Rome sprinted 60 yards to a score. Lanig, Monett and Lamoni performed best for the Gunners, while Mercury stars were Webb and Lewis.

In the 150-pound class, the Palace A. C. retained its championship by defeating the Meridians, 18-0. The Scanlon brothers, Mike and Johnny, made all the scores between them. Johnny intercepted a pass for one touchdown.

Experts, Looking Ahead to Derby, Fail to Find Single Outstanding Juvenile

Many Upsets Scored on Track

Mati Hari, Far Star and Bazaar Candidates From West.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP).—Many races will be run and scores of horses will disappoint their owners before the 1934 Kentucky Derby is renewed at Churchill Downs next May, but already the experts are delving into past performances, breeding books and comparing the country's leading juveniles in an effort to forecast the winner of the historic race.

Seldom have they faced a more difficult task. Usually one or two juveniles have stood out. But not so this year. With almost every shift of weights, and often it did not even take that change, a different colt or filly galloped into the muddled championship picture.

Singing Wood First.

Financially Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood ranks first. But despite his earnings of $88,050, collected in one race, the Belmont Futurity, the son of Royal Minstrel does not look like a horse capable of emulating Twenty Grand or Gallant Fox.

The Midwest has three candidates, all fillies, which rate high. Two, Mata Hari and Far Star, are from Charles T. Fisher's Dixiana Stud. The third is Bazaar, E. R. Bradley's main hope to win his third straight Derby.

Mata Hari not only rates second to Singing Wood with total earnings of $55,634, but has the distinction of winning the Breeders' Futurity and Kentucky Jockey Club stakes on successive Saturdays at Latonia. Both races are considered good criterions of Derby caliber. Far Star won the Arlington Futurity and is fourth back of Bazaar on the money winning list with a total of $37,115.

Others Little Known.

Bazaar, victor in the Hopeful and the Jenkins Memorial, but defeated several times, is nothing for the "hardboots" to shout about. However, Broker's Tip was little known last November and two years ago Burgoo King was just another Bradley colt.

At least 10 other juveniles rate consideration. They include two from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable, First Minstrel and Black Buddy; C. V. Whitney's Jabot, Mrs. Dodge Sloane's High Quest and Cavalcade, Warren Wright's Hadagal, A. B. Gordon's Sir Thomas, John Simonetti's Sergeant Byrne and George E. Widener's Chicstraw.

Dodger Grid Pros Here Wednesday

Cagle, Kelly, Friedman Among Visiting Stars.

The Washington Passers, local professional football club, will meet the Brooklyn Dodgers, of the National Professional Football League, Wednesday night in Griffith Stadium.

The local eleven has been reinforced by the acquisition of "Mush" Dubofsky, line coach at Georgetown, and Joe Leyendecker, former star lineman of Vanderbilt University.

The Brooklyn team, probably the last of the "big league" elevens to appear here this season, boasts such well-known former college stars as Red Cagle, All-American half back while at Army; "Shipwreck" Kelly, former Kentucky star; Herman Hickman, Tennessee's great star tackle of a few years ago; Morrison, Michigan's All-American center; not to mention Benny Friedman, the former great forward passing star of Michigan.

Incidentally, Hickman has shown here many times as a member of Joe Turner's troupe of wrestlers. Cagle and Kelly are coowners of the Dodgers as well as outstanding back field men.

War Poloists Beaten In Baltimore, 5 to 4

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 5 (Spl.).—A three-goal handicap enabled the Maryland Polo Club quartet to close its season with a 5-4 victory over the War Department team, of Washington, in a fast contest this afternoon at Stevenson Field.

Exceptionally long hitting marked the battle, which was fast despite the slippery field, made so by the steady rain. The War Department horsemen opened with a rush to cut the Marylanders' handicap margin to 1 point. Lieut. Stadler, crack Marine player, smacked through a pair of goals, but then both clubs showed fine defensive play to hold the score at 3-2 until just before the end of the third chukker.

Flying Eagles in Drill.

All candidates desiring tryouts with the Flying Eagle A. C., unlimited class, will report at Roosevelt High School field tonight at 6:30.

Old Mat Style Opposes New Thursday

ALTHOUGH the flying tackle, Japanese headlock and airplane spin have, in a large measure, supplanted your old time strangles and toe-holds, one ancient specialty, long in vogue, again will be exhibited at the Washington Auditorium Thursday night.

A practioner of the old school and still fit and fighting at 48, Joe Stecher once more will turn loose his celebrated leg scissors when he goes to the mat with up-to-date George Zaharias, probably the roughest growler of this era.

Scissors Punishing.

Former champion of the world when leering and grunting were unknown, Stecher still retains his position among rassling elite. Holding champion Jimmy Londos to a spectacular Chicago draw a year ago, the scissors king's leg punishment still is numbered among the most punishing specialties on the mat.

Both 'Cowboy Jack' Russell and Ray Steele will attest as to the potency of Stecher's leg work. In momentous rassles staged during the past eight months, old Joe fractured ribs of both men, tying Russell up in such fashion locally as to enforce a two month lay-off on the part of his 232-pound foeman.

Odds on Ramey Drop, Bowen Stock Up

D. C. Youth's Hopes Soar After His Foe Barely Beats Gullota.

TO Ray Bowen, local lightweight, falls the distinction of becoming the first strictly local ring product in recent years to be given a chance to scale the heights in his home town when he meets Wesley Ramey over the 10-round route at Portner's tomorrow. Reds Barry was given a chance here against Maxie Rosenbloom, but in that case the local boy was a heavyweight—meeting a light-heavy. The Sarrons, the Landers et al. are not Washington born and bred as is Bowen.

Generally conceded a very poor chance when he was first signed to battle the No. 2 ranking lightweight, Bowen may spring into an even-money bet when news of Ramey's poor performance in New York Saturday night becomes noised about. Against an unknown—one Pete Gullota—Ramey was forced to extend himself to the limit to fight out a draw after twice being floored for a nine count. There is, of course, a possibility that Ramey was not in condition for last night's bout, but stripped for workouts in a local gymnasium here last week when his stable mate, Freddie Miller, was training, he looked near top form.

Slugs His Way Out.

According to reports of the eight-round draw, Ramey, generally considered one of the best boxers in the ring today, was unable to outsmart Gullota and had to slug his way out of difficulty. He has been given the edge over Bowen because of his superior boxing ability. If his ring skill has deserted him, the last member of the fighting Bowen clan will have at least an even chance to win.

Bowen is in perhaps the best condition of his career at present. The agreements governing tomorrow's bout call for him to weigh not more than 140 pounds, and he is already down to 141—and far from stale. He will probably experience little difficulty in making the required poundage and retaining the fine competitive condition he has already achieved.

Henry Irving and Sailor La Bonte, two sluggers par excellence, will exhibit their wallops in a six-round semifinal. In contrast to the main bout which promises some of the better brand of boxing, this semi-windup offers nothing but plain, unadulterated fist swinging. Neither of the contestants knows enough to duck a blow and probably wouldn't bother to if he did. Their idea of some fun is to punch holes in an opponent's head while getting their own noggins knocked askew.

The Postilion Football Contest

The Post herewith presents the third of its weekly football contests in conjunction with The Postilion, this newspaper's radio program broadcast over Station WMAL by Harris B. Hull.

Again the contest is based on 40 of next Saturday's outstanding games, selected from the schedule by Shirley L. Povich, Sports Editor of The Post, as the feature games of the week. Each fan is invited to test his own powers as a prophet or football expert by predicting the result.

The coupon below is for your convenience, although it is not necessary to use The Post chart. In the left-hand column, headed "Your Selection," fans are invited to submit their scores. On Saturday night The Postilion announcer will broadcast the results in the same order. The "Result" column provides you with a convenient form on which to record the final scores as they are broadcast.

To the fan selecting the greatest number of winning teams, The Post will award free four choice seats to the George Washington-Tulsa game at Griffith Stadium one week from Friday night.

To the fan placing second in the contest three choice seats for the game will be given. To the fans placing third, fourth, fifth and sixth will go two choice seats each.

Each fan is limited to one entry. Priority of receipts will govern in case of ties.

Dear Al: Pimlico Race Track, Nov. 5.

Perhaps you haven't heard of the double-play combination of "Tipton to Lowry" that's becoming prominent in Maryland this fall. Those who play it, play Lowry against Tipton when they are in the same race, and Tipton against the field when Lowry is not in the race. This system worked splendidly at Laurel and Saturday it brought four winners. Big, bad Bill Bennings was in fair form Saturday. He had three winners, Tela, Watch Him and Winooka. And Scotch Peper, winner of the first at a $64 mutuel, was his second choice. Sticking pretty close to the speed books these days. It is with a feeling of confidence that I pass these along. BILL.

First race—Shenvalee appears the most probable winner in this field of maidens. Has shown a liking for off tracks, and has been close several times. Park has been trying to escape the maiden ranks for some time. May show to better advantage in the mud. Accent drops down a few pegs and should be no worse than third.

Second race—Glen Burnie seems suited by this Maryland-bred race. Races well in the mud. Black Patricia will appreciate conditions and is in top form. Bokie B. may give the top pair a battle. Rustic Lady would be a threat should there be certain scratches.

Third race—Escapade won his last handily and will draw the good rider, A. Scott. Not afraid of the course conditions. Senado is speedy and has been carefully prepped. Gets the second call over Luckite.

Fourth race—Fanfern, son of Dunlin, will be right at home in the going. This one is in rare form at present. Kacala is slated to ride. Garden Message, with Porter up, will be the one to beat. Dyak may have to be third after that recent form reversal.

Fifth race—Swivel has shown signs of returning to the form that allowed her to win $71,000 last year. She closed fast in the Maryland Handicap from a slow start and appears to be ready. Kerry Patch is the one to beat. Just missed in his last. Keep Out may be the sleeper. Loves mud.

Sixth race—Zipalong for the top end of this purse. Form is best. Can't Remember is bred for off tracks and comes of a startling performance of last week when the son of Canter hot-footed home ahead of Dreel. Should make it a battle. Pretentious for the rest.

Eighth race—Momo will be hard to beat on the soft track. Gets in light and Porter is slated to ride. Bright Beauty will close fast and should be second. Syriac moves up by the mud; may allow him to stagger into the third money.

Bears Win Two Games.

The Munhall Bears rung up a twin victory on the Munhall field yesterday afternoon, defeating Lyon Park, 12-0 and Ballston Skulls, 7-0. Smallwood scored both touchdowns in the opening struggle, while Joe Via's touchdown run won the nightcap.

Sunday Game Wanted.

Survey Shows Jobless Face Worst Winter

Need Found More Acute Than Ever Before as Funds Dwindle.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Chicago, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—The Nation faces its fifth depression winter with every indication that needs for relief of human suffering will equal or exceed those of any past years, according to a State-by-State survey by the United Press.

The information was gathered from Eastern industrial centers and Midwest farming regions on the eve of a National rally here to mobilize citizens behind a drive to feed, clothe and care for victims of economic distress.

Even in territories where strong recovery has taken place, funds are at a low ebb after the drain of recent years.

The situation most serious in sections which longest escaped the full brunt of the depression. Typical of such districts is Los Angeles, where $2,000,000 monthly is required and conditions are estimated to be twice as bad as a year ago.

Unless Pennsylvania voters approve a $25,000,000 bond issue November 7, the State's unemployed face a winter of hunger and cold. The Illinois Legislature is meeting in special session to vote a $30,000,000 bond issue. Here, too, available funds have all been spent.

Legislative sessions have been called to meet relief crises in Colorado, Wyoming, Oregon, Missouri and Iowa. New York is expected to spend twice as much on relief this winter as last.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Overcoming Bashfulness.

Dr. Franklin H. Martin, secretary of the American College of Surgeons, tells the story of his life in the first volume of "The Joy of Living." In this recital there is much food for thought in this period when so many parents consider that their children face insurmountable difficulties.

Young Martin's father went into the Army in the Civil War in spite of his wife and two small children and an empty cupboard at home. He died while a soldier and thereafter the widow had to care for her family out of the pension and the small sums she could earn. Young Martin got an education of a sort by his own efforts, working his way through medical school as he had done when going to school in the country.

Our interest lies in Dr. Martin's recital of how he overcame a personality difficulty. There are many thousand people who have the personality trouble that affected young Martin, but not all of them are successful in overcoming their trouble. Writing of himself in his early adolescence he said:

"It pained me to meet strangers. I was tongue-tied in their presence . . . I was paralyzed with bashfulness. . . . My diffidence was painful not only to me, but it distressed my relatives and friends. I was as much embarrassed because I disappointed them as at my own personal misery. . . . It was a type of insanity that I struggled long and persistently to master. In my mind there was a determination to force myself to do or attempt to do the thing that I naturally shrank from doing. Hence I developed an appearance of bravado and brusqueness, an unpleasant brusqueness."

Those who know Dr. Martin agree that he has never routed this bashfulness and timidity from his personality make-up. Perhaps it was too intimately woven into his fabric to make that possible. But by patient, persistent training he has developed compensating qualities that have antidoted his weakness. Instead of yielding to his innate urge he faced his trouble and strove to train himself out of it. The battle that he put up against his shortcoming was one of a series which served to make out the timid, bashful boy a man of courage, determination, decision, aggressiveness, and self-reliance. Balancing the harm against the good that this inherent personality weakness has brought about Dr. Martin should hold it an asset, even though possessing it was as unpleasant as holding a bear by the tail.

The key to his success is found in: "There was a determination to force myself to do or attempt to do the thing I naturally shrank from doing." No effort to run away from unpleasantness was there. And trying to escape the unpleasant, by fair means or foul, is one of the fruitful sources of diseased personality.

No Special Danger.

G. W. writes: Will the eating of too much raw lettuce or raw onions cause worms?

Reply.

People are likely to get worms from eating raw foods. There is no special danger in eating lettuce and onions. It is not the quantity but the lack of cleaning that makes the hazard.

Black Peppers.

P. S. S. writes: What are the constituent elements of black pepper? What is it that imparts to it its burning taste?

Reply.

Black pepper is a ground berry which comes from India and other countries in that part of the world. It is about one-third starch. Most of the remainder is water, fiber, and an extract called piperine, which gives to it the flavor for which it is used. About 7 per cent of the berry is this piperine and allied compounds. Pepper has no food value of importance and is used on the table as a condiment.

In The Rut.

In Punktown there are people who've lived there 50 years; beneath the same old steeple they've heard the pulpiteers; around the same old buildings, the same old county jail, they've sat and watched the gilvings grow dingy, gray and pale. They've held their dreary sessions about the courthouse square, and talked of past depressions, and others in the air. Their views would doubtless harrow the ultra-modern guy, for they've grown rather narrow, as months and years slid by. They've met the same old voters, the same old bards and seers, the same old mortgaged motors sold off by auctioneers. They've seen the same diseases bear off the fair and brave, and heard the same old wheezes expounded at the grave. The Punktown brand is printed on everything they know; no change was ever hinted since days of long ago. The Punktown of their fathers is good enough, one states; and talk of progress bothers these ancient delegates. If they would only travel from Punktown-on-the-Lea, and scratch a little gravel some other towns to see; if they would visit places some 40 miles away, and look on other faces than those seen day by day, and see some other churches, some other courthouse squares, and roost on other perches and climb some other stairs!

Ritchie to Call Liquor Session In Two Weeks

Control and Many Other Measures Slated for Consideration.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Nov. 5.—Anticipating the repeal of national prohibition by December 5, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie is preparing to call a special session of the Maryland Legislature the week of November 19, he announced tonight.

Although the special session of the Legislature will be called to act on liquor legislation—including taxation—it is expected many other subjects will come up, including a renewal of the several-years-old fight to reopen the Potomac to oyster dredgers, proposals for a State-wide lynch law, proposals to establish a State authority to build a bridge across the Chesapeake Bay with Federal funds and legislation to permit Maryland counties to take advantage of Federal public works and relief funds.

The Potomac oyster fight, as usual, is expected to be a bitter battle, since it constitutes a clash between the oyster tongers and the dredgers. The river is now open to oyster tongers and the latter contend that the dredgers will deplete the Potomac oyster bars if they are permitted access to them.

The demand for legislation comes from Somerset County on the Eastern Shore, while the chief opposition is expected to come from Charles and St. Marys Counties, in Southern Maryland. Senator Walter J. Mitchell, president of the State Senate, represents Charles County. In the last session of the Legislature, Senator J. Allan Coad, of St. Marys, successfully waged several filibusters against proposals to open the river to dredgers.

Demands for State-wide anti-lynching legislation is expected to come from the Republicans in the Legislature and from the Baltimore City delegation—as a result of the lynching of a Negro at Princess Anne several weeks ago. Under Maryland law, authority to act against the lynchers rests solely with the county officers—and so far no action has been taken either in that case or in the case of a lynching two years ago at Salisbury.

Catholic Evidence Discussions Open

Speaking under auspices of the Catholic Evidence Guild, Miss Mary G. Hawks yesterday opened discussions on "Praying to the Saints." She will conduct meetings each Sunday afternoon in Franklin Park.

"The saints," declared Miss Hawks, "are those who have accepted the teachings of Christ while they are on earth, who have fought a good fight, have finished their course, have kept the faith and now find themselves in possession of the crown of glory promised to all such."

John J. O'Connor acted as chairman of the discussion. Frank Barrett address the meeting on "The Supremacy of the Pope."

Radio Waves And Ripples

WOL'S hunt for a program service to replace the now defunct Amalgamated Broadcasting System continues merrily, hopefully and craftily.

Two New York stations have been sending their better programs along the former Wynn network to give the minds who are trying to raise a new chain on the ruins of the old an idea of what their audience will hear, when, and if, they come to terms.

Most anxious for a meeting of the minds is the New England station that guaranteed line charges for Amalgamated and now finds itself holding a great big bag full of dead wires.

WOL'S case is slightly different. Fall of Amalgamated left it holding the bag for no one. It would like very much to radio something besides recordings and local talent. But it thinks the charges on the New England lines too costly, and the company owning the wires north of New York won't transfer programs to the cheaper wires the Southern half of the old A. B. S. chain plans to use again.

Whitecaps.

WRC—A. & P. Gypsies, Frank Parker, singing "Love Is the Sweetest Thing," "Macushla," 9 p. m.; William Scotti's orchestra, 11:02 p. m.; Paul Whiteman's orchestra, 11:30 p. m. WMAL—Negro Education Week Program, Secretary Ickes and U. S. Education Commissioner Zook speaking, 4:30 p. m.; Pianist Henri Deering in an all-Chopin recital, 10:30 p. m.; Secretary Wallace, in Cabinet Series talk, 10:45 p. m. WJSV—American School of the Air opening, dramatization of life of Cortez, 2:30 p. m.; the Big Show, Lulu McConnell in two comedy skits; Gertrude Niesen, torch singing, 9:30 p. m. Evan Evans barytoning "A Brown Bird Singing," "The House With Nobody in It," "Guns," "All through the Night," 10:45 p. m.

Helene Smith, 137-pound Justice Department stenographer, last February asked $20,000 damages in a District Supreme Court suit against Time Magazine.

Alleged damage causes: Time said Stenographer Smith was dependent upon Kate Smith, of the Columbia Broadcasting System, insinuated she weighed but 90 pounds as against Crooning Kate's 212.

Alleged damage: Ridiculed in public, privacy invaded.

N. B. C. minds here meet today on a matter of public relations.

There are some of them who feel that maybe the things they tell newspapers shouldn't be measured and weighed so carefully for public reaction. What they think of most when they talk about public reaction is really client reaction. They don't want the advertisers to get the idea their station organizations aren't perfectly ordered and well-oiled pieces of machinery at all times. Yet they know there isn't very much warmth and life in a piece of machinery, no matter how well oiled.

They would like their publicity department to hand out items packed with human interest and "favorable" at the same time. It's a tough job.

When Charles G. Gillman, cast for the lead in WOL'S production of "The Love Trial," became ill the other night, Actor Dennis Connell was called in for the part.

Connell came into the studio five minutes before broadcast time, glanced through the manuscript, then stepped up to the microphone and enacted a role that called for love-making examples in four dialects. The bosses were fairly popping with praise when he finished.

Until they heard her play a piano, N. B. C.'s officials weren't very much impressed by what Horace Hunnicut said about Mrs. Hunnicut. Now they believe they have another local show they can call something like "Two Piano Pirates," or just "Two Piano Notes." They'll audition them this week just to make sure.

Fifty-five members of the Holy Comforter Boys Band, of Holy Comforter Church, have applied to Arthur Godfrey for WMAL Breakfast Club membership. Clubman Arthur is said to be considering sending some one around to see the people at the Y. M. C. A.

We wouldn't say anything about this at all, inasmuch as it's to be one of those recorded programs against which we have much prejudice, were it not that WJSV will use it on an early morning broadcast. Sunrise shows are mostly a matter of record playing, anyway.

The Columbia outlet here begins today on the Sun Dial from 7:45 to 8 a. m., the playing of records of "Frank Watanabe and Honorable Archy," a West Coast comedy team upon which Los Angeles bases all estimates of radio popularity.

Watanabe and Archy is a script show which depends entirely upon situation for its comedy. It is based on the Hashamira Togo comic strips, a newspaper and magazine favorite some years ago.

What with a new lady announcer coming along soon, WJSV feels it now has solved completely the problem of a "different" morning broadcast.

General Electric Board Chairman Young will preside at the morning session and will deliver an introductory address. Columbia University Prof. Wolman will follow with "Progress and Possibilities of Unemployment Insurance in the Codes." "Lessons for the Present From British Experiences With Unemployment" will be an address by the London School of Economics director, Sir William. NRA Counsel Richberg will report on "Progress Under the National Industrial Recovery Act," and Cotton Textile Institute President Sloan will lead an open discussion to finish the morning session.

The N. B. C.-WEAF chain will start the broadcast at 10 a. m. N. B. C.-WJZ will carry on from 10:45 to noon.

Standard Oil President Teagle will preside at the afternoon session. "The Responsibility of the Federal Government for Unemployment" is to be an Emergency Relief Administrator Hopkins speech, and "The Coal Miners Under the Codes," by United Mine Workers President Lewis.

The WJZ network will handle the broadcast from 2:15 to 3:45 p. m., switching back to WEAF for the Lewis speech.

Gen. Johnson's address before the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Illinois Manufacturers Association today, in which he is expected to reply to recent NRA attacks, will be carried by a coast-to-coast N. B. C. chain.

Pieces of Eight — The Pirate's Honeymoon — By Charles B. Driscoll

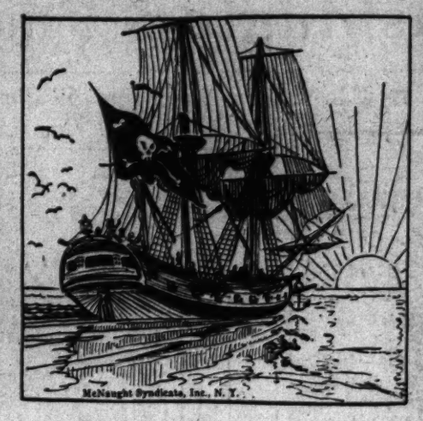
Capt. Teach carried his bride below as the Queen Anne's Revenge made ready to sail. Raging because the shrinking girl had failed to respond to his drunken toast at dinner, he flung her into her cabin shouting, "Stay there, young lady, until you learn your manners!"

On deck the pirate chief stormed about in a terrific temper. Because the anchor was not rising fast enough, he felled a man with a belaying pin and threatened others with instant death. "Stormy voyage ahead," said the men, privately.



A fresh breeze caught the sails of the Revenge at dawn, and she made for the high sea, where plunder might be found to fill the wedding chest. Moodily, the captain observed his crew, as the Jolly Roger was broken out.

Prudence, unwilling bride of the terrible pirate, cowered in her cabin, listening, weeping, praying. She was only 16, and she desperately needed the mother who had foolishly forced her into marriage with that handsome and wealthy Capt. Teach.
